

Waynesburg Republican

Published Weekly — Read Daily — Since 1833

VOLUME CXLVIV NUMBER 1

WAYNESBURG, PA., FRIDAY, APRIL 12, 1985

A GOOD HOME NEWSPAPER

SINGLE COPY 50¢

Ulrich Bail Reduced

WAYNESBURG — Following a hearing Monday, the Greene County Court reduced bond requirements for Jon Ulrich, 31, of Waynesburg, who was bound over to court last week on multiple charges stemming from stoning of a car belonging to one of the witnesses in the Waynesburg drug investigation.

Ulrich's bail had been continued at $150,000 when he was bound over to court last Wednesday on charges of perjury, false swearing, intimidation of a witness, obstruction of justice, retaliation against a witness, harassment, criminal mischief and criminal conspiracy.

At the conclusion of Monday's hearing, Judge Glenn Toothman reduced bail to $100,000 and stated it could be posted as either a property bond or a percentage cash bond.

The incident which resulted in the charges occurred Nov. 14, 1984, on West High Street, across from the Waynesburg Restaurant, when a parked car owned by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vollmer suffered more than $600 in damage when a concrete block and brick were thrown at the vehicle.

Jack Collins of Waynesburg was subsequently charged with the offense and at his hearing Ulrich attempted to provide him with an alibi by testifying that Collins was at his home at the time of the incident. When Collins subsequently pleaded guilty to the charges against him, he implicated Ulrich as being with him and with throwing one of the stones.

Attorney Roger Ecker, who represents Ulrich, argued at the hearing that the charges involving harassment and intimidation should be dismissed because his client had never threatened either Carl Vollmer, who was a commonwealth witness in the drug cases, or his wife, Nancy Vollmer.

He also argued that the $150,000 cash bail was inappropriate because it effectively denied Ulrich any opportunity to get out of jail while he awaits trial and because his client is a lifelong resident of the community who would not be leaving town.

He presented a number of character witnesses on behalf of Ulrich, including members of his family and two officials of the United Mine Workers; Tony Bumbico of St. Clairsville, Ohio, and Tom Rabbitt of New Salem, who are, respectively, UMW International Board members from District 6 and District 4.

They testified to Ulrich's good reputation in the union in connection with his position of president and chairman of the safety committee for Local 7783, made up of employees of the Halomet Corp. plant near Mason town, where Ulrich has been on layoff status since last October.

Special Prosecutor Gary Mogil argued against bond reduction on the grounds that the types of crimes with which Ulrich is charged — giving false testimony under oath and attempting to intimidate commonwealth witnesses — strike at the criminal justice system itself. He also noted that Ulrich had pleaded guilty in March of last year to retail theft.

"Witnesses need to be protected and our system of law needs to be protected," he said.

While Toothman reduced bail, he commented on the seriousness of the charges and indicated that he will not rule on Ecker's petition for dismissal of any of the charges until he has had an opportunity to study the transcript from Ulrich's hearing.

Shekerko's Attorney Asks Court To Reduce Sentence

WAYNESBURG — The attorney representing Harvey A. Shekerko of Waynesburg has filed a petition asking the Greene County Court to reduce the 10- to 20-year prison sentence given Shekerko.

The sentence, which is the maximum allowed by law, was imposed March 25 on the basis of Shekerko's guilty plea to third degree murder. The 32-year-old man was charged with the beating death of 4-year-old James Everett Caldwell, daughter of a woman who at the time was residing in Shekerko's home in Waynesburg.

"Although the defendant recognizes the seriousness of his act and this motion in no way is meant to detract from the seriousness of the act, nevertheless the defendant feels ... that the interests of society can be served and protected, the defendant can be punished and this court can do justice without necessarily imposing the maximum sentence allowed by law," attorney Paul R. Gettleman states in his petition filed Wednesday.

Arguing that Shekerko is not a career criminal, Gettleman pointed out that his client spent six years raising his children by himself and was monitored on a regular basis by Children and Youth Services in Lorain, Ohio, without any adverse findings.

"Harvey Shekerko has maintained that he never intended to kill this young boy and that statement was not refuted, even when a polygraph test was administered to him," the petition states. "Dr. Cyril Wecht, a noted pathologist from Pittsburgh, indicated that there is no way to determine whether the injuries in this case were intentional or accidental. From the moment this horrible tragedy took place ... Harvey Shekerko has shown as much remorse as one human being can show.

"In this case it may be that the court looked to the crime rather than the person in imposing the sentence that it did."

The petition asks that the court consider reducing the minimum sentence to eight years while leaving the maximum sentence stand at 20 years.

"In this way, the interests of all parties will best be served," it concludes.

Concrete Mixing Plant Is Issue

Lack Of Permit Ties Zoning Board's Hands

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Zoning and Hearing Board has indicated that a Waynesburg man will have to obtain a state air quality permit before the board will act on his application for permission to erect a concrete ready-mix plant on land in the southwest corner of the borough.

Board member Lisa Schwarz said the requirement will preclude any chance of action on the controversial matter at the board's May meeting.

At issue is an application from Richard Raymond for a zoning permit to locate the concrete mixing plant on seven acres of land in what is known as Victor's Bottom, between East Street and the borough line adjoining the Monongahela Railroad tracks, some 100 yards from houses on West Street.

A large delegation of neighborhood residents attended a zoning board meeting Monday to ask that the permit be denied. Their objections centered on dirt and dust they claim will be generated, noise and the issue of a dangerous traffic condition being created on the West High Street hill.

Mrs. Schwarz said that following Monday's meeting, she contacted the Department of Environmental Resources office in Pittsburgh and learned that Pennsylvania's Air Pollution Control Act mandates review and approval of plans for the plant by the DER's Bureau of Air Quality to determine if it would cause air pollution.

"The bottom line is that a new ready-mix cement plant may not be installed without prior plan approval from the DER Air Quality Bureau," Kenneth T. Bowman, chief of engineering services for the bureau stated in a letter to Mrs. Schwarz.

He also pointed out that when and if a permit is applied for, the public has a right to request that a public hearing be held prior to action being

Franklin Township Considers Altering Fire Protection Levy

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors are considering proposals to restructure the assessments on the township's seven fire hydrant districts.

The supervisors have discussed changing the payment structure for some time. On Monday they reviewed a brief report prepared by Solicitor William Hook which listed the costs associated with each fire hydrant district.

The three proposals the supervisors discussed include leaving the current payment structure in place, consolidating all fire districts into one, and removing assessments and paying for hydrants from the general fund.

The current payment system was set up over the years as new water lines were added to the system, said Hook. The Southwestern Pennsylvania Water Authority charges the township $50 a year for each hydrant. The township then levies a fire protection tax on property owners who benefit from the hydrants. Seven districts have been established and each district now pays a different assessment, ranging from .01 mill in Morrisville to 2 mills in Pickensville.

If the districts were consolidated, each property owner in the township would have to be assessed an additional half a mill, said Hook. This would mean that some of the districts would pay a little more and some a little less, he added.

The half-mill increase would bring in about $4,600 and the cost to operate the hydrants is about $4,700 a year, said Hook.

Supervisor Reed Kiger said he supported consolidation. "I think we ought to be consolidated, that's my personal opinion," he said.

Hook said consolidating the system shouldn't cause any problems. The consolidation "would make it easier for everyone concerned," he added. He noted that consolidation would end the problem of which property belongs in which district.

Each of the districts currently has its own account and funds in those accounts can only be used in the district in which they have been allocated. Hook suggested that if the supervisors choose to consolidate, they should wait until each of the district's funds are expended.

If the supervisors decide to drop all assessments, the township will have to pay the $4,700 out of its general fund, Hook said.

The supervisors also discussed what should be done with the six or seven fire hydrants that are located in the county industrial park. Hook reported that he had written letters to the companies there and several had replied that they would be willing to pay for the hydrants. Because of the time it would take to negotiate with the companies, the supervisors also considered dropping those hydrants from their contract with the water authority and letting the authority enter private contracts with the companies. No action was taken on the matter.

In other business, the supervisors received a letter from the state Department of Transportation which said a traffic survey at the intersection of Route 21 and Elm Drive indicates that a traffic signal is warranted there. It added that the signal would cost between $35,000 and $40,000 to install and the state currently has no program to fund such work.

The supervisors said they could use township funds to erect the light. They also said they would talk to the owners of stores at Greene Plaza who at one time said they would help pay for a light at the intersection.

The supervisors adopted a resolution indicating their intention of applying for a $75,000 Community Facilities Grant from the state Department of Community Affairs. The funds will be used for a water line extension in Blairstown. The local share of the grant is $25,000. It was noted that the local share can be contributed through township employee's labor.

First Lady Nancy Reagan welcomes Holly McKay to the White House as one of Mrs. Reagan's aides watches.

Holly McKay Leads Fight Against Drugs

WAYNESBURG — The granddaughter of a Waynesburg couple played a prominent role in starting a high school movement which could take some of the worry out of senior graduation parties.

As a result of her efforts at Del Valle High School in Austin, Texas, Holly McKay was invited to Washington, D.C., last fall by Nancy Reagan for a luncheon at which she honored high school students who have been instrumental in promoting the idea of "chemical free" parties.

Holly is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. McKay Jr. of Austin and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. McKay Sr. of 170 East Greene Street, Waynesburg. She is now a freshman at Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

As senior class president she was the driving force behind the idea of having students at Del Valle High School sign a contract in which they promised to ban alcohol and drugs from their senior party — an idea which her classmates were quick to adopt. Students' guests were also required to sign the contracts.

"You hear about all sorts of accidents that kill people who are on their way home from graduation parties," she was quoted as saying in an article in the Austin newspaper. "You almost get to expect it this time of year.

"Everybody was talking about an all-night party, but it didn't really get off the ground till we started talking about a chemical free party. Then it really caught on."

The article went on to say that both community and school officials were enthusiastic about the idea, and that merchants liked it so much that they donated most of the food and drinks that the seniors consumed at the party.

Mrs. Reagan complimented Holly and other students throughout the United States who have been promoting the "chemical free" idea to their peers, noting that it is a movement which must come from the students themselves.

At Waynesburg Central High School, guidance counselor Clara B. King and health teacher Libbie Franks expressed interest in the idea and said they would be willing to discuss it with any local students who would like to adopt it locally.

County's Jobless Number At 2,400

WAYNESBURG — Greene County's unemployment rate is continuing to run higher than that of other counties in the area, according to the latest report from the state Bureau of Employment Security.

It shows a county unemployment rate of 17.9 percent for February, representing 2,400 jobless persons in a work force estimated at 13,300. The February rate was fractionally higher than the 17.7 percent recorded in January, and more than one percent higher than the 16.8 percent rate for February 1984.

Fine Increased To $20

Waynesburg Council Acts On Parking For Handicapped

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — A suggestion to increase the fine for illegally parking in a space reserved for the handicapped escalated at a Waynesburg Borough Council meeting Monday into a discussion on the advisability of an across-the-board increase in all parking fines.

Council quickly adopted Police Chief Tim Hawfield's idea that the present fine for handicapped parking violations be increased from its present level of $5 as a means of keeping the spaces open for people who need them.

"I've received a number of legitimate complaints from handicapped people who find the spaces filled when they come to town, and I think we should raise the fine to the point where it is a real deterrent to violations," Hawfield said.

Council agreed and voted unanimously to raise the fine to $20.

"We don't want to collect any of the $20 fines, but we do want to keep the spaces open," Council President Charles Berryhill said.

Councilman Glenn Richards, who operates a hardware store on High Street, went on to say that he would like to see an increase in fines for all meter violations and other parking violations as a means of discouraging all-day street parking by people who work in town, which he said reduces the availability of parking spaces for people who come to town to shop.

At the present time, meter tickets cost $1 if paid on the day issued, $2 if paid within five days, and $5 thereafter. Fines are $5 for parking in a loading zone, no parking area, or on a yellow line.

Council will consider a schedule which would leave the fine at $1 if paid at the police station within one hour after being issued. The cost would be $3 on the date of issue if more than an hour has elapsed, $5 if paid within five days and $10 thereafter. Fines for parking in a loading zone, no parking area or on a yellow line would go from $5 to $10.

The new schedule, however, will not be considered for adoption until the May meeting to give council members an opportunity to obtain public reaction to the proposal.

"We provide people who work in the borough with an opportunity to obtain monthly passes for the borough lots at a reasonable rate and it works very well for those who use it," Richards said in speaking for the increased fines for street violations. "But there are a lot of employees who habitually park on the street all day, even at the risk of getting a ticket because the fine is so low."

Hawfield and Councilman Kenneth Fox cautioned, however, that people who come to town to shop are already complaining about the cost of tickets

Livingroom Is Scene Of Accident

WAYNESBURG — Doris Rinehart of 253 West High Street was only two steps away from getting run over by a truck Tuesday morning. The incident did not occur on a busy highway or even a quiet back street; it happened in the livingroom of her home.

Mrs. Rinehart had just hung up the telephone at about 9:15 a.m. and had taken maybe two steps out of the living room when a bakery truck came crashing through the livingroom wall.

"It missed me by about two steps or two seconds," she said.

The truck, owned by Nickles Bakery, had been parked near the IGA supermarket when its brakes failed, according to borough police. The vehicle drifted more than 50 feet, crossed Spring Alley and ramed into the home.

Mrs. Rinehart said she was the only one home at the time and was recuperating from a recent illness. She said she had heard the sound of the truck's tailgate dragging over the pavement.

"When it hit I thought it was some kind of an explosion," she said.

Mrs. Rinehart said the entire front end of the truck ended up in her livingroom. The force of the impact buckled the wall and scattered furniture. It also bent an awning and tore up the carpet. "It's one mess," she said.

Mrs. Rinehart said she could not estimate the extent of the damage to the house, which is occupied by her and her husband, Jesse. The wall had been boarded up to keep the weather out. Damage to the truck was considered light.

State To Hold Hearing On Sludge Dumping

Another Story, Page 3

WAYNESBURG — The state Department of Environmental Resources will schedule a public hearing on the Shannopin Mining Co. application for a permit to dump sewage sludge at its disposal site near Poland Mines, Monongahela Township.

The announcement that a hearing will be scheduled came in a letter to Greene County Commissioner L.R. "Butch" Santore, who had earlier written to DER requesting a public hearing on the proposal.

The date of the hearing has not been announced by DER, but Santore said it will probably have to be held before April 25, which is the final day that DER will accept comments on the application.

Shannopin has applied to DER for a preliminary permit to dispose of three truckloads, or about 60 tons, of sludge at the site on an experimental basis.

when they get them and warned that an increase in fines may drive them away.

Council then voted 7-1 for the 30-day grace period before action is taken to obtain a sampling of public opinion.

In other developments at the meeting, it was announced that the street sweeper, which was idle during the winter months, will resume operations immediately, with the sweeper parking schedule being the same as last year's. Warning citations will be issued the first time around, after which the schedule of fines will be resumed when a car is on the street on the night it is scheduled to be swept.

Fox also announced that the state Department of Transportation has prepared plans for repairing East High Street at the point near Liberty Street where the sidewalk and part of the street caved in.

Annual borough cleanup days will be held May 6, 7 and 8.

Bruce Chambers of Chambers-Gaydos of Uniontown reported that he has prepared an application for submission to the Department of Commerce for a 1985 Small Community Facilities grant of $75,000 toward a $103,000 improvement at the borough sewage treatment plant. The borough would pay $10,000 of its share in cash and the other $18,000 in in-kind services through providing a workforce to install new equipment.

Volunteer's Work Keeps Museum Library In Order

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — More than 20 million people in the United States have ancestors who lived at one time or another in Greene County, according to Alvah Headlee, a genealogist working as a volunteer at the Greene County Historical Society Museum.

Because of the number of descendants, Headlee refers to Greene County as "the motherland of the west." Holding the unofficial title of museum librarian, Headlee recently organized the museum's entire library holdings. The collection includes a number of books on family histories and records which can be used in genealogical research.

After retiring in 1967 from his job as a chemical consultant, Headlee took up genealogy as a hobby. He has written two books on the histories of his own family as well as a book entitled "Gertie's Memories," which is based on interviews with Gertrude Fox Wilson of Mt. Morris, who turned 100 in September.

Headlee admits that he pulled the 20 million figure out of a hat. If anything that number is too conservative, he said.

Using his own work as an example, and simple arithmetic, Headlee explained how he arrived at that number. Headlee's maternal grandparents, George Lemley and his wife Catharine Yoho, had 11 children, approximately 110 grandchildren and 720 great-grandchildren. If you keep building on that, you come up with more than 300,000 descendants, he said.

The Headlee family is even larger. Headlee estimates the family has about 2 million descendants. So there are some 2.3 million people between only two of the families that once lived in Greene County, he said.

The historical museum has about 100 books containing genealogies and histories of Greene County families. It also has records people can use to uncover their own family's past. Headlee has worked since August to pull all these materials together.

According to Farley Toothman, president of the Greene County Historical Society, just last year the museum's books and records were scattered throughout the entire museum.

"Mr. Headlee has been willing to spend hours at the tedious, time-consuming work of reorganizing the books," he said. He added that Headlee continued to work through the winter months, often in a building without heat.

The library has been "a real hard situation" for the society, said Tooth-man. "It's a special kind of resource for us; it's one that needs to be protected and yet be made available for the public to use," he said.

Headlee has arranged the books and records in several rooms in one wing of the museum. A boiler house behind the museum is currently being renovated and when complete will serve as a home for the library. Headlee has been assisted by the Rev. Fred Cochran, chairman of the society's library committee and volunteer who is currently using the old records to write a history of churches in Greene County.

The library has a number of books of general interest but specializes in genealogy, said Headlee. In addition to the books containing the histories of Greene County families, there are shelves of books and papers which are important to those who wish to trace their family roots. These include church records, newspaper obituaries, justice of the peace ledgers, school records, court dockets, census records and property assessor's books.

The county census records go back to 1790. There are school records dated 1863 and marriage records back to 1865. Headlee noted that it wasn't until 1885 that Pennsylvania required couples to have a marriage license.

The library also contains bound newspapers published in Greene County dating back to 1916 and an assortment of newspapers from the mid-1800s. Among these are "The Voice of Freedom" (1874) and "The Copperhead Spy" (1864). Headlee said the name Copperhead Spy was used during the Civil War; it might have referred to a southern who lived in the north.

Headlee used these types of materials to write his own family history. He also went to the National Archives in Washington, D.C., to examine older census records.

Headlee said he became interested in genealogy while contemplating his own family's past. He pointed out another dimension to the arithmetic of genealogy. Everyone has two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents, 16 great-great-grandparents, and 32 great-great-great-grandparents, he said.

"I was sitting before the fire just thinking about these 32 great-great-great-grandparents," he said. "I followed it back. I figured I'm only three percent a Headlee."

Headlee was born on a farm near Brock. He graduated from Waynesburg College in 1924 and was principal at Aleppo Township High School from 1924 to 1928. He received a doctorate in chemistry from West Virginia University in 1932.

Headlee retired after suffering from a heart attack. At the time he was running a farm and working as a consultant for several oil and gas companies in West Virginia.

"I thought I better quit what I was doing, so I completely changed my lifestyle. I got rid of the farm and quit consulting," he said.

Having a hobby like genealogy "gave me an interest in life," he said. "If I hadn't had it or its equivalent, I wouldn't be here today."

Headlee is a director of the Cornerstone Genealogical Society in Greene County and a member of the Greene County Historical Society.

Last summer he heard the museum needed volunteers to keep it open, so he decided to volunteer.

It is important that the library remain open for people to use, said Headlee. A person from California recently came to the museum for information. "I think it would be a crime that one of the primary sources of information here wasn't open."

Since coming to the museum, Headlee also has taken up the task of answering inquiries, a job which was not being done. Six days a week he travels 27 miles to the museum from his home in Morgantown, W.Va.

Headlee said he volunteers because he feels he owes it to the people of Greene County. "I look at it this way. I was born in Perry Township and they gave me an education. I'm sure I didn't pay back anyways near what it cost."

He added, "So far the work has been quite rewarding."

Alvah Headlee hits the books at museum's library.

Observer-Reporter

County Residents Selected For Jury Term Next Month

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Jury Commissioners Bernice Kuharcik and Rosalind B. Laur have announced the names of county residents selected for jury service during the May term of court.

The 75 Civil Court jurors will report to court Monday, May 6, while the 80 Criminal Court jurors will report Tuesday, May 28.

The jury panel:

CIVIL COURT
Daniel E. Adamson, Waynesburg; Aliff W. Anderson, Holbrook; Daniel W. Anderson, Rices Landing R.D.1; Frank Andria, Crucible; Barbara F. Aspey, Carmichaels; Max Balaban Jr., Rices Landing R.D.1; Pauline E. Baldwin, Waynesburg R.D.4; Georgeanna Blocker, Dilliner R.D.1; Charles V. Booth Jr., Waynesburg; Monica Coyne Christopher, Carmichaels; Kenneth R. Clark, Waynesburg R.D.3; Mabel Cole, Waynesburg; Gladys Coyle, Nemaocoln R.D.1; Diana Crago, Carmichaels; Lloyd J. Dailey, Waynesburg R.D.4; Adolph R. Deynzer, Waynesburg; James E. Dillinger, Dilliner R.D.1; Bernard Dolansky, Rices Landing; John E. Duke, Rices Landing R.D.1; Randy B. Ealy, Waynesburg R.D.4.

Connie J. Eddy, Dilliner; Jack Fike, Waynesburg R.D.2; Deborah L. Fowler, Clarksville; Nancy J. Frost, Holbrook Star Route; Andrew Edward Gacek, Clarksville; David K. Gallentine, Holbrook R.D.1; Doris Gapen, Bobtown; Linda S. George, Waynesburg R.D.3; Joan E. Gilmer, Waynesburg R.D.1; Kathryn Guritz, Greensboro.

Charlotte B. Headlee, Waynesburg R.D.4; Pamela J. Helmick, Rices Landing R.D.1; Betty Sue Hixenbaugh, Waynesburg R.D.5; Paul Hobin, Waynesburg; Janet L. Hoge, Brave; Alice D. Hudak, Greensboro R.D.1; Linda S. Jenkins, Jefferson R.D.1; Bonnie L. Jordan, Greensboro R.D.1; Richard Kalsey, Waynesburg R.D.4; Cassie E. King, Waynesburg R.D.5; Larry S. King, Spraggs Star Route;

Mildred Landers, Mt. Morris; Maybelle Lash, Waynesburg; Helen T. Leary, Holbrook R.D.1; Leo D. Leichter, Wind Ridge R.D.1; Charles J. Lewellen Sr., Carmichaels; Kevin Maguire, Holbrook R.D.1; David L. Martin, Holbrook R.D.1; Eli Matovich, Clarksville; Jack W. Miller, Greensboro R.D.1.

Della M. Moniger, Waynesburg; Martha Jane Morris, Holbrook R.D.1; David O. McCorkle, Greensboro R.D.1; Michael J. McMahon, Waynesburg; Glen S. Newill, Clarksville; Thelma A. Nichol, New Freeport R.D.2; Mary G. Nyswaner, Clarksville; Carmine A. Pasuzzo, Carmichaels; Brenda A. Pekar, Dilliner R.D.1; Clifford E. Perkins, Clarksville.

Larry R. Pettit, Sycamore R.D.1; Reason Phillips, Spraggs Star Route; Patricia V. Relich, Waynesburg; Irene R. Rollison, Clarksville; Kimberly S. Rutherford, Jefferson; Patricia J. Samsell, Waynesburg; Katherine Santucci, Clarksville.

Dean M. Sargent, Carmichaels; Marilyn K. Shipman, Sycamore R.D.1; Hubert Statler, Spraggs R.D.1; Charles Tasker, Carmichaels; Helen M. Temple, Wind Ridge; Joseph W. Tokish, Carmichaels; Anna Ruth Wise, New Freeport R.D.1.

CRIMINAL COURT
Barbara A. Angeletti, Waynesburg R.D.3; Nancy A. Antill, Aleppo; Anna Corinne Arnold, Clarksville; Billy R. Baker, Waynesburg R.D.1; Paula K. Bartoletti, Carmichaels R.D.1; Robert A. Basinger, Waynesburg R.D.1; Anna M. Bates, Waynesburg R.D.1; Helen C. Bedilion, Waynesburg R.D.1; Gilbert D. Berry, New Freeport R.D.12; Lloyd E. Blair, Cameron Star Route.

Bonnie L. Blaker, Carmichaels R.D.1; Nancy C. Boudreau, Waynesburg; David R. Broadwater, Jefferson R.D.1; Mary L. Brown, Holbrook R.D.1; Donald B. Campbell, Mt. Morris R.D.1; Margaret W. Cancellmi, Waynesburg; Michael M. Caruso, Carmichaels R.D.1; Joan S. Celento, Waynesburg R.D.4; T. Jean Cerar, Waynesburg R.D.5; Myra Joan Chambers, Waynesburg.

Nancy J. Christopher, Rices Landing; Linda A. Conklin, Mt. Morris Star Route; Martha L. Cooke, Nemaocoln; Helen J. Crayne, Waynesburg R.D.5; Jane B. Cree, Waynesburg R.D.2; Keith T. Davin, Waynesburg R.D.3; Marion Dean, Waynesburg; Warner L. Dugan, Greensboro; James A. Dulaney, Prosperity R.D.2.

Bertha A. Fisher, Greensboro; Frank M. Gabeletto, Nemaocoln; Marie N. Gacek, Greensboro R.D.1; Harold S. Gordon, Waynesburg R.D.1; Betty J. Graznak, Greensboro; Howard S. Green, Clarksville; Gladys I. Grimes, Waynesburg R.D.5; Fred Leon Gump, Dilliner R.D.1; Estella B. Hatfield, Waynesburg; Lana J. Henderson, Davistown.

Norma J. Hickman, Clarksville R.D.1; Deanna Sue Hooker, Wind Ridge R.D.1; Elizabeth C. Horr, Nineveh R.D.1; Kate Hoseny, Waynesburg; John G. Hull, Rogersville; Dorothy L. Johnston, Waynesburg; Gloria E. Jones, Greensboro Star Route; Mary Jane Kast, Rices Landing; Irene Keener, Greensboro; Mary K. Keller, Pine Bank.

Larry Kuharcik, Jefferson R.D.1; R.B. Larimer, Brave Star Route; Norman B. Leichter, Jefferson R.D.1; Norman E. Lewis, Holbrook R.D.1; Anthony Lingis Jr., Jefferson R.D.1; Sally A. Litwinovich, Waynesburg; Paula C. Mariner, Waynesburg; Rudolph Milovac, Mather; Daniel H. McGray Sr., Brave Star Route; Marie Neff, Clarksville R.D.1.

Helen Nickler, Greensboro; Debbie J. Noska, Carmichaels; Jaime E. Pacheco, Spraggs R.D.1; Bessie P. Phillips, Jefferson R.D.1; Carroll Phillips, Rogersville; Larry C. Phillips, Waynesburg R.D.1; Mildred Phillips, Waynesburg R.D.5; Betty L. Piccolomini, Clarksville; Domenick A. Proscimino Jr., Clarksville.

Deborah Ross, Greensboro R.D.1; Debra J. Smith, Dilliner R.D.1; Jack Snyder, Jefferson R.D.1; Joseph E. Spiker, Greensboro; Frances Stevens, Waynesburg; Bonnie S. Stump, Mt. Morris R.D.1; David W. Thistlethwaite, Waynesburg R.D.1; Anna M. Thomas, Carmichaels; Ruth M. Torma, Greensboro R.D.1; Paul J. Volcheck, Waynesburg R.D.1.

'Outstanding Young Woman Of America' Waynesburg Woman Recognized

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA — TSgt. April A. Floyd, daughter of Mrs. Anice Rice of 223 Oaks Street, Waynesburg, has been named an "Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1984."

The Outstanding Young Women of America Awards Program recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 36 whose time, talents, and dedication have enriched the quality of American life.

"It was an honor to be nominated," Mrs. Floyd said. During 1984, she was actively involved with the local chapter of the Air Force Sergeants Association, the Parents-Teachers Association and a host of other activities.

A 1967 graduate of Waynesburg High School, Mrs. Floyd has had a 13-year military career. She and her husband, TSgt. John Floyd, 343rd Transportation Squadron, have served the past four years at the Eielson Air Force Base in Fairbanks. They have two children, Clint, a sophomore at North Pole High School, and a daughter, Christine, a fourth grade student at North Pole Elementary School.

Mrs. Floyd said her assignment at Eielson has been an enjoyable one. As the chief of the 343rd Combat Support Group command section, she has worked for three base commanders and two deputy base commanders. "My job has been made more enjoyable through the faith and trust my bosses have in me to get the job done," she said. "I do have some goals I'd still like to fulfill," she added. "And all the credit for accomplishing past and future goals goes to my family."

Looking back over her busy year, she said some of her most memorable events include working protocol functions, the women's awareness program, AFSA activities and school sports and special events with her children.

APRIL A. FLOYD

"My son commented that, with everyone's activities and different interests, it is great we still find time to be together as a family and share our experiences," she said.

The Floyds will be moving to McConnell Air Force Base, Kan., in July.

State House Bill Gives Domestic Coal A Boost

HARRISBURG — In a victory for domestic coal, the state House has voted overwhelmingly to prohibit public utilities which provide heat or electricity to state-owned buildings from using foreign coal to generate the energy.

Authored by state Rep. William DeWeese, the measure (House Bill 181), forbids those utilities to burn coal mined in foreign countries and it passed the House by a vote of 197-1.

DeWeese said the overwhelming support for the bill shows the growing sentiment throughout the legislature for tougher guardian measures for state and American-produced items.

The Waynesburg lawmaker, whose district includes a section of what was once a major coal production area, said he believes it is acceptable for the legislature to become more protective of its industries.

"There are a lot of towns around my district where you can find unemployed coal miners," DeWeese said. "I want them to go back to work. This bill is to ensure that we won't be importing coal from South America and Africa — like what is happening in Virginia now — into the rest of the 1980s and 1990s."

DeWeese said he is hopeful Sen. Barry Stout and his colleagues will give the bill the same overwhelming support it received in the House.

Counties Helping PennDOT With Anti-Litter Campaign

WAYNESBURG — Several Greene County citizens and businesses are joining with the state Department of Transportation in sponsoring the annual "Keep Pennsylvania Beautiful Day" to be held Saturday, April 27.

Additional support is being sought for the anti-litter campaign which is being chaired locally by Walter (Bud) Williams, a PennDOT employee.

Williams said sponsors can help in a number of ways. The could provide prizes to elementary student winners in poster contests; they could sponsor essay contests; assist in promoting awareness and participation by using news releases; provide food coupons to participants; provide materials to assist in litter pickup activities or perhaps provide a trophy for the school having the most students participating in various activities.

Gets Free Phone

WAYNESBURG — Southwestern Home Care, an extension of Greene County Memorial Hospital, has received a toll-free number (1-800-321-1131) to better serve the public.

The number can be used by callers from all of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D.C., Ohio, New York and New Jersey.

This number was obtained as a convenience to patients, families and medical personnel in the areas served by the program.

Senior Centers List Activities

WAYNESBURG — The Washington-Greene Community Action Corp. has announced the schedule of activities at Greene County's four senior citizen centers for the week of April 7:

CARMICHAELS
Daily Activities — Quilting, 9 a.m.-3 p.m.; games, 11 a.m.; meal, 11:30 a.m.

Monday — Visit by legal advocate Frances Lamley, 11:30 a.m.; games, 12:30 p.m.

Tuesday — Crafts, 9 a.m.; blood pressure screening, 10 a.m.; card party, 12:30 p.m.

Wednesday — Ceramics, 9 a.m.; Older Women's League, 10:30 a.m.; Site Council meeting, 1 p.m.

Thursday — Crafts, 9 a.m.; line dancing, 12:30 p.m.

Friday — Daily activities.

Transportation arrangements can be made by calling 966-2290.

CLARKSVILLE
Daily Activities — Meal at noon.

Monday — Ceramics, 12:30 p.m.

Tuesday — Group study, 10:30 a.m.; caseworker visit, 11:30 a.m.; Site Council meeting, 1 p.m.

Wednesday — Arts and crafts, 10 a.m.; blood pressure screening, 11:30 a.m.; club meeting, 1 p.m.

Thursday — Exercise, 12:30 p.m.

Friday — Games.

Volunteers for the week will be from the Christian Church.

MT. MORRIS
Daily Activities — Quilting; meal at noon.

Monday — Exercise, 10 a.m.; caseworker visit, 10:30 a.m.; games, 1 p.m.; Mt. Morris Area Senior Citizens Club meeting, 6 p.m.

Tuesday — Sing-along, 12:30 p.m.

Wednesday — Games, 12:30 and 1 p.m.

Thursday — Exercise, 10 a.m.; sing-along, 12:30 p.m.

Friday — Arts and crafts.

Hostess for the week will be Sue Pekar.

WAYNESBURG
Daily Activities — Quilting, 9 a.m.-2 p.m.; meal, 11:45 a.m.; pool game, 12:30 p.m.

Monday — Keystone Senior Citizens meeting at Avalon Court, 10 a.m.; movie from Operation

Outreach and popcorn, 12:30 p.m.

Tuesday — Discussion group, 10:30 a.m.; sing-along with Otto Hohing and Charles Williamson, 11 a.m.

Wednesday — Singing with Gerry Knight at the piano, 10 a.m.; league bowling, 1 p.m.

Thursday — Cards and games, 12:30 p.m.; skit by Home Health Care, 1 p.m.

Friday — Visit by legal advocate Francis Lemley, 11:30 a.m.; caseworker visit, 11:30 a.m.

Upcoming Events — Covered-dish dinner at 6 p.m. Wednesday, April 17; program by Council of Arts marimba player Joe McIntyre, 12:30 p.m. Friday, April 19; free health screening by appointment on Monday, April 29; Lou Lambert trip to Virginia Beach, May 5-9, phone 827-6366 for information.

Senior citizen programs are funded, in part, under a contract with the Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging through a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Aging.

Science Fair Winners

The Bobtown Parent-Teacher Organization recently sponsored a Science Fair for students in the fifth and sixth grades. Those who won trophies for their projects are, from left, Paul Kraft, sixth grade; Chanda Glover, fifth; Aimee Burwell, fifth; Cathy Kelley, sixth; and James Cox, fifth. Not pictured is Danny Rose, sixth grade. Aimee Burwell's "Uses of Solar Energy" project was also judged the overall winner and she received a $10 prize.

Observer-Reporter

Residents Band Together Against Dumping Request

GREENSBORO — Residents of Monongahela Township have made it clear that they don't want Allegheny County's sewage sludge dumped in their municipality.

Some 150 of them attended a meeting at the Greensboro fire hall to protest application by the Shannopin Mining Co. for a DER permit to accept sludge from the Allegheny County Sanitary Authority (ALCOSAN) disposal plant at its private disposal site in the township.

Another 1,600 residents were represented through signatures on a petition which Martha Davis presented to the township supervisors, who held the meeting to map strategy for opposing the application. Mrs. Davis' house is one of some six homes which are located within 300 feet of the Shannopin landfill.

"Petitions are fine but being against it is not enough," township Solicitor William Hook said. "We have to give reasons and we're here today to get those reasons together because we have until April 25 to file detailed objections and recommendations."

Shannopin has applied to the Department of Environmental Resources for a preliminary permit to dispose of three truckloads (60) tons of sludge at the site near Poland Mines on an experimental basis. A second application seeks a permit to dispose of 300 tons per day on a regular basis if the experiment proves successful. It would be transported by river barge to a dock near Poland Mines and then trucked over Route 88 to the landfill.

"The only reason Shannopin applied for the permit was to make money at our expense," said Louis DeMola, whose home at Mabel Hill is less than 1,000 feet from the disposal site.

He added that he had spoken to a DER official who expressed doubt that the application would be granted because it would cost about $3 million to upgrade the 140-acre landfill to the point where it would be able to satisfactorily handle the sludge.

Consensus was that the application could be fought on the grounds that granting of the permit would create an odor problem for residents of the area; that heavy chemicals in the sludge would pose a long-range health danger; that leachate would easily contaminate both nearby Dunkard Creek and the Monongahela River as well as well water, and that the loading dock where the sludge would be hauled to is directly across the river from the lookout at Friendship Hill, the home of Albert Gallatin, which is a National Park.

It was estimated that there are about 20 homes in the Mabel Hill area which get their water supply from private wells.

"Right now I get dirty water in my well every two or three weeks because of the blasting they do at the landfill," said Stephen Daniel, one of the home owners.

Mrs. Davis also made the point that when the landfill was created in 1980, Shannopin obtained releases from nearby property owners on the grounds that it would be used only for disposal of fly ash and mine refuse.

"And we only signed it because they told us if we didn't the mine would be shut down," she said.

County Commissioner L.R. Santore said he had filed a formal request with the DER for a public hearing on the application, and had been assured by Charles A. Duritsa, regional manager of the agency's Bureau of Solid Waste Management, that one will be held before any permit is granted.

Santore also protested what he believed was unjustified harassment on the part of people who felt the county had not been sufficiently active in fighting the permit.

"There are a lot of rumors going around that are false and I want to say that I don't appreciate people who have called my home and harassed my wife," he said.

In conclusion, Hook stressed the importance of letters being sent to the DER by individuals who will be affected if the permit is granted, giving reasons why it should be turned down because it would affect them adversely.

"They might not listen to the county or the township, but they definitely will listen to the people," he said.

Youth Suspended

Capsules Blamed For Students' Illness

MASONTOWN — A 19-year-old Dilliner man, who police have refused to identify at this point, has allegedly confessed to passing out capsules to students at the Masontown Junior High School last week.

The capsules are being tested at the state police crime laboratory in Greensburg.

A ninth grade student from Smithfield, who reportedly suffers from a congenital heart ailment, was taken to Uniontown Hospital last week after complaining of chest pains. He was treated and released.

The boy told school officials he had taken aspirin but an investigation by principal Judy Psenicska revealed several students had ingested some purple and black capsules.

The capsules were reportedly distributed by a ninth grade boy from Masontown who has been suspended from school for 10 days, or until the contents of the capsules are tested.

Masontown Police Chief Robert Salipek revealed over the weekend he had obtained a written confession from the Dilliner man who admitted supplying the suspended youth with the capsules.

Police also obtained 20 capsules, labeled Trioxide 250, as evidence. An arrested is expected to be made, according to magistrate Paul Shenal of Masontown.

Chief Salipek, according to a report in an area newspaper, said the capsules can be altered to contain any type of drug. A doctor in Uniontown said the capsule he inspected contained a caffeine-based stimulant.

Salipek said he feared the capsules could be dangerous or contaminated, or that the contents could vary. The hospitalized student reportedly took six capsules, a dose the doctor said provides the caffeine equivalent of 12 cups of coffee.

Two other students told Masontown police of violent reactions. One told of being sick to the point he vomited and a girl said she had stomach cramps and numbness in the hands and arms.

A Uniontown pharmacist said the Trioxide 250 label could be applied to any generic, over-the-counter capsule.

Several capsules dissected by Masontown police found small white pellets and two grades of white powder. Salipek said initial reports from the crime lab showed some of the capsules were altered.

Essay Winners To Be Honored

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Ladies Auxiliary will honor the winners of the Voice of Democracy contest at a dinner at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at VFW Post No. 191, Canonsburg.

First place winner of the 38th annual contest from Washington and Greene counties was Monica Mahaffey, a student at Trinity High School. She will give her speech on the theme, "My Pledge to America."

Second place winner was Michael Braxton, a student at Fort Cherry High School, and third-place winner was Shari Reynolds of Charleroi High School.

District commander Albert Chesnik and district auxiliary president Elizabeth Null will also be honored.

The speaker will be Edythe Glassert, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, Department of the Pennsylvania VFW.

Among the participants in the program will be U.S. Rep. Austin J. Murphy, Washington County Judge Thomas J. Terputac, County Commissioner Metro Petrosky and Leonard Santore, former department commander and chairman of the Greene County board of commissioners.

A dinner will be prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary of Post No. 191. Dancing will follow.

Tickets are available at local VFW posts. Anyone who would like more information may call Roy Fredericks at 941-9743 or Tom Schellinger, chairman, at 941-6730.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Grim of New Freeport and Donald E. Wise of Eastlake, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lorrie Anne Wise, to Stephen H. Hildreth, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hildreth of Nineveh. The bride-elect is a 1981 graduate of West Greene High School. Her fiancé is a 1977 graduate of West Greene High School and is employed by West Penn Wire Corp. in Washington. An open church wedding is planned for 1:30 p.m. Saturday, May 11, in the Carmichaels Community Chapel. A reception will be held in the Senior Citizens Hall in Carmichaels. All friends and relatives are invited.

Delta Iota Elects Officers

WAYNESBURG — The Delta Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority of Waynesburg College recently elected officers for the coming school year.

Jeanine Husarcik, a junior accounting major from Jefferson, was elected president; Jill Cooper, a junior nursing major from Coraopolis, was elected executive vice president; Beth Schafer, a junior management major from Bridgeville, was elected pledge education vice president; and Louise Babicka, a junior finance major from Crown Point, Ind., was elected treasurer.

The club also inducted five new members. They are Darla Lemley, a junior accounting major from Waynesburg; Amy Lerby, a freshman elementary education major from Washington; Lori Lukas, a freshman accounting major from Washington; Beth Miles, a freshman nursing major from Washington; and Donna Dague, a nursing major from Washington.

The sorority was formed as Theta Phi Sigma in 1906 and was formally installed as Alpha Delta Pi on April 23, 1958. It is a national organization and is a member of the National Panhellenic Conference.

The sorority recognizes four areas of achievement: scholarship, leadership, participation and talent. This chapter will be represented by the president at the national convention in Dallas, Texas, in June.

Litter: Farmers Count Cost

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — Members of the Greene County Farmers' Association walked a stretch of Route 188 in Morgan Township recently. On a section of road less than a mile long, they collected enough bottles and cans to fill a dozen feed bags.

Hoping to call attention to the problem of garbage dumped along county roads, the association met at the Alex Harry Farm to help Harry clean up his property so he can begin spring planting.

"We just want to show how much litter there is along the road," said Harley Gapen, president of the association. In addition to the bottles and cans, the group found an assortment of rubbish, including a woman's shoe, the springs of an old car seat and a rusted pair of exhaust pipes.

Gapen said the group also wanted to point out the need for legislation requiring a refundable deposit on all beverage containers made from glass, metal or plastic.

According to Gapen, farmers pay a high price because of littering. "We pay several different ways: the time it takes to clean up litter, the high cost of damage to our equipment, the downtime required to fix it, and the loss of animals through consumption of broken bottles, shredded cans and other litter."

Every farmer that went to the Harry farm told of problems they had with the trash dumped along the roads and in their fields.

"Twelve months out of the year you pick up cans and bottles," said Harry. "You're on it all the time."

Glass bottles and metal cans are particularly harmful to livestock. Gapen explained that these objects are usually broken or shredded when hay is cut. If they don't flatten a tire or bend rollers on the hay conditioner, they end up being mixed in with the bale.

Cows don't chew much and tend to swallow things whole, said Gapen. Once in the stomach, the sharp objects can easily pierce the cow's heart or lungs, he said. Gapen said he puts magnets in the stomachs of his cows. The magnet lays in the bottom of the stomach and keeps metal away from the area closest to the heart and lungs.

Harry said it seems the littering problem gets worse every year. Although there is a law against littering, "you never hear of anybody getting prosecuted," he said.

This is one of the reasons the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, of which the Greene County Farmers' Association is a member, has been lobbying for legislation requiring beverages to be sold in returnable containers.

"We don't think a deposit will solve the problem, but it will sure help," said Gapen. He said he finds very few returnable bottles when he polices his fields.

Gapen said the state Bureau of Solid Waste Management has estimated that if deposit legislation were enacted, the state would save $22 million a year in solid waste collection and disposal and an additional $7 million in construction and operation of landfills.

"Some jobs might be lost in the container manufacturing industry," said Gapen, "but losses would be offset by increased jobs in handling, transportation and recycling industries."

In other states that have such laws, it has been shown that returnable containers do not increase the cost of bottling or canning beverages, he added.

Legislation requiring returnable containers has been introduced every year and failed, said Gapen. The legislation has not received the support of state Rep. H. William DeWeese, because of his connection with labor, he added.

Harry said local farmers don't expect the bill to pass this year. He added, however, that there was a good chance it would pass sooner or later. "Each year it gets a little more support," he said.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. John Adams of Bobtown announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ann, to Michael Allen Maletta, son of George Maletta of Rices Landing and Mrs. Eleanor Clelland of Waynesburg. The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Mapletown High School and is employed at the West Virginia University School of Medicine, Department of Neurology. Her fiancé is a 1975 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and a 1977 graduate of Penn State. The wedding date has been set for June 22, 1985.

Planning Dinner

Making plans for a dinner to honor the Waynesburg College basketball team are, from left, Bruce Shipe, vice president of the Yellow Jacket Boosters Club; Jay Espenshade, recording secretary; and Gary Klinefelter, exalted ruler of the Waynesburg Elks. The Second Annual Yellow Jacket Appreciation Dinner will be held Saturday night, April 20, in the Elks Lodge. It is being co-sponsored by the Elks and the Booster Club. There will be a cocktail hour at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. A brief program to honor the players and coaches will follow, highlighted by the club's "Most Valuable Player" award. John Loeper will serve as master of ceremonies. Tickets are $8 and are available from any club member, at the Elks Lodge, McCracken's Pharmacy, Mickey's Mens Store, and Doody's News.

Fox Hunt Enthusiasts Have Champ

RUFF CREEK — At one time it was a popular sport in the area, but the number of sportsmen who still raise foxhounds and hunt with them are dwindling.

Robert and Marge Neff of Washington Township are among the remaining avid fox hunters and their four-year-old bitch "Neff's Dolly" took first place this year at the state foxhound field trials held in Fawn Grove.

"Neff's Dolly" competed with 275 foxhounds to win the state championship. She garnered 400 points in the three-day event, taking first place in speed and drive, endurance, and second place in hunting. She competed only in the field trials and not in the bench show.

The Neffs and their dog were recently featured on the front cover of "The Hunter's Horn," a monthly magazine on foxhounds in sport and history. The magazine is published in Sesser, Ill.

Neff has raised foxhounds most of his life and currently owns six of them. He started as a coon hunter but gradually switched to fox hunting since, he explained, it is rare that the foxes are ever killed in the sport. That pleases his wife, who finds the animals so pretty she collects and frames pictures of them.

At one time the Neffs knew many others interested in foxhounds, but many of those folks have since died and few young people are taking up the sport, they said. The Neffs feel that it is a shame because the sport is inexpensive and a good way to enjoy the outdoors.

The couple belongs to the Greene County Fox Chasers Association, but the association holds only bench shows. They said there are too many deer in the local area for much fox chasing. In Fawn Grove, York County, where the state field trials are held, there is ample room for the dogs to run and few deer for them to bother.

Robert Neff with Pennsylvania State Field Champion foxhound, "Neff's Dolly."

Ask County Coroner To Judge

Residents Claim Their Road Unsafe

JEFFERSON — A delegation of homeowners in the Pumpkin Run Plan in Jefferson Township met Monday morning with Greene County Coroner Frank Behm to seek his aid in correcting what they feel is a life-threatening situation due to the condition of the road in the 11-home plan.

"After hearing the plight of the residents and other concerned citizens, Mr. Behm has strong misgivings about the accessibility that an emergency vehicle would have in an emergency situation," said Mrs. Mary Jones, one of the home owners.

"Mr. Behm said he will investigate and make recommendations to the Jefferson Township supervisors and township solicitor Robert McCall," she added.

She also said that Forest (Bud) Cottle, business manager for the Jef-erson-Morgan School District, had also inspected the road "and was appalled at the devastated conditions he saw . . . and will be making recommendations to the township supervisors and Behm."

The property owners have been campaigning for several weeks for improvements to the dirt road, which was never built to promised specifications by the individuals who developed the lot plan. As a result, the township supervisors refused to add the road to the township system and have provided no maintenance for it.

Mrs. Jones said that residents are particularly concerned about what would happen in the event of a fire or medical emergency, noting that she and her husband had an example of it last winter.

"We have been totally stranded and had to ration food," she said. "We ran out of baby's milk for over three days at a time due to no snow removal. Our baby suffered high fever and dehydration in this emergency situation. After a phone call of desperation it took over an hour for the snow plow to arrive. Had my baby convulsed or gone into a coma during this time her life would have been in jeopardy."

She also said that she cut her hand badly in February and that their car was stuck in a snow drift for 15 to 20 minutes, delaying their arrival at the hospital for emergency sutures.

"The severity of the problem calls for direct intervention by the state and federal governments because of the life-threatening conditions that exist," she concluded.

Fact and Folklore

John O'Hara

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Fact and Folklore column was first published in May 1966.

When two Waynesburg High School sophomores, Bill DeWeese, 16, and Mike Dewey, 15, made a 15-mile canoe trip on Ten Mile Creek from Waynesburg to Millsboro last Saturday it revived memories for many Waynesburgers who still remember when boating was quite a sport around town.

Also that many farm dwellers whose land bordered on larger creeks such as Ten Mile and Dunkard generally had a skiff or some other type of flat-bottomed boat that was used regularly for getting across the stream or hauling feed.

Most of the craft were homemade, specially the flat-bottomed row boats or skiffs. Down on the river front — along the Monongahela — good row boats were then considered almost as much of a necessity as cars are today.

Right around Waynesburg one of the first — and best — "boughten" boats was a canoe owned by the late Judge A. H. "Hal" Sayers.

It was an Old Towne canoe, then as now one of the most famous name brands in boating. The trade name then was a commonplace among most men and boys of the community as Cadillac is today as a symbol of fine craftsmanship and quality production.

Sayers bought his canoe some years before World War I and created something of the same sort of excitement around the community as occurs now when a high priced imported car is brought into town.

Sayers, then a busy practicing attorney, handled his craft well. He was always a vigorous individual and had a lot of power in his arms and shoulders needed to handle a boat of that sort against a swift current. He never got as much time to enjoy it as he would have liked but often got in a few hours on the creek on Sunday afternoons, especially at this time of the year.

One of the early day focal points of boating pleasure around Waynesburg, oldtimers say, was the historic Ross Dam located about midway between the present Crawford bridge and the old covered double bridge at the site of the railroad overhead crossing above Route 19 in Morrisville.

After the old dam was blown out to permit control of the water level during construction of the Crawford bridge span that was torn out only last fall, the center of boating interest some years later was at the J. Warren Jacobs birdhouse plant just west of the Smith Creek bridge.

Jacobs was unsurpassed in craftsmanship of various sorts, including boat and canoe construction. They were equivalent to the best and surpassed many that were made in far away factories. Hundreds of Waynesburg youngsters who lived here just before and after World War I had that once-in-a-lifetime thrill of their first boat ride in one of his fine canoes.

The rides were always under the watchful eye of Jacobs himself or one of his two older sons, Ben or Bill.

Kinds in those days just naturally learned to row a boat and paddle a canoe the same way they learned to walk, ride a bicycle, skip rope, skate and all that sort of thing. By the same token, almost every man was almost expected to be able to man the oars of a skiff. Something like it is taken for granted now that almost everyone can drive a car or truck.

For years a skiff was always kept in a high dry spot at the Waynesburg Water Company's pump station near the drive-in theater west of town as a means of escape if the operating engineer got trapped by rising flood waters.

Years ago there used to be a story kicked around the banks of Ten Mile Creek at the foot of South Richhill Street that the original portion of a wone-story frame house in which Mrs. Helen Clark Moore and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Clark White, reside was originally the cabin of a small version of a steamboat used in an experimental trip from Clarksville to Waynesburg.

The hazy version of that story now from some 40 years back is that it was to have been a pleasure craft and that the late George E. Hoge, who operated a fashionable men's clothing store in what is now part of the McCrory store on Main Street was the owner or part owner of the boat, which reportedly was wrecked when hit by heavy logs during a big flood.

At all events, it never got far away from Ten Mile Creek as it has been standing for years almost on the very edge of the stream between the creek and the old W&W railroad tracks just around the bend past the former electric light plant.

The late Frank and Bess Maple lived in it for many years, as did the Willis Sines family before it was bought by Mrs. Moore.

As for the two boys whose canoe trip stirred these memories, it was the first such adventure for Bill DeWeese and one he says he'll never forget. Mike Dewey, his buddy, is a veteran boatman and did most of the steering Saturday. They had to make only one portage, near Jefferson.

Their arrival at Engle's boathouse at Millsboro, where they received traditional river hospitality, marked the end of a trip which might renew interest in such a wholesome, healthful and pleasurable sport that was quite the thing to do in Greene County many years ago.

WAYNESBURG REPUBLICAN

(ISSN0279-5043)

122 S. MAIN STREET

WASHINGTON, PA. 15301

Continuously Printed Since 1833

Published Every Friday By

Observer Publishing Company

122 S. Main St., Washington, Pa. 15301

Managing Editor, Robert M. Eichenlaub

Second Class Postage Paid At Washington, Pa. 15301

Postmaster: Address all communications, change of address notices, undeliverable mail and orders for subscriptions to Observer Publishing Co., 122-126 South Main Street, Washington, Pa. 15301.

TELEPHONE: WASHINGTON 1-800-222-NEWS

WAYNESBURG 852-2602

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year $26.00 3 Months $6.50

6 Months $13.00 Single Copy 50¢

Proposal To Close Pools Inappropriate Tactic

Even if it was made with the idea of inciting public reaction, the proposal by Greene County Commissioner L.R. Santore to close the county's two swimming pools this summer as a means of saving money does not sit very well.

Santore, who is chairman of the board of commissioners, proposed the idea to his two fellow commissioners last week. If either of them had made the motion he asked for — and he had no assurance they wouldn't since he hadn't consulted with them in advance — it would have resulted in ill-considered action which would have underscored the problems the board has been having lately because of such "shoot from the hip" tactics.

To the outside observer it seems that much of the problem lies in the increasing animosity between the two Democratic commissioners, Santore and Dan Bailey, with each accusing the other of "playing politics" in dealing with matters involving county government without consulting each other.

At any rate, they are presenting the image of divisive leadership which does not increase confidence in county government.

The suggestion to close the swimming pools was Santore's response to criticism from a group of Carmichaels area residents for his failure to support Bailey's idea of seeking legislation to authorize levying of a coal severance tax as a means increasing county revenues.

They also objected to pushing for legislation which would increase the ceiling on county property taxes from 20 to 30 mills, an idea which Santore came up with, claiming that property owners couldn't absorb any more taxes.

Santore, who blamed Bailey for setting up the protesting visit (which Bailey denied), said in a prepared statement that he would accept a motion to close both county pools for this summer since "your (Bailey's) group also thought that county funds should not be spent on swimming pools."

Neither Bailey nor Republican Commissioner John Gardner made such a motion, stating they wanted to think about it before resorting to such a drastic means of saving the $40,000 or so a year it costs to operate the two facilities.

The commissioners obviously face serious fiscal problems, but depriving residents access swimming pools won't solve them. The average taxpayer gets little enough return from his county tax dollars as it is and spending a small part of them to provide recreational opportunities is a legitimate and valuable service.

State Court Allows Firm To Seek Damages

The Commonwealth Court in Harrisburg has overturned a Greene County Court ruling which barred a Carmichaels company from seeking compensation for the alleged taking of property when a sewer line was laid in 1975.

The appellate court on Thursday, April 4, set aside the local court ruling which held that Carmichaels Mining Machine Repair Co. had not met requirements of the statute of limitations when it filed a petition on Oct. 8, 1982, requesting the appointment of a board of viewers to assess damages against the Carmichaels-Cumberland Joint Sewer Authority.

The county court ruled that a six-year statute of limitations was in effect in such actions when the sewer line was built in 1975 and that the petition was therefore untimely.

The Commonwealth Court ruled, however, that a 1978 amendment to the law which extended the statute of limitations to 21 years was governing in the case because the legislative intent of the statute was that the change be retroactive.

The authority installed the line in August 1975 over property later claimed by the machine repair company. The board of view will be charged with determining if the property was in fact owned by the company and, if so, the amount of compensation that should be paid.

Faces From The Past-Do You Recognize Them?

The M.E. Church on South Washington Street was razed many years ago. The site is now occupied by Midtown Auto Sales. The Greene County Courthouse is in the background. Note the sign advertising Old Monongahela, pure rye whiskey.

all around greene

USAF GRADUATE

Airman John E. Wilkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Cunningham of Jefferson R.D.1, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft maintenance course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

Wilkes is scheduled to serve with the 393rd Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Squadron at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C. He is a 1982 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School.

SON BORN

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Denham of Bobtown have chosen the name Drew Christopher for their son born March 20, 1985, in Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Jeffries of Bobtown and Jerry and Sue Dehman of Danville, Ky. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Antle of Junction City, Ky. and Mrs. Alma Denham of Danville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Denham have two other sons, Fred and John, and two daughters, Sara and Gail.

FLY TO FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. John Barton, Helen Lou King and Mary Louise Finch, all of Waynesburg, flew to Orlando, Fla. They spent eight days visiting Wilma Stevens and children at Lake Wales.

DAUGHTER BORN

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Ealy of Bobtown have announced the birth of their first child, a daughter, on March 26, 1985, in Uniontown Hospital. She has been named Jenna Louise.

Mrs. Ealy is the former Cathy Latanation. Grandparents are Helen Latanation of Bobtown and the late John Latanation, and Mr. and Mrs.

Thomas E. Ealy of Holbrook. Great-grandmother is Anna T. Koval of Carmichaels.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Doney of 503 Braden Street, Waynesburg, announce the birth of a daughter, Megan Jenna, born March 31, 1985, in University Hospital, Morgantown. The new arrival has a sister, Melanie, and a brother, Michael.

Grandparents are Grace Doney of Cleveland, Ohio, and the late Carl Doney and Mrs. Katherine Eaton of Waynesburg and the late Anton Howard.

WIND RIDGE NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. William Kent hosted a dinner for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gross Dinsmore of West Finley R.D. and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dinsmore of Hopwood.

Around The Town

In this age of four-wheel vehicles and high-powered rifles, it's hard to believe that deer hunters in Greene County last year brought down 76 deer with arrows and another 24 using flintlock rifles. Across the state, there were 6,709 archery kills and 2,964 flintlock kills.

Ruth Stewart Schenley of Waynesburg continues to win major prizes for poetry. Her poem, "Rain Day in Waynesburg," recently took first prize in the Annual Pennsylvania Poetry Society Contest, Col. Henry W. Shoemaker Memorial Award category. Her poem, "Grandfather Menhir," won second place in the C. Sterling Clifton Memorial Award. She also received an honorable mention in the Haiku competition.

Tom F. Brzoza, a former All-America football player at Pitt, has been named the Ingersoll-Rand Mining Machinery Group representative in Greene County. Brzoza, a former player for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Cleveland Browns, will have an office in Waynesburg.

Students in the Waynesburg High School class of 1940 are trying to find the current addresses of former classmates Dorothy Cooper, James McLay, Charles Meighen, Rebecca Noll, Dora Lewis Horn, Devonah Young Pethel and Leroy Phillips. Anyone with information is asked to contact Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reed in Waynesburg.

In servicemen news: Pvt. John Kurilko of Greensboro has completed training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.; Pvt. Jeffrey Eder of Waynesburg R.D.2 has completed a communications course at Fort Sill, Okla. and Airman John Wilkes of Jefferson completed an aircraft maintenance course at Sheppard Air Force Base in Texas.

Severe winds this past Friday and Saturday caused wide-spread damage to trees and property in Greene County and the holiday weekend was ruined for many when snow flurries and hail pelted the area on Easter Sunday. Despite the weather, thousands attended church Sunday including sunrise services at the 57th annual services at Fairall Church.

There will be no more trials involving the many suspects in the on-going drug investigation in Waynesburg until late May. A former pizza shop owner was found guilty on eight counts last week and because the current jury panel was "tainted" by hearing part of the proceedings, the Commonwealth must wait for a new panel of jurors.

The five candidates seeking the Greene County judgeship are extremely busy making the rounds of granges, civic organizations and fraternal groups. One candidate is already concerned about his waist measurement because of the "rubber chicken" circuit.

between the bookends

by marcia mckenna biddle

My train trip to Philadelphia took about six and a half hours, but I have been writing about it for three weeks. Last week we were just leaving Huntingdon, and heading for Lewistown.

I was also reading, "The Mask of Fu Manchu," and wondering what dumb thing our hero was going to do next. Well, he escaped from the interior of the great pyramid, and arrive safely in London. There, he decided to walk home from the theater at one in the morning, leaving himself an easy target. Dr. Fu Manchu loves this guy, since he's so cooperative.

It's harder to keep my mind on a book now, with the beautiful mountains to watch. If they're this gorgeous in March, I'd like to come back this way in October. We don't see much of Lewistown, but they once had a pretty, brick station. It had pillars of brick, and was similar to the old W&W station in Waynesburg. With any luck, Waynesburg's station could be restored before Lewistown's.

At present, Lewistown's is painted gray. Its windows are covered with sheet metal in, uh, matching tones. Like a dirty battleship. To add a note of charm, supposedly, a wide maroon stripe was painted around the lower half of the building. And then somebody attacked it with a can, or several, of black spray paint.

But we don't stay long enough to enjoy that view, and we hurry on to Harrisburg. Through the beautiful Juniata Valley, we watch a stone wall which stretches for many miles along the river. Somebody explains that the wall was built more than a hundred years ago, and was not a retaining wall, but a canal towpath. He knows, he says, because his grandfather worked on it.

Approaching Harrisburg, we zip by a small, dirty, yellow brick building which is a former railroad station but now houses the "Iron Horse Antiques." Then we are crossing "the longest stone arch railroad bridge in the world." It's said to be 3,900 feet long, and was built in 1902. I look down, and see only water, where I had hoped to see some sort of solid stone beneath us.

I quickly go back to Fu Manchu, trying to forget that we seem to be traveling on the extreme edge of a bridge built in 1902. I find our hero in trouble again. He's tricked into entering a cellar, and tied up with a very fine rope made of spider webs, an invention of Fu Manchu. But now the hero is hallucinating again, and nobody is sure what's going on.

Finally, we pull into the old Harrisburg station. Here we actually come to a full stop for a change, but I'm afraid to get out since I don't know how long it will be. I first saw this station two years ago and, on walking into it, my impression was that it could have been any old railroad station in, say, Bogota, Colombia.

At that time, everything in it was painted gray, even the window panes. The gray paint did not serve its purpose — that of hiding the dirt — and walking into it was about as inspirational as walking into Fu Manchu's cellar. The floor was littered, the rest rooms impossible, and the garbage cans overflowing.

The next time I saw it, I noticed that workmen had started to scrape things. I asked somebody if the station was going to be restored. She said, "Yes. But there's a lot of controversy about whether it's worth all the money or not."

When I saw the station again last fall, the change in it was almost unbelievable. The floors had been sanded, the windows had been scraped and cleaned so that the sun was actually shining in.

The paint had been removed from all the old oak paneling which was now a glowing golden color, also with the beams which crisscross the ceiling. Victorian style chandeliers were in place on the ceiling, and you could now see the huge gray marble fireplaces at both ends of the big room. It now looks like it belongs in a state capital, not South America.

Luckily, I didn't try to go upstairs to see it, or I would have been left behind. We pull out and, as we pass scenic Three Mile Island, our hero under the spell of Dr. Fu Manchu beautiful daughter again. I think his fiancée is not going to appreciate that happening again.

I thought I'd finish the trip with this column, but we haven't reached Lancaster yet, and I have something to say about that. I'm also thinking about what Dr. Fu Manchu would do with Three Mile Island.

19-AA

Mikettes Top Small But Tough Section

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

Getting to know your opponents has never been so easy. The nice thing about playing in these cozy, five-team softball sections is the knowledge that sneaking up is hard to do.

But that is no consolation for coaches like Tim Jones, who is trying to rebuild a Mapletown High School team in the midst of the whirlwind which is his WPIAL Section 19-AA schedule. In addition to Geibel, the Maples must play Carmichaels, West Greene and Jefferson-Morgan. Three times each.

"And they're all powerhouses," says Jones. "This is such a tough section it's unbelievable."

Section play started with West Greene traveling to Carmichaels.

Following is a preview of the section's Greene County teams.

CARMICHAELS

The Mikettes lost only three of 20 games last season, including a 7-3 defeat at the hands of Turtle Creek in the WPIAL Class AA championship. They have won six section titles in nine years.

"I have real good kids," says 10th-year coach John Krajnak.

"Each year they come out and want to play the game, and I think I'm fortunate every year and I have those kinds of kids. We have a lot of girls back from last year, and I hope we do well. But I think we have to hit the ball better."

Carmichaels has won two of its three exhibition games, beating Class AAA Uniontown, 11-0, on a no-hitter by sophomore Chris DeMasse. The Mikettes' hitting doesn't exactly have to be spectacular in games like that. DeMasse will get pitching help from sophomore Rennie Wilson and freshmen Tracy McIntire and Shannon Ganocy.

Seniors Tracy Ganocy (left field), Kim David (shortstop) and Faith Stauffer (first base) will add experience. Junior Missy Chess will move to center field for senior Kim Blumish, who suffered a broken nose in the Uniontown game and is out indefinitely. Also expected to contribute are freshman third baseman Chris David, sophomore second baseman Daneen Peluso, who started last season, and junior catcher Mary Rankin.

WEST GREENE

The Pioneers, coming off a 9-9 season ninth-year coach Bill Devore called "one of our weakest in the past five or six years," have scored 33 runs while winning all three of their exhibition games. Believe it or not, they are slipping.

"We're kind of balanced there," Devore says. "Usually, we'd score 16 or 17 runs a game in the past. We won a game over Fairchance last year, 40-30. But it's a different look this year. We'll have to go with pitching and defense, just try to win scoring 10 runs."

The pitching chores will fall to senior Sheila Main, a three-year letterman; sophomore Laura Hall, who teamed with Main to do most of the work last season; junior April Slifko, a two-year letterman; and sophomore Athena Medlen.

"It's the first year I've had four pitchers who I can pitch at any time," Devore said. "Our pitching is our strong point."

Devore is expecting solid help from freshman catcher Candis Thomas, whom he calls "a very good athlete, a sound ballplayer."

JEFFERSON-MORGAN

Third-year coach Kathy Hughes has the type of problem most coaches enjoy solving — 50 players tried to make the team. She has pared that number to 26, saying "they're all good hitters."

Among those Hughes thinks can supply the needed offense are senior third baseman Leslie Watson, senior catcher Tammy Bedilion, junior shortstop Pam Barnhart, junior center fielder Lisa Caputo and freshman first baseman Bridgett Riecks, who doubled and tripled in a recent exhibition win over Avella.

Senior Lori Ziemba will do most

It's time for a new pitch in girls' high school softball of the pitching for the Rockettes, 2-1 in the exhibition season after finishing 6-8 one year ago.

"She's been really consistent lately," Hughes said, "and she's been pretty accurate, too. If we keep our errors down... that's the big thing."

MAPLETOWN

The Maples return only two lettermen from last season, which they finished 10-8. In their only exhibition action of the spring, they lost to Class AAA Brownsville, 13-12.

Jones, in his second season with Mapletown, expects junior Kelly Beck to do most of the pitching. A pair of seniors, shortstop Janie Spearen and left fielder Darcy Metcalf, add experience.

County Bar Sponsoring Essay Contest

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Bar Association is sponsoring the first annual Law Day essay contest for ninth grade students enrolled in the county's five school districts.

Students must write an essay, in 500 words or less, on what liberty means to them. The nationwide theme for Law Day is "Liberty and Justice For All."

All five school districts are participating. There will be five winners, including the best of each district, and one overall winner from the districts combined.

Prizes include United States Savings Bonds as well as being the honored and featured guests of the bar association at its annual Law Day ceremony at the Greene County Courthouse on May 1.

Winners will be announced on April 25.

Members of the essay committee are Deborah E. Gilbert, James Caldwell and Judge Glenn Toothman.

Officers of the Greene County Bar Association for 1985 are Mary Pruss, president; James Caldwell, vice president; Deborah E. Gilbert, secretary; John W. Hardisty, treasurer, and board of managers, William R. Davis, Kenneth O. Tompkins, A.J. Marion, W. Bertram Waychoff and William M. Bailly.

Scouting Awards Announced

BOBTOWN — A number of boys receive awards at the monthly pack meeting of Bobtown-Greensboro Cub Scout Pack 1270, held recently in the Shannopin Club hall, Bobtown.

Bill Danko and Damon Casseday received their Denner cords. Mark Brown, Chris Corob, Bill Danko, Heath Pratt and Jeff VanMeter each received two beads for six achievements for the Progress Toward Ranks.

Brian Menear earned his Webelos badge and scientist, showman, scholar, geologist, athlete, citizen, engineer and traveler activity badges. Damon Casseday earned the athlete, citizen, engineer, forester, geologist, scholar, scientist, showman, traveler and outdoorsman badges.

Greg Gapen earned the athlete, scholar and citizen badges. Curtis Laskosky and John Caldwell earned the athlete activity badges.

Cub Scout activities emblems, honoring the 75th anniversary of scouting, have been earned by Eric Bixler, Bo Garnek, Rick Menear, Mark Brown, Chris Corob, Bill Danko, Heath Pratt, Jeff VanMeter, Barry Bennett, Chris Caldwell, Jay Wade, Josh Caldwell, Curtis Laskosky, Brian Menear and Damon Casseday.

Plans were made to attend a Pittsburgh Pirate baseball game on May 4, and for the Cubmobile race to be held this spring. It was announced the pack will donate books to the libraries at the Bobtown and Penn Pitt schools.

Zoo Trip Planned

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Library System will sponsor a bus trip to the Pittsburgh Zoo on Saturday, April 20, in observance of National Library Week.

Buses will leave from Bowlby Public Library, Waynesburg, and from Flenkinn Library, Carmichaels, at 9 a.m. Cost of the trip is $6 per person and any child, 12 or under, must be accompanied by an adult.

Payment must be made upon registration at either library. No new reservations may be made or no cancellations will be accepted after April 17. Individuals may bring a sack lunch or purchase lunch at the zoo.

Franklin Twp. Wants Action From County On Tax Returns

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — The Franklin Township Supervisors have indicated that they would like the county to move a lot faster when it comes to turning over the township's share of delinquent property taxes.

The funds, which are collected by the county Tax Claim Bureau on behalf of school districts and municipalities, should be turned over to the various bodies on a quarterly basis.

But, according to Supervisor Reed Kiger, the township has yet to receive funds it was due in January. The amount the township has received in the past ranges from $50 to $1,000 per quarter, according to the township secretary.

Two school districts in the county recently filed formal protests with the county commissioners objecting to the delay in payments. Commissioner L.R. Santore said at the time that the monies were deposited in the general fund and because of a cash flow problem were being used to cover county expenses.

In other business, the supervisors adopted a resolution agreeing to guarantee a bank loan applied for by the Franklin Township Sewage Authority. The loan will be used to extend a sewer line to the Curry Home area.

The sewage authority could borrow between $40,000 and $150,000 to complete construction of the line, which has been estimated to cost about $219,000, said township solicitor William Hook. The authority has received a proposal from First National Bank of Washington offering a rate of 63 percent of the prime rate.

As part of the agreement, the bank requires the township to guarantee repayment of the loan, said Hook. The authority will use a grant, assessment fees, tap-in fees and funds it has earmarked for construction to lower the amount it must borrow, Hook said.

The supervisors also adopted a resolution to include in the west Waynesburg fire district four new fire hydrants installed in the Route 18-21 area. Residents in the district will be assessed for the installation and maintenance of the fire hydrants.

In connection with the installation of the water line to the Route 18-21 area, the supervisors directed the solicitor to file municipal liens against five property owners who have failed to pay assessments for the line extension.

The solicitor was also authorized to file a lien against Spagnol Enterprises Inc. for the demolition of a building it owns in Morrisville. The cost to the township for the demolition work was about $2,500, said Hook.

The supervisors awarded bids for gasoline and diesel fuel to the Greenwood Oil Co. of Waynesburg. The township will pay 77.9 cents a gallon for about 10,000 gallons of gasoline and 82.9 cents a gallon for about 5,000 gallons of diesel fuel. The supervisors also accepted a bid for 1,000 tons of salt from the Morton Salt Co. The bids had been opened at the supervisors' last meeting.

The supervisors voted to hire Milinovich and Co. to audit the earned income tax books at a cost of $552. The tax is collected by Central Tax Bureau.

Donna Porterfield asked the supervisors if there was anything they could do to help clean up the litter in the county. "It's ridiculous, the garbage along the roads. I'm appalled by it," she said.

Porterfield said she had talked with the county farmers association and they too would like something to be done about the litter, which is harmful to farm animals.

Kiger said the township runs into difficulties sponsoring clean-up days because the county does not have a landfill and trash has to be trucked to Masontown. He added, however, that the supervisors would discuss the problem and see what could be done.

Observer-Reporter

School Raising Funds

Heather Dinich shows her fellow schoolmates from Warrior Trail School the "Silent Auction" display in the window of First Federal Savings and Loan of Waynesburg. The items to be auctioned off to the highest bidder were donated by local merchants. People may bid on the items until April 30 and bid sheets are available inside the bank. All proceeds will go to Warrior Trail School which is an instructional day care for preschool and kindergarten children.

BOWLING RESULTS

Ruff Creek Store, 77 Market and Cole Plumbing and Heating each won three of four games in Thursday Classic Bowling League action last week at Arbor Terrace Lanes, Waynesburg.

Shirley Kerr rolled a 233 high game and 561 high series to lead Ruff Creek Store over Barna's Furniture, paced by Mary Hare with 174-489.

Marilyn Whiting turned in a 175-474 for 77 Market as it took three games from Patterson Realty, led by Carol Patterson with 179-435.

Phyllis Hoge recorded a 186-493 for Cole Plumbing and Heating in its series with Waynesburg Milling, led by Judy Hartmann with a 162 high game and Edith Dains with a 440 high series.

STUDENT OF MONTH — Chris Noel Durco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Durco of 388 Grant Avenue, Nemaacolin, has been selected as Girl of the Month for March by the Carmichaels Area Women's Civic Club. She is a senior at Carmichaels Area High School, where she is a member of the Senior Standing Committee, National Honor Society, Art Club and Drama Club, and secretary of the Nuclear Physics Club. She plans to enter California University of Pennsylvania this fall and major in earth science education.

University Women To Present Award

Waynesburg Resident Named Outstanding Woman

WAYNESBURG — Ruth S. Schenley of 123 East High Street, Waynesburg, has been named Outstanding Woman of the Year by the Waynesburg Branch of the American Association of University Women.

The announcement was made at an AAUW meeting Monday, March 25.

Mrs. Schenley and honorees from other AAUW branches throughout the state will receive special recognition at the Pennsylvania Division Convention in Columbus, Ohio June 23-27.

A charter member of the Waynesburg branch, Mrs. Schenley is currently vice president of the organization and has been program chairman for several years.

She is a native of Greene County and a daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Paul R. Stewart. Her father served from 1921 to 1963 as president of Waynesburg College, where she graduated in 1935. Her mother was a teacher. In 1984, Mrs. Schenley received the Golden Key award from Waynesburg College for outstanding achievement in her profession, service to her college, and longevity of participation.

She has contributed to the college as unofficial chronicler of the college history and has written features for the Yellow Jacket and Mad Anthony, has been a guide for the college summer Elderhostel program, and has lectured to numerous campus and civic groups.

At the graduate level she attended the University of Pittsburgh and Kent State University for advanced studies in English and religion.

As a freelance writer, she has written several hundred articles, stories and poems over the past 50 years.

In 1963 she wrote a best seller in children's books entitled, "Too Many Kittens." Over the years she has won many awards for her poetry, which is her favorite type of writing, and for her fiction and non-fiction.

She has been a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg for more than 50 years. She is also a member of the Waynesburg Women's Club, Garden Club, Pennsylvania State Poetry Society, National Fellowship of State Poets, and Academy of American Poets. She is coordinator of the hotline for the drug and alcohol community program.

Her many and varied teaching assignments range from teaching in the Simmerman one-room schoolhouse between Spraggs and Blacksville to counselling and teaching in the state correctional facility near Canonsburg. She also taught in elementary and high schools in Willoughby, Ohio, West Deer Township High School in Allegheny County, and at Point Marion.

Mrs. Schenley has a married daughter, a retired teacher, who is currently employed by the Mental Health Department of Lake County, Ohio.

Pack 1270 Scouts Get Awards

BOBTOWN — A number of boys receive awards at the monthly pack meeting of Bobtown-Greensboro Cub Scout Pack 1270, held recently in the Shannopin Club hall, Bobtown.

Bill Danko and Damon Casseday received their Denner cords. Mark Brown, Chris Corob, Bill Danko, Heath Pratt and Jeff VanMeter each received two beads for six achievements for the Progress Toward Ranks.

Brian Menear earned his Webelos badge and scientist, showman, scholar, geologist, athlete, citizen, engineer and traveler activity badges. Damon Casseday earned the athlete, citizen, engineer, forester, geologist, scholar, scientist, showman, traveler and outdoorsman badges.

Greg Gapen earned the athlete, scholar and citizen badges. Curtis Laskosky and John Caldwell earned the athlete activity badges.

Cub Scout activities emblems, honoring the 75th anniversary of scouting, have been earned by Eric Bixler, Bo Garnek, Rick Menear, Mark Brown, Chris Corob, Bill Danko, Heath Pratt, Jeff VanMeter, Barry Bennett, Chris Caldwell, Jay Wade, Josh Caldwell, Curtis Laskosky, Brian Menear and Damon Casseday.

Plans were made to attend a Pittsburgh Pirate baseball game on May 4, and for the Cubmobile race to be held this spring. It was announced the pack will donate books to the libraries at the Bobtown and Penn Pitt schools.

Observer-Reporter

Dartball Winners

Trophies were awarded Tuesday night, April 2, at the Annual Greene County Church Dartball Banquet held in Carmichaels. Individual winners are, from left, Jim Broderick, most triples; Don Tennant, most hits; Jack Buchanna, most R.B.I.s; Gary Weaver, most singles; Tom Dorazio, most doubles, and Earl Bennett, most home runs. Not pictured is Tim Mitchell who had the highest average. The Waynesburg First Baptist Church team was league champion.

OBITUARIES

Truman McDiffitt

Truman Leo McDiffitt, 39, of 1 Maple Avenue, Cameron, W.Va., died Wednesday, April 3, 1985, in Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh. He was born October 6, 1945, in Glen Dale, W.Va. to the late Harry McDiffitt and Pansy Wade McDiffitt of Moundsville, W.Va.

He was a member of the Big Run Christian Church near Cameron, W.Va., and Lodge 36, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He was employed as an accountant in the Marshall County Division of the West Virginia Department of Highways.

Surviving in addition to his mother are his wife, Twila Bunting McDiffitt; a son, Thomas at home; two daughters, Tammy and Tawnya, both at home; four brothers, Virgil of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Gerald of Carmichaels; Roger of Cameron, W.Va. and Clyde of Wheeling, W.Va. and eight sisters, Mrs. Walter (Margaret) Cumberledge, Mrs. Charles (Daisy) Wendt and Vivian McDiffitt, all of Moundsville, W.Va.; Mrs. Sidney (Carol) Bonfall of West Chester; Mrs. George (Violet) Pelley of El Monte, Calif.; Mrs. Richard (Rose) Cunningham of Cameron, W.Va.; Mrs. Robert (Orleda) Logsdon of Glen Easton, W.Va. and Mrs. Crystal Rutter of Parkersburg, W.Va.

John E. Riggs Sr.

John E. Riggs Sr., 62, of 38 North Avenue, Cameron, W.Va., died at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 6, 1985, in Reynolds Memorial Hospital, Glen Dale, W.Va.

He was born November 11, 1922, in Moundsville, W.Va. to W. Brady Riggs of Moundsville and the late Mocadoelena Hill Riggs.

A veteran of World War II, he was a member of American Legion Post 18 in Cameron, W.Va. and the Kausoath Church of Christ. He was employed by Forest Construction Co. in Morgantown, W.Va.

Surviving in addition to his father are his wife, Eileen Finnegan Riggs; a son, John E. Jr. of Cameron, W.Va.; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas (Lena) Doame of Altomonte Springs, Fla. and Mrs. Daniel (Marsha) Roberts of Proctor, W.Va.; two brothers, Willis B. of Cameron, W.Va. and George Benjamin of Moundsville, W.Va.; a sister, Mrs. Nellie Settle of Bossier City, La. and eight grandchildren.

Tools Stolen

GRAYSVILLE — Hand tools valued at $540 were taken from a toolbox owned by Kirk Michael Ziegler of Graysville R.D.1. while Ziegler was at an auction at his neighbor's house, according to state police. The incident occurred Saturday, March 23.

Helen H. Brush

Helen Irene Humphrey Brush, 92, of San Diego, Calif., formerly of Washington, died January 14, 1985, in Alvarado Convalescent Hospital, San Diego, following a short illness.

She was born October 30, 1892, in Butler, and graduated from high school there, second in her class, in 1910.

She went to Denison University, Granville, Ohio, for two years, then transferred to the University of Pittsburgh, where she majored in English and education, and was a founding member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She taught English and Latin in Connellsville, where she met the Rev. Edwin Brush, whom she married in 1918.

They move to a pastorate in Jefferson and in 1923, their work took them to the mission field of India and Burma.

Following retirement from their overseas career, her husband became pastor of Allison Avenue Baptist Church in Washington. He died in 1956.

Surviving are her sister, Myrtle Jeannette Bel, with whom she made her home; a daughter, Frances Schillinger of Alpine, Calif.; two sons, John Brush of Piscataway, N.J. and Stanley Brush of Bridgeport, Conn.; eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Her ashes will be placed in the grave of her husband on May 4 in the Mount Royal Cemetery in Glenshaw. Services will be private; however, the family requests friends who may wish to attend, to please call John E. Brush at 201-463-9271 for an invitation.

Fred L. Rush

Fred L. Rush, 69, of Carmichaels R.D.2 died at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, April 6, 1985, at his home.

He was born July 1, 1915, in Nineveh to George W. and Velmetta Anderson Rush and was raised by his late stepmother, Dora B. Cole Rush.

His wife Mary E. Moore Rush died in January, 1985.

A lifelong resident of Greene County, he had lived in Carmichaels for the past 48 years where he was a charter member and deacon of the First Baptist Church.

He retired from Buckeye Coal Company and was a member of United Mine Workers Local 6290.

Surviving are four sons, George Albert of Palmdale, Calif.; Duane Leroy of Woodbridge, Va. and Robert Edward and Norman Lee, both of Carmichaels; 11 grandchildren; a brother, George E. of Grove City, Ohio and a sister, M. Louise Rush of Waynesburg R.D.2.

Deceased are two sisters, Bernice and Lucy Alberta and a brother, Robert.

Sophia Albert

Sophia Albert, 73, of Highland Avenue, Morningside, Waynesburg, died at 11:20 p.m., Monday, April 8, 1985, in the Greene County Memorial Hospital. She had been seriously ill for the past two days.

She was born May 11, 1911, in Waynesburg, a daughter of Sherwin and Penelope Eleferterios Albert.

Miss Albert had resided her entire life in Waynesburg. She owned and operated the family store, "Albert's Grocery" at Waynesburg R.D.4, retiring in 1976.

She was a member of St. George's Episcopal Church, the Ladies Auxiliary to Greene County Memorial Hospital, and the Lady Greene Rebecca Lodge No. 385 of Waynesburg.

Surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Louis (Helen) Georgalas of Parsippany, N.J.; Mrs. Ann Scott of Waynesburg; Mrs. Asa H. (Mary) Scott and Mrs. Raymond (Kathryn) Menni, both of Uniontown; three brothers, A.S. Albert of Canton, Ohio; George J. and Thomas B. Albert, both of Waynesburg; and several nieces and nephews.

A brother, Edward Albert, is deceased.

Charles N. Durbin

Charles N. Durbin, 73, of Cameron R.D.3, W.Va., died at 4 a.m. Monday, April 8, 1985, in Reynolds Memorial Hospital, Glen Dale, W.Va.

He was born December 28, 1911, in Wind Ridge, a son of Lawrence and Della Parsons Durbin.

Mr. Durbin was a retired operating engineer and a member of Local 825, Newark, N.J.

Surviving are his wife, Gladys Yost Durbin; six daughters, Dorothy Marie Finnegan, Mrs. Lewis (Wanda) Allman and Mrs. Melvin (Nancy) Rush, all of Cameron, Mrs. Edward (Jayne) Ross of Taunton, Mass., Mrs. Frank (Della) Mastromarino of Rockford, Ill., and Mrs. Floyd (Delores) Blake of Aliquippa; three sons, Charles (Duane) Durbin of Highstown, N.J., David Roy Durbin of Sherrard, W.Va., and Kermit Nelson Durbin of Moundsville, W.Va.; two sisters, Opal Chaplin of Glen Easton, W.Va., and Jessie Minton of Cameron, 21 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

A daughter, Kimberly Beth Durbin, died in 1968.

THOMAS F. BRZOZA

Brzoza Is Named Area Sales Rep

Thomas F. Brzoza has been named sales representative for the Ingersoll-Rand Mining Machine Group and will be covering western Pennsylvania from the company's Waynesburg office.

A native of Pittsburgh, Brzoza most recently held the position of operations supervisor for Yellow Freight System Inc., of McKees Rocks.

Prior to that, Brzoza played professional football for various teams in the National Football League, including the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cleveland Browns. He was an All-American collegiate football player at the University of Pittsburgh.

Brzoza holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

Ingersoll-Rand, headquartered in Bristol, Va., is a manufacturer and distributor of underground mining equipment.

6 Local Skaters Win Medals In Speed Contest

PITTSBURGH — Six members of the Valley Speed Team from the Waynesburg area won medals in a Tri-State Speed League competition held recently at the Spinning Wheels Roller Skating Rink in Castle Shannon.

Lil Grenz won a gold medal in the master ladies event and Tammy McCann took a gold in the classic ladies event.

Bronze medalists were Pam Freaze, master ladies; Michael Flinn, masters men; Dave Hartley, open "C" boys, and Brenda Lahew, medals in the sophomore ladies and sophomore, two-girl relay.

The next meet will be held from 5 a.m.-noon Sunday, April 14, at the Roll-R-Skate rink in Canonsburg.

BOWLING RESULTS

Three of the four matches in the Afternoon Tea League ended with shutout victories last week at Arbor Terrace Lanes.

Jean M. Barnhart paced the Flies in their blanking of the Gnats by rolling a 171 single and 471 series. Roxanne Magerko led the losers with a 145 single and 421 series.

The Wasps shutout the Ants behind the 175 single of Connie Vernon and 462 series of Dorothy Black. For the losing team, Judy Hartmann rolled a 144 single and Brenda Cole rolled a 393 series.

Mary Evosich rolled a 171 single and 461 series to lead the Spiders over the Bees. Edith Haines paced the losing effort with a 148 single and 420 series.

Karen Tanner rolled a 198 single and 471 series to pace the Fleas to a three-point win over the Hornets. The losers were paced by Erma Short's 145 single and 404 series.

BOWLING RESULTS

Mankey Engineering and Baily Insurance each won shutout victories in Monday Night Women's Bowling League action last week.

Cathy Brooks led the Mankey team with a 189 single and 459 series while the losing Tri-State Maintenance squad was paced by Tonya Patton who rolled a 149 high single and 412 series.

Chris Kerr's 205 single and Cindy Palmer's 522 series topped the Baily effort over Hopkins & Sons. For the losers, Bonnie Kiger rolled a 212 single and 579 series.

Humble & Sons and Mariner-Miliken Funeral Home split four points with Shirley Kerr leading the Humble team with a 186 single and 502 series. For the funeral home squad, Monaruth Tennant rolled a 210 single and Ruth Ann Blair, a 527 series.

BOWLING RESULTS

Greenway, Moose and American Legion teams each recorded four-game sweeps in Wednesday Night Ladies League bowling competition this week at Arbor Terrace Lanes, Waynesburg.

Carolyn Brown rolled at 246 high game and 573 high series as Greenway blanked the Jury Box, led by Nancy Hunter with 191-488.

Connie Morris had the 185 high game and Kay Mooney the 482 high series as the Moose shut out Barnharts, despite a 220-539 effort by Connie Morris.

Evelyn Adams turned in a 186-513 at the American Legion swept the Triangle, led by Nancy Simmons with 150-394.

hospital register

Greene Memorial

ADMISSIONS

Sara King, Waynesburg
Martha Moore, Waynesburg
Janice Berdine, Waynesburg
Edna Shaw, Waynesburg
Letta Sappington, Waynesburg
Kelly Chidester, Jefferson
Mike Pavlock, Clarksville
Margaret Vodney, Greensboro
Jessica Cobal, Waynesburg
Cherry Simmons, Waynesburg
Roberta Dugan, Waynesburg
James Elliott, Clarksville
Anna Mae Warnick, Perryopolis
Kathy Hopton, Carmichaels

DISCHARGES

Agnes Crouser, Waynesburg
James Ebbs, Waynesburg
Benjamin Famularo, Millsboro
Stacy Zuppan, Carmichaels
Jennifer Matthews, Waynesburg
Erin Tedrow, Wind Ridge
Patricia Shaffer, Waynesburg
Mike Pavlock, Clarksville
Chester Crouser Sr. Rices Landing
Elizabeth Stephenson, Waynesburg
Pamela Fuller, Waynesburg
Roberta Taylor, Rices Landing
Debbie Neel, Jefferson
Jason Geho, New Freeport
Hollis Carpenter, Wind Ridge
Sara King, Waynesburg
Donna Thompson, Sycamore
Ina Harris, Waynesburg
Elmer Piper, Clarksville

DISCHARGES

Clarinda Cox, Rogersville
Jodi Townsend and son, Carmichaels
Margarie Rinehart, Waynesburg
Martha Moore, Waynesburg
Kelly Chidester, Jefferson
Aldine McClelland, Waynesburg
Edna Shaw, Waynesburg
Anna Robinson, Clarksville

BORN

A daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hopton of Carmichaels, April 9, 1985.

Carmichaels Chamber Plans Dinner Dance

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Area Chamber of Commerce made final plans for its annual dinner dance at a meeting Monday evening in the Greene Academy building.

Clifford E. Jones of Harrisburg, president of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, will be the featured speaker. The dinner will be held at the Carmichaels fire hall Saturday, April 27.

Chairman Sara L. Ruth announced that this year's banquet will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Carmichaels Chamber and will be its 40th banquet. She said special recognition will be given to two of the Chamber's founders, Charles I. Donley and Richard E. Baily.

Baily's daughter, the Rev. Helen Baily Cochran of the Rehoboth Presbyterian Church in Belle Vernon, will give the invocation.

During the program, Stephen McCann will present the new booklet "The History of Carmichaels Businesses." He said the booklets are now being printed and will be on sale at the dinner for the first time. Many local residents have contributed information and old photographs for the publication, which will cost $10.

The event will begin at 5:30 p.m. with refreshments. Dinner will be served at 6:45 and the program will begin at 7:30, followed by dancing.

Miss Ruth announced that Sunday, April 14, will be the last day tickets can be purchased for the event. They are $13 a person and can be ordered by calling McCann at 966-5141, Betsy Baily at 966-2337 or James Clovis at 966-2839.

Following Monday's meeting, Chamber members and guests were entertained by U.S. Steel Affiliate Artist Joe McIntyre.

Following Monday's meeting, Chamber members and guests were entertained by U.S. Steel Affiliate Artist Joe McIntyre.

Following Monday's meeting, Chamber members and guests were entertained by U.S. Steel Affiliate Artist Joe McIntyre.

Following Monday's meeting, Chamber members and guests were entertained by U.S. Steel Affiliate Artist Joe McIntyre.

Blood Pressure Testing Offered

DRY TAVERN — Free blood pressure screenings and blood sugar tests will be offered to the public on Monday, April 15, at Southwestern Home Care and Dry Tavern Community Pharmacy.

Services will be provided from 9 a.m. to noon in the pharmacy, which is located on the lower level of Davis' IGA market in Dry Tavern.

Ruth Wade, RN, a staff nurse with Southwestern Home Care, advises persons wishing to have their blood sugar tested should not eat for six hours prior to the test.

More information is available by calling Southwestern Home Care's new toll-free number, 1-800-321-1131.

Doctor To Speak

WAYNESBURG — Dr. Mary Groda-Lewis followed a more atypical path to medical school than most: she went from reform school to a program called Upward Bound to college then finally to medical school.

Ms. Groda-Lewis describes herself as a rebellious, illiterate teenager; the Upward Bound Program eventually put her on the path to medical school.

She will speak on Saturday, April 13, at Waynesburg College to students and staff involved in the Upward Bound Program.

Her story is one of a rebellious teenager who could not read or write until she was 16 because of a moderate case of dyslexia.

Public Notices

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE

ESTATE OF HARRIET L. BELL late of Morgan Township Greene County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

Letters testamentary on the above named estate having been granted to the undersigned, notice is hereby given to all persons indebted to said estate to make immediate payment, and to those having claims against the same to present them properly authenticated, for settlement.

Esther B. Cordray R. D. #1 Clarksville, PA, 15322
Ralph K. Bell R. D. #1 Clarksville, PA, 15322
Executor

Pollock, Pollock & Thomas Attorneys 4-12, 19, 26

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE

Estate of Ruby Thompson Closser late of Jefferson Township Greene County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

Letters testamentary on the above named estate having been granted to the undersigned, notice is hereby given to all persons indebted to said estate to make immediate payment, and to those having claims against the same to present them properly authenticated, for settlement.

Cheryl Renner 525 East Lincoln Street Waynesburg, PA, 15370
Executrix

H. Terry Grimes Attorney 4-5, 12, 19

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE

ESTATE OF Mary Shriver of Waynesburg Borough of Greene County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

Letters of administration having been granted by the Register of Wills in and for Greene County, Pennsylvania, on the estate of the above named decedent, to the undersigned, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims or demands against the estate of said decedent, to make known the same; and all persons indebted to the said decedent are requested to make payment without delay to:

Martha Taylor Regan 1241 Cedar Boulevard St. Lebanon, PA, 15228
Administrator

William R. Davis, Esquire Attorney 4-5, 12, 19

Public Notices

LEGAL NOTICE

TO: MONTGOMERY, WILLIE LEE MONTGOMERY a/k/a WILLIAM MONTGOMERY, and EMALINE RUSE, THEIR HEIRS AND ASSIGNS.

TAKE NOTICE there has been filed in the Court of Common Pleas of Greene County, Pennsylvania at Civil Action in Equity, No. 1, 1985, a Complaint in Action to Quiet Title, in which Albert Luxner, by his Attorney in Fact, Thomas Luxner, and Eileen K. Luxner, his wife, are the Plaintiffs, and Baily Montgomery, Willie Lee Montgomery a/k/a William Montgomery, and Emaline Ruse, their heirs and assigns are the Defendants.

The Complaint requests the Court to enter a Decree that Albert Luxner, by his Attorney in Fact, Thomas Luxner, and Eileen K. Luxner, his wife, are the legal owners of the premises and lot located in Cumberland Township, Greene County, Pennsylvania, as described in Deed dated January 15, 1945 and recorded in Deed Book Vol. 416, Page 174 in the Recorder's Office of Greene County, Pennsylvania.

Whereupon said Court ordered that Friday, May 17, 1985 at 10:00 A.M., in the Court of Common Pleas of Greene County, Pennsylvania, be set as the time and date for hearing in this matter with notice upon the Defendants by advertisement.

If you wish to defend, you must enter a written appearance personally, or by attorney, and file your defenses or objections in writing with the Court. You are warned that if you fail to do so the case may proceed without you and a judgment may be entered against you with further notice for the relief requested by the Plaintiffs. You may lose money or property or other rights important to you.

YOU SHOULD TAKE THIS NOTICE TO YOUR LAWYER AT ONCE. IF YOU DO NOT HAVE A LAWYER OR CANNOT AFFORD ONE, GO TO OR TELEPHONE THE OFFICE SET FORTH BELOW TO FIND OUT WHERE YOU CAN GET LEGAL HELP.

OFFICE OF THE COURT ADMINISTRATOR LAW LIBRARY, COURT HOUSE, WAYNESBURG, PA, 15370. TELEPHONE: (412) 627-1171. DAVID C. HOOK, Esquire HOOK & HOOK, Fort Jackson Bldg., P.O. Box 792 Waynesburg, PA, 15370 3-22,29; 4-5,12

Public Notices

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE

Estate of PAUL BISKUP late of Cumberland Township Greene County, Pennsylvania, deceased.

Letters testamentary on the above named estate having been granted to the undersigned, notice is hereby given to all persons indebted to said estate to make immediate payment, and to those having claims against the same to present them properly authenticated, for settlement.

Paul David Biskup 24 Cartway Lane, East Bedford, New York 10506
Executor

THOMPSON AND BAILY Attorneys 4-5, 12, 19

CLASSIFIED

The Waynesburg Republican

Makes An Appropriate Gift For Everyone. A Gift Card Announces The Donor Mailed With Every Subscription

$26.00 A Year
$13.00 6 Months
$6.50 3 Months

Phone Waynesburg 652-2602
10-31-85

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

National Company looking for Satellite Antenna & Pay Phone Dealers. No Experience required. Complete Unit Prices $499 and Up. Retail $1,295. 24 Hours.

303-570-7800

EARN $400 TO $800 A WEEK — With our proven envelope program from home, no experience necessary. No obligation. Send Stamped self-addressed envelope to: Beckner, P. O. BOX 232, Evanston, IL, 60204.

PENNSYLVANIA LOTTERY

FOR 3 THE DOUGH

NEW $1 INSTANT GAME

Here's a game with the accent on dough. Cash, that is. It's 3 FOR THE DOUGH. The newest, $1 instant game from your Pennsylvania Lottery. It's a game with millions of players, millions of winners and lots of ways to win some dough. Up to $50,000, instantly. You could even win the grand prize: $1,000-a-week for the rest of your life ($1 million guaranteed).

Step right up to your Lottery retailer and play. Gently rub off the 5 covered spots on your 3 FOR THE DOUGH ticket. Then use any 3 numbers in any position to match a winning combination of 3 numbers. Find a winning match, and collect your dough.

Free-ticket winners must sign their tickets and claim them by a date to be determined to be eligible for entry in the grand-prize drawing. Ten grand-prize finalists will then be selected from claimed free-ticket winners. These finalists will then be eligible for the chance to win a grand prize of $1,000-a-week for life

FIND	WIN	APPROX. NO. OF WINN
------	-----	---------------------