Planning Commission Tables Action On Proposed Pizzeria

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Planning Commission deferred action April 22 on approving a site plan for a new pizzeria at the corner of North Morris and West Franklin streets in Waynesburg.

The application from Paul Callihan, an Ohio resident who plans to build a Domino's Pizza outlet, was tabled after County Planner Valerie Cole pointed out that the Waynesburg Zoning Board has scheduled a hearing for Monday, May 6, on an application for a borough zoning permit. At that time concerns being expressed by owners of adjoining properties will be addressed.

She also noted that where requirements of the borough zoning ordinance and the county land development ordinance overlap or conflict, the zoning ordinance takes precedence.

For these reasons, the planning commission will delay its review until after the zoning board has acted, and will schedule a special meeting to consider the application if action is needed before the board's May meeting.

Conditional approval was given on a site plan for a new headquarters building to be erected at the corner of East George and North Hudson streets in Carmichaels by Emergency Medical Transport Inc. The new one-story building would replace quarters the ambulance company now occupies on West George Street.

Final approval may be granted after a development agreement has been signed, U.S. Soil Conservation Corps recommendations have been addressed, and a statement of agreement has been obtained from the owner of an adjoining lot.

Donald and Ruth Ann Cowell of Waynesburg received final approval on a plan to carry out phase two of the Huntington Woods Development in Franklin Township, near the Greene Health Care Center. It involves construction of six additional units of town houses, starting in late May or early June.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was given a variance to defer planting of a buffer row of trees between its new church and adjoining residential lots until after construction of the church has begun.

Authorization was given to begin erection of the church in Franklin Township, near the Central Swimming Pool, upon presentation of road agreements with the township and approval by the Soil Conservation Service.

Plans were approved for construction of a 12-by-30 foot, two-story addition to the Calvary Baptist Church at Lippencott.

Mrs. Cole reported that all conditions required for construction of a Central Hardware Store in Morrisville by the Headlee Partnership had been met. She said authorization to start work on the building was given on April 3.

It was reported that staff members and the state Department of Environmental Resources had visited a site in Dunkard Township where the Southeastern Greene Community Health Center plans to erect a new headquarters building to replace its existing facilities at Greensboro and Bobtown. The property is located on 616 Spur, between Newtown and Poland Mines.

Mrs. Cole said that plans for the building will be submitted for review after they have been prepared.

The board reviewed an application by the Morgan Township supervisors for a Community Development grant of $45,000 from the Department of Community Affairs for laying an eight-inch water line to serve the village of Chartiers.

The 4,000-foot line would serve 30 customers and provide for the installation of four fire hydrants, giving the area fire protection that cannot be provided with the current three-inch line. The township and the Southwestern Pennsylvania Water Authority would provide labor and materials to make up the $15,000 in local financing for the $60,000 project.

Planning modules for a restaurant and a convenience store at Dry Tavern were reviewed and were approved with the stipulation that on-lot sewage treatment could be used until municipal facilities become available.

B.J.'s Restaurant will be erected by R.A. Matteucci on the site of a present drive-in restaurant on Route 188, while a convenience store is being planned by William Gallentine of Carmichaels for property adjoining Carney's Drive-In Restaurant on Route 88.

Hot Weather Fails To Stop Walk To Raise Lifeline Funds

WAYNESBURG — Temperatures were in the low 90s Sunday. It was a day to keep cool, not one to be out walking the hot city streets. Still, a group of between 80 and 90 persons, enduring the discomforting weather, hiked 2.3 miles through the streets of Waynesburg to raise money for the "Lifeline" emergency response system.

The event, sponsored by the Greene County Nurses Club and the Waynesburg College Student Nurses Association of Pennsylvania, brought in more than $3,000 in pledges.

According to Mary Parkinson, co-chairman of the event and member of the county nurses club, the money will be used to purchase the Lifeline units which are installed in the homes of the elderly and disabled and which enable them to call for help day or night at the touch of a button.

"We asked people all over Greene County to participate: fraternities, sororities, high school groups, churches and scouts," said Parkinson before the start of the walk. "Even Brave is going to send someone."

"As much money as we raise, we'll buy that many units," she said.

One of the units costs about $495. It includes a small transmitter that a person can carry with them around the home. By pushing a button on the transmitter, the person activates a unit connected to the telephone, which automatically dials the Emergency Response Center at Greene County Memorial Hospital.

The system was started in December and so far about five persons in the county are using it, said Parkinson. But there are many more who could use it, she said.

The service could be of benefit to anyone confined to the home, especially those who live alone, she said. Gauging from the number of people receiving meals on wheels from the Community Action Corp., there could be several hundred people in the county who are in need of such a service, she said.

Vo-Tech Panel Skips Action On New Budget

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Vocational-Technical School joint operating committee has approved many agenda items, but the proposed 1985-86 budget was not one of them.

Although the budget was discussed during an executive session prior to the regular meeting and the tentative budget was scheduled for vote, the board tabled the matter until the next meeting.

Also tabled was the tentative licensed practical nursing budget.

Approval was given for the 1985-86 school year which includes a two-week Christmas vacation. School will begin Aug. 26 and go through June 4.

Permission also was given for the vo-tech director to advertise for summer school teachers and a permanent math instructor.

Summer school will be offered in two sessions from June 10 through July 8 and July 9 through Aug. 12. Classes will be held for a 3:15 hour session in the morning and the afternoon at a cost of $65 per half-credit with a $5 lab fee. Textbooks will be supplied by the school.

Waynesburg Businessmen Sue Over Oil, Gas Leases

WAYNESBURG — A group of Waynesburg businessmen who own an interest in oil and gas leases in Washington, Fayette and Allegheny counties filed suit in Greene County Court Tuesday against the company that manages the leaseholds, claiming that it has failed to make any accounting of revenues received in the past 15 months.

The complaint, signed by Ewing B. Pollock of Waynesburg as president of MOB Inc., asks the court to terminate an operating agreement of Jan. 15, 1964, under which Oil and Gas Services Inc. of 103 East High Street, Waynesburg, is marketing gas from 137 wells — 119 in Washington County, 16 in Fayette County and two in Allegheny County.

MOB Inc. has a 4½ percent working interest in the wells.

The complaint states that Oil and Gas Services has failed to make an accounting to any working interest for revenues in excess of $320,232 it has received from the sale of gas as documented by bank records, an amount MOB claims does not include sales to Equitable Gas and to individual consumers.

"The respondent has negligently managed said leasehold estates in such a manner that the result may be the potential loss of one-half of the production from the leasehold estates . . . due to the respondent's cancellation of contracts, subsequent failure to market gas available from said leasehold estates, the consequent 'shut-in' of non-marketed wells, and the forfeiture of leases which may occur if such non-production continues," the complaint states.

It asks the court to:

- Terminate the Jan. 15, 1964 operating agreement.

- Replace Oil and Gas Services as operator by the appointment of Rob G. Rashman of Waynesburg, a consulting geologist, as substitute leasehold operator until further order of court.

- Appoint Waynesburg attorney Harry J. Cancelli to act as receiver of all funds generated from the sale of gas until further order of court.
- Direct the respondent to pay over to the receiver all funds in its possession and to authorize the receiver to accept payments for gas and enter into sales agreements for surplus and unsold gas.

- To direct Oil and Gas Services to file a detailed accounting of all revenues.

Competing For Grant

And The Winner Is Clarksville

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — Five communities in Greene County were competing for the county's allocation of 1984-1985 federal Community Development Block Grant funds.

With each community asking for nearly the entire allotment, which was about $250,000, it appeared that only one project would be funded.

It has been announced the money will go to Clarksville Borough. According to the state Department of Community Affairs, which administers the block grant program, Clarksville will receive $247,844 which will be used to rehabilitate about 32 homes. This money represents the county's 1984-1985 allotment of competitive, non-entitlement funds. Other communities that had applied for the money were Center Township, Morgan Township, Jefferson Township and Greensboro Borough.

Several communities in Greene County are also to receive funds through the grant program under the entitlement section. According to a DCA spokesman, the applications from Waynesburg Borough, Cumberland Township and Franklin Township have all received a deferred status. The three will have 45 days to correct problems or deficiencies in their applications and resubmit them, he said.

According to Clarksville Borough's application, the money will be used to make repairs on single-family dwellings. The repairs will focus on major problems, such as plumbing, wiring, heating or structural damage, said Rob Kuchar of Community Preservation Inc., which prepared the borough's grant application.

Residents eligible for grants to repair their homes will have to fall within income limits established by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development for its Section 8 program, said Kuchar. The limit for a single-person household is $12,800; for two persons, $14,650; and for four persons, $18,300.

Swimming Pools Will Be Open This Summer

WAYNESBURG — The swimming pools will be open this summer.

By a unanimous vote, the Greene County Commissioners, at their regular meeting Thursday morning, April 18, agreed to maintain and operate public pools at Carmichaels and Waynesburg.

Although board Chairman L.R. Santore said it had no bearing on the question, a petition with 328 names was presented to the board asking that the pools be opened this summer.

Santore opened the discussion by saying Greene County was fortunate to have five public swimming pools in such a small county. Besides the two county-operated pools, there are also pools at Waynesburg Central High School, Ryerson Station State Park and the Mon View pool which is largely supported by residents in Monongahela Township. "Neither Washington County nor Fayette County have county-supported pools," Santore added.

Santore then asked for the opinion of the other two commissioners.

Commissioner John Gardner said, "I will not vote to close the pools." Commissioner Dan Baily, noting the recreation department budget was reduced $54,000 this year and that was enough to ask, said, "The taxpayers are footing the bill and, despite a $40,000 loss, we can't close them. We must offer some recreation to the people."

Santore then questioned Baily about statements made during budget hearings last year. "Wasn't it your idea to look into the possibility of closing the pools?" Santore questioned.

Baily replied that he did suggest the possibility of perhaps Cumberland and Franklin townships taking over pool operation and said he also believed the commissioners should explore all areas for cost-cutting measures including the airport, fairground and other facilities.

Santore cited the operation of the Greensboro area pool at Mon View Park and noted taxpayers in that area supported the pool without county aid. "Why can't Cumberland and Franklin townships, with a firm tax base, do the same for the pools in their area? They are large townships and can afford it," Santore said.

In other action, Martin Nivereth representing the Soil Conservation Service in Greene County asked the commissioners to protest any possible federal budget cuts involved with Soil Conservation Service.

He cited the need for federal aid in Greene County and pointed to a 67-acre abandoned mine site which is burning. He said the site, which is a major pollutant of the county's largest watershed, would require well over $1 million to reclaim.

He also claimed, under this federal program, Greene County landowners receive technical assistance to manage some 150,000 acres of county land. Also, landowners are able to receive information on preserving natural resources.

By a unanimous vote, the board agreed to send letters to both state senators and Congressman Austin Murphy protesting any cutback in funding for the programs.

Santore Steps Down As Panel Chairman

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

WAYNESBURG — An angry L.R. (Butch) Santore stepped down as chairman of the Greene County Board of Commissioners Thursday, April 18, and vented most of his anger toward fellow Democrat Commissioner Dan Baily as the reason for resigning.

Santore, in a prepared statement, said he was very disappointed with his fellow commissioners for continuously notifying the press of their thoughts and decisions prior to meetings.

Santore, now entering his second year of a second term in office, made a motion to have Republican Commissioner John Gardner serve as chairman. Gardner seconded the motion and Commissioner Baily abstained from voting.

Gardner becomes the first minority commissioner in recent memory to chair the board.

In a prepared statement, Santore said, "I am very disappointed in my two colleagues in their method of notifying the press of their intentions of the pool problems prior to today's meeting."

During an interview following the meeting, Santore said most of the problems have resulted from Baily's failure to cooperate with him over the past several months.

Santore said he spends many hours in his office and even refused to take a vacation last year. "I haven't seen Baily for three weeks prior to today's meeting," Santore said.

Santore also cited a recent incident in which Baily was to contact local lawmakers in Harrisburg about a coal severance tax. "Baily told a newspaper reporter that through his efforts, Rep. H. William DeWeese had introduced a bill that was being endorsed by the United Mine Workers. I checked with Harrisburg and DeWeese and there is no truth to it. He (Baily) lied," Santore said.

Santore also chided Baily for not carrying through with a promise to contact the Cumberland Township supervisors about the possibility of the township taking over the county pool near Carmichaels. "He failed to accomplish the mission," Santore added.

Jim Harris, chairman of the Greene County Democrat Party, told reporters after the meeting, "It's a sad day for Democrats."

Harris said he was disappointed with the action taken at the commissioners' meeting and blamed most of the problems on Baily. "If he had done his job, we wouldn't have this problem," Harris said.

Saying he had nothing against the new chairman, Harris said Santore has tried hard and always worked for the betterment of the county.

When asked how this might affect the local Democrat party, Harris said, "It's not going to make things easier. It puts me in a precarious position and it's certainly not to the advantage of the party in Greene County."

Grange Week Observed In State

HARRISBURG — Citing the important role that Pennsylvania granges have played in the state's rich agricultural heritage, Gov. Dick Thornburgh proclaimed April 21-27 as "Pennsylvania State Grange Week."

The observance coincides with a celebration that spans all 41 grange states across the nation. Local grange chapters throughout the Commonwealth will celebrate Grange Week with mall exhibits, open house events, media events and other activities.

On the state level, the Pennsylvania State Grange will host members of the state general assembly for a legislative banquet on April 23 at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Camp Hill.

Grange members from across the state will stress the organization's legislative goals to their legislators, including curbing foreign investment in Pennsylvania agriculture; requiring deposits on all beverage bottles and cans; providing payment protection for poultry farmers; and taking measures to ensure rural clean water.

In designating Grange Week, Gov. Thornburgh said, "Since the grange was founded (in Pennsylvania) in 1873, its members have dedicated themselves to improving farming and rural life in the interest of all Pennsylvanians. Pennsylvania recognizes the important services provided by this grassroots organization.

"The grange maintains standards of productivity and patriotism to ensure that Pennsylvania agriculture keeps growing better and that rural America remains vibrant."

He urged citizens to join in celebrating Grange Week and recognizing the achievements and service of grange members to the Commonwealth.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is both the oldest and largest rural-farm organization in the state with over 42,000 members in 550 local chapters.

The grange was organized in 1867 as the first voice for farm concerns.

Central Greene Plans Registrations

WAYNESBURG — The Central Greene School District will be holding registration for kindergarten and first grade during the week of April 29.

Any child who will be five years old before Oct. 1, 1985, may attend kindergarten. Any child who will be six years old before Oct. 1, 1985, may attend first grade. A child who is now attending kindergarten is already registered for first grade and need not register again.

It is important to register children for kindergarten or first grade even if parents are not certain at this point that they will be sending their children to school, a district spokesman said.

The state requires parents to present a child's birth certificate and immunization records at the time of registration. Parents are asked to be certain to bring these records, because a child cannot be registered without them. The required immunizations for registration are as follows: three DPT's (baby shots), three polio, one rubella (three-day measles), one regular measles (10-day measles) and one mumps.

Parents with a child eligible for either kindergarten or first grade, are asked to be at the registration point nearest you on the dates below. In an attempt to avoid the long waiting lines of previous years, the East Franklin and East Ward parents will be scheduled to register at Waynesburg Central High School accordingly.

Waynesburg Central High School Auditorium — 8:30 a.m. to noon Monday, April 29, last name beginning with A through M; noon to 3 p.m., last name beginning with N through Z.

I've been trying to type a book I'm writing into my son's computer, and guess what. The computer made a mistake. It forgot to number the pages. I did my part - I told it to number the pages, and I told it to limit the pages to 55 lines. I even specified double-spacing. And I didn't notice, as I went along, that it forgot.

Well, at first I watched the page numbers. We were up to page nine, and doing very well, and then I got involved in thinking. That was my mistake. Suddenly, the computer started flashing. It said, "THIS PAGE IS TOO BIG."

Easy for you to say, I said to it. Then I noticed that the page certainly was too big. The computer clocked page 10 at about 300 lines.

I read the instructions about "re-pagination," and faithfully carried them out. "PLEASE WAIT," said the computer. It thought the situation over for a while, then said,

"THIS PAGE IS TOO BIG."

By the time we got it all straightened out, I knew what had happened to my column two weeks ago. Actually, I did not know that anything had happened to it until I received several early-morning phone calls. All the callers had the same question. "When did you ever work for the 'Stars and Stripes' in Tokyo?"

I did not try to answer that, since I find it rarely pays to answer irrational questions. In this case, however, the callers insisted that they had read in the Observer-Reporter that I had indeed worked for "Stars and Stripes" in Tokyo. Worse yet, they claimed I had written it myself.

One caller insisted that she knew it was my article because my picture accompanied it, and she wanted to know why I was writing lies.

When my paper finally arrived that day, I hurriedly turned to find my column and picture. I found it — a photo of a rather elderly person attired in a parka and Russian fur hat. The person was holding a big, ancient camera more or less in front of his/her face. This, I supposed, was the photo my friend insisted was of me.

Unfortunately, my friend did not look further, since under the photo was the caption, "Columnist Sandy Colton, now retired in the wilderness of the Adirondack mountains..."

I guess my friends felt they could swallow that, but they fondered on the whopper about "Stars and Stripes." And all that happened was that the story written by "columnist Sandy Colton" was printed under my heading, and mine under his. Probably nobody would have noticed the difference if he had not started bragging about being "chief photographer for Stars and Stripes" in Tokyo.

Under the headline, "Teaching Old

Photographers New Tricks," was printed yet another story about my train trip to Philadelphia. There was nothing in the story about old photographers, let alone about teaching them new tricks. Sandy, on the other hand, claimed (under my name) to have forgotten more about photography than most of us will ever know. I'm sure that's true, at least in my case, since my idea of taking a picture is to aim the camera, close one and sometimes both eyes, snap the shutter, and hope for the best.

Anyway, Sandy wanted to tell you that day that you shouldn't be afraid to try taking photographs. I only wanted to talk about my train trip, and, somehow, the twain met.

Our official excuse for all this is, I think, that the stories got mixed in the directory. In other words, the computer did it. I won't criticize it, though — it did get the pages numbered right.

Thoughtless Motorists Make Cleanup Necessary

For the seventh consecutive year scores of volunteers are getting ready to once again prove how thoughtless some of the traveling public can be in Pennsylvania.

It costs the state Department of Transportation an average of $900 a day to equip and pay a crew of five highway maintenance workers to pick up litter. It would be much more if not for the thousands of volunteer workers who take part in the annual "Keep Pennsylvania Beautiful" program which culminates Saturday, April 27.

Across the nation, about $500 million is spent annually by all levels of government to clean up the nation's roads, parks, streams and forests. State transportation departments spent in excess of $150 million to remove litter from the nation's roadways in 1984.

Pennsylvania's program has grown dramatically with 8,000 volunteers taking part in 1979 and 225,000 volunteers taking part last year. In 1984, these volunteers, from all walks of life, collected 45,000 tons of litter from along the highways.

Not only have local citizens responded with volunteer labor but many businesses have cooperated by offering prizes, food, patches, and other items in an effort to recognize a successful program.

Few realize that it would take Mother Nature one million years to rid the highway of a glass bottle. Decomposition rates for an aluminum can is 100 to 500 years; a foam cup, 10 to 20 years; paper products, two to three years and a banana peel, seven days to six months.

Not only does litter detract from the Commonwealth's beauty and cost the taxpayers many thousands of dollars, it also poses a health hazard. Litter can spread disease, injure citizens and kill livestock.

When you drive by one of the many volunteers along the highway this weekend, stop and think. You could have prevented much of this by keeping a litter bag in the car instead of tossing something out your window.

DeWeese Proposes Tougher Dog Law

HARRISBURG — The state's dog law will have a little more bite to it if legislation introduced by state Rep. Bill DeWeese of Waynesburg becomes law. Specifically, his measure (H.B. 180) provides stronger penalties for dog owners whose animals have injured or killed livestock, explained DeWeese. The bill also allows livestock owners to pursue civil action against the dog owners if the livestock owners feel they have received inadequate compensation for damages.

"Over the years I have received many reports from farmers in my district of dogs killing livestock, especially sheep," DeWeese said. "And I sympathize with them because damaged livestock to a farmer is like a chunk out of a paycheck. Not to mention the fact that dogs that run animals are more than a little bit wild and potentially dangerous in other ways, like rabies."

The Greene County legislator urged farmers in the district and around the state to contact the Pennsylvania Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers Association and similar organizations to urge that they organize their lobby efforts in support of the proposed legislation.

Carmichaels OKs Plans For EMT Headquarters

CARMICHAELS — Carmichaels Borough Council voted at a special meeting to send a letter to the Greene County Planning Commission expressing approval of plans by EMT Ambulance Inc., to build its new headquarters in the borough.

In the letter, council will give EMT permission to build at the corner of George and Hudson streets and to have an ambulance entrance on Hudson Street. The one-story, 65-by-38-foot building will include four 10-foot ambulance doors, dispatch room, office, sleeping quarters for ambulance personnel, laundry room and maintenance shop.

John Toth and Gene Manfredi, two EMT representatives, attended the meeting. Manfredi told council, the group has "considered the appearance of the building in relation to the neighborhood."

They further explained that the building will be a white, steel building with black shutters and will later be faced with brick. They said construction could start within two weeks or as soon as all approvals are obtained.

In other business, council failed to make an appointment to the Carmichaels-Cumberland Joint Sewer Authority due to confusion concerning what procedure to use in breaking a tie vote. At its last meeting, council had tied on votes to select a candidate.

Council President Betty Hudson said she would find out what the proper procedure is and the appointment would be announced later.

After an executive session, council voted to send a letter to suspended police officer Richard Owens asking him to return his police identification, badge and other borough property until his suspension is lifted.

Council members said this was part of its official action regarding the status of Owens' suspension. Council upheld Mayor Dorothy Helmick's suspension of Owens on April 9 and had voted to extend the suspension for six months. Owens has been accused of neglecting his duty and for disobeying orders.

Hudson named Roger Honsaker to chair the police committee. He will replace Paul Connor.

District Lawmaker Votes Are Tallied

How district lawmakers voted in Harrisburg:

HB 307 - Privately Owned Prisons
 Maybe private enterprise can run prisons more efficiently than government agencies. But by a vote of 163 to 34, Pennsylvania's House of Representatives said the Keystone state isn't ready to test that idea.

House Bill 307, sponsored by Rep. David R. Wright (D-Clarion) calls for a delay of up to a year in authorizing any private prison. During that period the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency is to study the subject and issue a report. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Representatives who voted for the year of delay included Peter Daley, William DeWeese, Roger Raymond Fischer, Victor Lescovitz and David Sweet.

Fredericktown Library Expands Its Services

By Suzanne Elliott, Staff Writer

FREDERICKTOWN — After 10 years of hard work, eight Fredericktown women are seeing their dream materialize — a borough library.

The Fredericktown Library Center has been in existence for seven months and is growing and getting stronger every day.

The library was the idea of Fredericktown resident Louise Crowthers, a retired school teacher who was active on the Citizens Library Board in Washington and who helped establish the county library system several years ago.

In the county system, all libraries in Washington County work as a unit. Taxes used for maintaining it come from the entire county.

"Areas like Fredericktown were being shortchanged because we did not have a library," Mrs. Crowthers said.

She was not the only Fredericktown resident who felt a community library was necessary, Mrs. Crowthers noted.

"We got together and looked into the requirements in starting a library," she said. "The state required that we have a paid librarian, money and a certain number of books. We knew we could not meet any of the requirements."

Despite initial reservations about participating in the county library system, the women realized it would also help them establish a library center for the community. The Fredericktown facility is called a center because it does not meet the state library specifications.

To be a center, however, it must be in operation 20 hours a week, and a sign designating the site as a library must be posted outside.

"Through the county system we were lent books and bookcases and provided with advice," Mrs. Crowthers said.

Citizens Library lends the center an assortment of 300 books every month, books chosen by the Washington library.

The Fredericktown commissioners donated a room for the center in the borough building. Volunteers donate service time, with each volunteer working one afternoon a week. Funds for the center come from donations and fund raisers.

"We have close to 2,000 books," Mrs. Crowthers said. "People also give us books, which helps."

 At its April meeting, Dunkard Township Grange honored Bald Hill School by adding it to its local Hall of Fame.

The one-room school house was honored at a visitation program held April 10 at the grange in Davistown. The Carmichaels Grange opened and closed the meeting.

Bald Hill School is one of the oldest standing school houses in the community. Columbus Henry and Mattie Fox, former teachers at the school, gave brief presentations. Three former students, Evelyn Raber, Gladys Menear and Ruth Zimmerman, also spoke.

The grange's program coincided with the 150th anniversary of free public school education, which was celebrated April 1. This year educators chose "Pennsylvania Education, a Tradition of Excellence" as its theme.

A comedy skit was presented by Bridget Ann Wade, a music teacher in the Central Greene School District. Carl Rudy, state Granger of the Year, and Janet Rudy, state Youth Ambassador, were present.

PLEASANT HOUR CLUB
 The Pleasant Hour Club met recently at the home of Mrs. B.M. Rich, with Mrs. Clarence Hickman as co-hostess.

The program was presented by Mary Parkinson who showed slides and talked about "Life Line," the new communications service which connects the hospital and any person living alone.

Mrs. William Miller, the president, conducted the business meeting.

More than 60 students in the sixth grade at Penn Pitt Elementary School toured the Greene County Courthouse under the guidance of Commissioner L.R. Santore and law librarian Wanda Smith last week. The students were told the duties of all the row offices. Teachers Bob Long, Tom Angeline, Diana Konchesky and Chris Spiker accompanied the students.

Michael Milinovich, son of Anne Marie Milinovich and the late Michael A. Milinovich, will graduate from the Baptist Christian College of Shreveport, La., with a bachelor of arts degree in Biblical Studies this month. He currently serves as pastor of the Christian Fellowship Center of Waynesburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Glidden and Mr. and Mrs. John Blosser have returned home after a week-long visit in the West Palm Beach, Fla. area. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eichenlaub have also returned home following a trip to Florida and a cruise in the Caribbean.

John Higgins of Smith Creek was awakened by strange noises this past Sunday and after searching all over the house for the source finally went outside and found the cause. A hot-air balloon was descending over his house and eventually make a forced landing practically in his yard. No one was injured and the ground crew quickly loaded the gear into a pickup truck and waved goodbye.

Sign painters must be making a fortune. The five candidates for Greene County judge have plastered yards, empty lots, highway berms and just about every available space with their election posters. Unlike years past, only the utility poles have escaped perhaps reflecting the stiff fines for using the poles for posters.

This past weekend was perhaps the most beautiful of the year with temperatures reaching the low 90s. There was a constant hum of lawn mowers all over the county.

Officials Review Financing For Sewage Treatment System

JEFFERSON — Officials from the five townships and boroughs that form Lower Ten Mile Joint Sewage Authority met Thursday, April 18, with authority members to review an agreement which will allow the authority to secure financing for its proposed sewage treatment system.

Under the agreement, the municipalities will consent to guarantee a $615,000 loan needed for interim financing and later a bond issue that will be used to finance construction.

The proposal had already received the approval of the solicitors for the five municipalities. The meeting Thursday was held to further explain the agreement to municipal officials. About 15 people attended the meeting.

Authority bond counsel Vic Lynch briefly went over the agreement, pointing out areas that had been changed as a result of consultation with the municipality's legal counsel.

One part of the agreement the municipal solicitors disagreed with involved a provision that forces municipalities to guarantee payment for customers who are delinquent in paying service charges. This provision was dropped from the agreement.

The amended agreement also includes a provision which says authority members will receive a $25 fee for each meeting they attend.

Under the proposal, the five municipalities agree to guarantee a portion of the $615,000 loan based on a formula established and approved by the municipalities when the authority began its feasibility plan. Clarksville Borough and Jefferson Borough will each guarantee one-twelfth of the $615,000; East Bethlehem Township, one-sixth; and Jefferson Township and Morgan Township, each one-sixth.

The formula that will be used to guarantee the bond issue will be based on the number of customers in each municipality. Under this formula, Clarksville Borough will guarantee 9.6 percent of the bond issue; Jefferson Borough, 12.8 percent; East Beth Township, 16 percent; Jefferson Township, 27.2 percent; and Morgan Township 34.4 percent.

It was noted that the municipal bodies would only have to put out any money for the loan and bond issue if the authority defaults on payments.

Authority members were asked if the initial tap-in fee would be a flat fee or one based on front footage and how service charges would be determined. The authority had planned to use a flat fee for a tap-in fee and has yet to decide how it will determine service charges.

One resident asked if any special rates will be used for a car wash or other business. Lynch told the resident if you give one group a break, it could only mean a higher rate for the rest.

The agreement package also included ordinances each municipality must adopt, saying they approve the agreement.

The project is estimated to cost $6.3 million. A grant from the Environmental Protection Agency which will cover 75 percent of eligible expenses.

Clarksville Gets Funds

Under these income limits, some people who are working could probably qualify, said Kuchar. The program will also be a benefit to retired people.

Kuchar noted that the DCA could still ask the borough to change any part of its project. He said residents will be given more information about the program, either through a public hearing or notices.

The borough has submitted grant applications without success for several years. The grant program used to be structured so communities could receive funds to conduct several projects over more than one year. The borough's earlier applications had asked for funds for storm sewers, housing rehabilitation and demolition of old buildings. It was changed to meet new DCA requirements. Despite the reduction in the program, Clarksville Borough Council President Porter Remington said he was still glad the borough received the grant.

"I think it will be good for the community," he said. "Some are pretty old houses."

Porter said a few of the houses might have been built more than 100 years ago.

The four communities that also applied for the grant and their projects are:

Greensboro Borough applied for $247,800 to install 3,100 feet of new six-inch water line and eight fire hydrants on Main Street, and to upgrade sidewalks and curbs.

Morgan Township applied for $245,000 to lay two miles of eight-inch water lines and install fire hydrants along Route 221 which would supply water to homes near Lippincott and Gateway Mine.

Center Township applied for a grant to install a water line to serve Rogersville, which is currently not connected to a water system.

Jefferson Township applied for $247,844 to begin the first phase of a sewage project for the Dry Tavern area.

According to DCA press secretary Barry Ernest, one of the reasons the applications from Center, Morgan and Jefferson townships were rejected was that they failed to sufficiently document how the projects would benefit low and moderate-income residents. The application from Greensboro Borough was considered "worthy," but did not demonstrate as much of a need as Clarksville, he said.

Officials of both Jefferson Township and Greensboro Borough were disappointed that their communities did not receive the grant.

"If the DCA grant wasn't there, the whole project is dead, at least for the present," said Charles Mitchell, a Jefferson Township supervisor. "I want to see sewage (system) down there. Lord knows, the people down there can't afford it."

Greensboro Borough Councilman Keith Drew said the water lines on Main Street are in such bad shape, he doesn't know if the borough will have time to wait until next year to apply for another grant.

"The water lines have to go in with or without the grant," he said. "How we're going to go about doing it, is another question."

Drew said residents usually are without water at least seven to 14 days out of the year because of breaks in the lines on Main Street. The water company has offered to install the lines if the borough will repair the sidewalks that will be torn up in the process, but it will still require a lot of money to do even that, said Drew.

The general assembly last year adopted legislation which changes the way block grant funds will be distributed. Next year, communities with populations of more than 4,000, which are considered economically distressed — Waynesburg Borough, Cumberland Township and Franklin Township — will receive a direct entitlement grant. The county will also receive an entitlement grant, which it must use in communities which aren't eligible for the direct entitlements.
