Police Department Becomes Campaign Issue In Primary

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Although no one will come out and say it in so many words, at least for the record, the future of the Waynesburg Borough police could depend on the outcome of this year's mayoral race.

Running for the Democratic nomination in the May 21 primary are Patrick J. (P.J.) McAndrews, a retired postal employee who is father-in-law of Police Chief Timothy Hawfield, and Kyle F. (Kelce) Eddy, a former lieutenant on the force who resigned in 1982 after 16 years of service to accept a position as a security guard at the Emerald mine in West Waynesburg.

For Eddy the major campaign issue is the family relationship between Hawfield and McAndrews, while for McAndrews it is potential for disruption of present police operations which would come with the election of a mayor viewed as antagonistic toward Hawfield and man who succeeded him as lieutenant, detective David Clark.

Eddy was one of five members of the force who unsuccessfully challenged Hawfield's election as chief in 1981 on the grounds that he did not have the required two years of consecutive service. All five had applied for the chief's position, with Eddy being the applicant with most seniority.

In September of 1982, shortly before his resignation, Eddy was demoted to patrolman by Mayor Roy Huffman for allegedly going to a firing range to practice shooting when he was the only member of the force on duty. The demotion was subsequently reversed by borough council on the grounds that the mayor had exceeded his authority and because there was a question of a possible misunderstanding over granting of permission for the visit to the range.

The borough code gives the mayor the authority to run the police department, particularly with regard to scheduling and assignment of duties. Huffman, who is not seeking re-election, has never exercised those powers, leaving it up to the police chief to run the department.

"I feel that we have a professional police department which is doing a good job and I don't feel I'm qualified to tell them how to do that job," Huffman said. "All I can do is make it easier for them to do their job and I have always tried to do so," he said.

McAndrews said that if elected he would operate on the same principle. "I'm satisfied with the job the police force is doing and don't want to run anyone," he said. "There are many other things I could do as mayor to serve the people and I would always be available."

Eddy readily admits that he plans to exercise the authority which the borough code gives the mayor to supervise the police department, noting that he feels his 16 years of experience on the force gives him the knowledge to make improvements. But he denies that he holds any grudges or is planning any ax jobs.

"I'm not after anybody's scalp, but I feel there can be changes made which would benefit the people," he said.

In his mind, though, the big issue is whether it would be proper for the police chief's father-in-law to serve as

Lions Club Honors Man Of The Year

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Lions Club honored Brice E. Blaker as its twenty-second Man of the Year at a banquet Friday evening at the Methodist Fellowship Hall in Carmichaels.

Lions Club President R. Oscar Hathaway presented a plaque to Blaker which read, "In honor and appreciation for the distinguished and meritorious service given to the community while serving with outstanding leadership and ability."

William C. Groves, speaker for the evening, spoke of Blaker's early life, the influence of his parents, the late Ewing and Grace Blaker, and of time spent on his grandfather's farm near Khedive.

"A farm gives you proper perspective on life in many ways. You build fences, you build buildings and you build character on a farm," Groves said.

"What is a man of the year?" Groves asked. "I believe that in honoring one member of our community, we are encouraging other members in the community, particularly our young people, to develop strength in their own character and personality. They can see their lives, not as a single thread, but as a part of the very fabric of our community. That is what I believe the man of the year is all about and Brice exemplifies this very well."

Blaker is married to the former Bonnie Hardy and they have a son, Brian. He has been a member of the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township

Rotary International Restates Goals

WAYNESBURG — Complete eradication of polio by the year 2005 is a goal which Rotary International has set for itself and its more than one million members, Waynesburg Rotarians were told recently.

The report on progress of Rotary's internationally acclaimed 3-H (Health-Hunger-Humanity) program was given by Rotary District 733 Gov. Joseph C. Duval when the Waynesburg club held its "Charter Presentation Day" program.

as a B-2 (business) district, adjoins an R-2 district on the opposite side of Franklin Street, but it was brought out that there is a mobile home court and a laundromat immediately across the street.

Calihan said 80 percent of the business would be deliveries to private homes, and 20 percent people who came to the shop to pick up pizza. There will be no eating accommodations on the premises.

Toothman raised the issue of the much-discussed DER ban on new sewer tap-ins in the borough, but the zoning board said that council had formally notified the developer that sewerage service was available and that any problems which might arise were the concern of the borough and the owner and did not affect the application for a zoning permit.

They also rejected the contention that the new business would greatly increase traffic hazards in the vicinity and Toothman's contention that borough council approval would have to be obtained before the permit could be granted.

At the start of the meeting, the board announced that it was rejecting the application for a permit by Richard Raymond to locate a ready-mix concrete plant in on property west of West Street, in the bottom adjoining the borough line.

The board ruled that the business did not qualify as light industry, for which the area is zoned, in that it did not meet a requirement of being free from dust, noise and any hazardous element. The hazard, they indicated, would lie in trucks accessing to the town hill on West High Street.

Lonnie L. Dusenberry, who is council representative on the zoning board, announced that he was resigning from the board at the close of the meeting.

"It has been brought to the board's attention that no member of the board can be an elected official of the municipality in which the zoning board exists," he said. "Therefore I must resign from the board in order to retain my position as a member of Waynesburg Borough Council."

Court Rules Against Borough

WAYNESBURG — A two-year-old Greene County Court order which voided the refuse hauling franchise awarded in 1981 by Waynesburg Borough has been sustained by the Commonwealth Court.

The state court, in an opinion handed down this week, agreed with the local court that the borough had acted capriciously and arbitrarily on Aug. 11, 1981, when it awarded the franchise to Long Trucking Co., Waynesburg R.D. 6.

In so doing, it ruled that borough council violated a requirement of the borough code which requires that where competitive bids are solicited, a municipality must award a contract to the lowest responsible bidder.

The Commonwealth Court, which reviewed the local court opinion on an appeal by the borough, sustained Judge Glenn Toothman's ruling that the borough must solicit new bids and award a new contract based on any bids received.

The action against the borough was initiated more than four years ago by Robert Dugan of Waynesburg, Volunteer Fire Company for 32 years, serving as engineer, second assistant chief and trustee. He was chairman of the building committee when the fire company moved to its new quarters.

As a member of the former Glades Presbyterian Church, he served as Sunday School secretary, deacon, trustee, elder and clerk of session. He was a member of the coordinating committee when the five Presbyterian churches of the area merged to form what is now known as the Greene Valley Reformed Presbyterian Church and has served there as an elder, deacon and choir member.

Blaker has donated his services as a carpenter to the renovation of the Greene Academy, to various churches and Flenniken Library. He constructed the cupola of the Academy building and installed it on the roof.

He is responsible for creating the Coal Bowl Trophy which is awarded annually to the winner of the Carmichaels Lions basketball tournament. He is a member of Masonic Lodge 459 of Masontown and Scottish Rite Lodges of Uniontown and Pittsburgh.

He is employed as a housing inspector for the Crucible Revitalization Project, and received an unexpected award from the Cumberland Township supervisors for his work. Groves, secretary of the board of supervisors, presented Blaker with a second plaque and explained the Crucible project involves the rehabilitation of 90 homes, the installation of sewer lines and the building of a treatment plant.

"When we were looking for someone to be in charge of this project," Groves said, "we knew we needed someone who is a good carpenter who knows his business and who has the right temperament to get along well with many people. We only thought of one person. It is not an easy job, and the supervisors wanted to thank him for his outstanding contributions to the Crucible program."

In accepting the awards, Blaker said, "I strongly believe that everyone has a talent, if they would just pursue it."

Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board Grants Variance To Funeral Home For Parking Lot

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The longstanding parking problem which has existed for property owners near the Mariner and Milliken Funeral Home in East Waynesburg could be relieved through a variance granted Monday night by the Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board.

The board also granted a conditional use permit for the location of a pizza parlor at the corner of Morris and Franklin Streets, refused a permit for construction of a concrete ready-mix plant in bottom land adjoining the western boundary of the borough, and was told by one of its members, Lonnie L. Dusenberry, that he must resign to retain his position as a member of Waynesburg Borough Council.

Following a lengthy discussion, the board granted a variance to permit development of a parking lot on College Street, opposite the Mariner and Milliken Funeral Home, with primary consideration being a petition signed by 58 property owners in the neighborhood who for more than 25 years have had problems because the only parking which has been available has been on the streets.

The approval was given with the condition that the owner, Samuel Milliken, take every reasonable measure to assure the privacy of the owners of properties immediately adjoining the lot, and on condition that borough council approve an agreement which has already been executed between Milliken and the borough solicitor. Such approval is required where the parking lot is to go in an area zoned for residential use.

Attorney William Davis, representing Milliken, said that plans are to purchase a house at 673 East College Street from the Ralph S. Jewell estate. The house would be torn down and a paved lot developed on the 180 by 60 foot lot to accommodate up to 36 automobiles.

Davis said that it will be landscaped and properly lighted and would be chained at night after the funeral home has been closed. "Every effort will be made to make it a credit to the neighborhood," he said.

Karen Heincemon and Mrs. John Ankom expressed concerns over the effect of the lot on the property values of their houses and on its effect on their privacy. Davis said that Milliken was willing to erect any type of fence they like along their property lines, and both women said, prior to granting of the variance, that they felt they could probably work out some sort of an agreement with Milliken which would satisfy them.

Following another lengthy discussion as part of a public hearing, the zoning board granted a conditional use permit to Paul L. Calihan of Marietta, Ohio, to permit him to erect a pizza business at the corner of North Morris and West Franklin Streets, on a vacant lot opposite the First Christian Church.

Principal objections were raised by Farley Toothman, one of the owners of a nearby apartment dwelling, who raised a number of issues relative to compliance with the borough zoning ordinance.

The property, which is designated

Remarks Met With Mixed Reaction

Consol Executive VP Expresses Opposition To Coal Severance Tax

WAYNESBURG — A Consolidation Coal Company official Friday, May 3, used a meeting of Greene County township officials as the forum for expressing opposition to a coal severance tax.

As spokesman for the company which currently is the county's major coal producer, Jarvis B. Cecil, Consol executive vice president for finance and corporate affairs, indicated that passage of such a tax could affect impact his company's plans for future mines in Greene County.

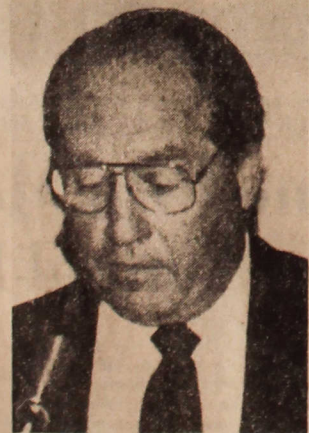

"Greene County does not have a monopoly on Pittsburgh Seam coal. Consol has large reserves we can develop in northern West Virginia and in the West Virginia panhandle," he said.

While he did not refer to it directly in his address, Cecil's remarks were directed at recent action by the Greene County Board of Commissioners in adopting a resolution favoring passage of state legislation which would permit the county to levy a severance tax on coal as a means of raising additional revenues.

The tax proposal was originally suggested by County Commissioner Dan Bailey and later received the support of Commissioner L.R. Santore as an alternative to a proposal he made for state legislation to raise the present 20-mill ceiling on county property tax levies. Commissioner John Gardner did not support the severance tax proposal.

Cecil pointed out that Greene County has reserves of 1.3 billion tons of clean, recoverable Pittsburgh Seam coal in the ground, which is enough to last 150 years at current production levels. He also noted that mining that coal employs people who become property owners, taxpayers, consumers, savers and investors, with increased employment meaning less demand for social services of the sort involved with poverty and unemployment.

"But having the coal is not enough to guarantee that Pittsburgh Seam coal in Greene County will be mined," he said. "More than anything, it needs to be competitive. There are more than 3,000 coal operators with mines in hundreds of counties in two dozen states who want to mine and sell their coal."

JARVIS B. CECIL

Noting that a severance tax of even a few cents a ton could be a determining amount on a company decision to either sell its coal or keep it in the ground, he added:

"What if Florida had a harvest tax on oranges, or Michigan a production tax on automobiles? What I am getting at is that if production is vital to an economy you don't want to tax it. Particularly when you don't have a monopoly on you product. And Greene County does not have a monopoly on Pittsburgh Seam coal."

The Consol official pointed out that the coal industry currently pays 43 percent of all taxes in Greene County with Consol's bill for school, township and county taxes in the county amounting to $1.8 million last year. Of that total, $140,000 came from the company's new Bailey Mine in Richhill Township and its associated reserves, a figure which will grow in the future.

Liberty: It's Something Special To Tammy Cross

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Tammy Cross had to be escorted to the podium by her supervising teacher, Virginia Hughes.

And when she got there, she produced a heavy cardboard-like sheet rather than the papers used by the other ninth grade speakers who read their essays on "What Liberty Means to Me" at Law Day ceremonies held Wednesday, May 1, in the Greene County courtroom.

But even though she is blind and had to use braille to read her essay, Miss Jones displayed the same poise shown by all of the high school contestants and it won her the $100 savings bond which went to the winner of the first annual Law Day essay contest sponsored by the Greene County Bar Association.

Her theme was the liberty she has found by being able to attend a public school rather than being institutionalized. (The complete text accompanies this story.)

Miss Cross is a sophomore at West Greene High School, where Mrs. Hughes said she is an honor student and one of the leaders of her class. She is a daughter of Bill and Janet Cross of Cameron Star Route, Waynesburg.

"We're very proud of her," they said after the program.

Attorney Deborah Gilbert, chairman of the Bar Association Law Day Committee, said that each of the five high schools in the county submitted the two best essays written by their students, from which a school winner was selected.

School winners, in addition to Miss Cross, were Phil Cook, Waynesburg Central High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cook of 256 Hawthorne Lane, Waynesburg; Jennifer Mawhinney, Carmichaels Area High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mawhinney of Waynesburg R.D.2; Amy Roberts, Jefferson Morgan High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Roberts of Rices Landing, and Chrissy Yoskovich, Mapletown High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Yoskovich of Dilliner R.D.1.

Following reading of their essays, students were presented with savings bonds by Judge Glenn Toothman, with each of the four runners-up receiving $50 bonds.

In remarks opening the program, Toothman noted that the theme of the 1985 national observance is "Liberty and Justice for All."

"Liberty was forged from revolution, wilderness and desolation for the primary purpose of giving men and women the ownership of their political souls," he said. "Liberty has been America's purpose and is today its major resource; its most valuable asset."

Bar Association President Mary Pruss pointed out that observance of Law Day, which was established in 1957 by President Dwight Eisenhower, has become a tradition in Greene County to embody "the ideals epitomized in the upraised torch of the Statue of Liberty which has greeted so many who have come to our shores to find freedom."

Robert Brenner, executive director of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Legal Aid Society, spoke of the many advances which have been made in the judicial system in recent years to make legal services and representation available to all people, regardless of their income.

"Part of the process and struggle of the law has been to transform the basic set of principles embodied in the Constitution into action," he said. "If some people are denied justice, it's going to effect the liberty which underlies it (the Constitution)."

A proclamation designating May 1 as Law Day was read by County Commissioner L.R. Santore, with a framed copy of the proclamation being presented to Mrs. Pruss.

Videoprinting Of Children Offered Saturday

WAYNESBURG — A group of local volunteers have again combined their resources to offer parents a way to help protect their children against abduction.

For the second year in a row, the group will give parents the opportunity of having a free "videoprint" made of their children. The videoprint can aid in the search of a missing child by providing the police and community with a complete picture of the child.

The program was started last year in response to the growing number of child abductions across the nation, said Nancy Guesman, one of the volunteers and manager of the video store, Video Down.

"Somebody has got to do something," she said. "Child abduction has become so common." She noted that recently there have been several cases in western Pennsylvania.

The videoprint program will not only provide police with a picture of a missing child, from which it can make posters, but also inform would-be abductors that people are taking steps to protect their children, she said.

Fingerprints are good for identifying children — "most of the time when it's too late," she said. "Hopefully, this (the videoprint program) will help stop it before it happens."

Mrs. Guesman said a videoprint can give police a more complete picture of a child than a still photograph. It can pick up the child's mannerisms, way of walking, birthmarks and other outstanding features, she said. A voice print will also be made; and information, such as dental and medical records, can be included with the consent form.

The video tape and other information about the child will be placed in the care of the Waynesburg Borough Police Department, said Mrs. Guesman. It will not be seen by anyone unless there is an emergency.

Children of all ages can be printed but they must be accompanied by a parent or guardian, who will be asked to sign the consent form.

Mrs. Guesman suggested that children over two who were printed last October, wait until next year to be printed again. The child's appearance does not change as rapidly once they reach that age, she explained.

The videoprinting will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 11, at Video Down, which is located at 1419 East High Street, Waynesburg, in the same building as R&H Cabinets.

The store is providing volunteers and the facilities for the video kid-prints. Students in the WRAP-TV video class at Waynesburg Central High School, under the direction of Mark McCurdy, will be doing the taping using the school's equipment.

The group offered the video prints to the public in October and made prints of 206 children. It hopes to hold a videoprint program each year.

The idea of the videoprint program grew out of the "Strong Kids, Safe Kids," videotape made by Henry "The Fonz" Winkler, said Mrs. Guesman.

The tape, which tells children how they can protect themselves from someone who may try to harm them, is available at the video store. It can be borrowed for 24 hours free of charge.

Employees Noted For Long Service

Three Greene County residents were among 25 employees of the Department of Transportation's District 12 honored for 25 or more years of service with the department at a luncheon at the Sun Porch Restaurant in Uniontown.

District Engineer John E. Claypool presented the certificates of service to Charles L. Reed of Waynesburg, transportation construction manager; George Yorko of Carmichaels, budget analyst, and William Galanko of Greensboro, a soils engineer.

Winning Law Day Essay In County

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following essay written by Tammy Cross, a sophomore at West Greene High School, won first prize in a county contest held by the Greene County Bar Association as part of the observance of Law Day 1985.

Liberty is freedom.

To me personally, liberty means the privilege to attend public school. It was not possible until a few years ago for handicapped children to attend public school. They were usually put into institutional schools that dealt with their own particular handicap.

Most of the time children had to live at the institutional school during the week because the schools were not close to their homes. They didn't have the liberty to live at home. Handicapped children had little family life.

When I was five years old, Cox Donehey School in Brownsville, Pa., began accepting blind students in the regular classes for grades one through six. They couldn't accept me because I was too young and was living in West Virginia.

My parents decided to sell their home and move to Pittsburgh, Pa., where I could attend Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind and still live at home. I attended kindergarten classes there for two years.

We then moved to Waynesburg and I attended Cox Donehey School for six years. Each day I rode in a van for over two hours. I didn't have the liberty to attend a local public school, but I was in public school.

Three years ago the West Greene Junior-Senior High School began accepting blind students. I'm the only totally blind student attending the school. I'm thankful that I now have the liberty of attending a local public school with other students from my own community.

I am a member of the Chorus and F.H.A. I can now attend pep rallies and after-school activities and be a real part of the school. It is really great to have friends I can talk to on the phone without it being long distance like it was when I attended Cox Donehey.

I'm also thankful I have the liberty of attending school with sighted students because everyday for the rest of my life I will be in contact with sighted people. I feel I will be a better contributing member of society because I've been given the liberty to attend public school instead of being institutionalized.

Liberty is truly a privilege.

Waynesburg College Presents Chemistry Visitation Program

WAYNESBURG — Students from 11 high schools in Fayette, Greene and Washington counties took part in this year's Chemistry Visitation Program at Waynesburg College.

The program is designed to help high school students learn about opportunities in chemistry and related fields. The program has been held annually at Waynesburg College for the past 15 years.

The program is sponsored by the student affiliate of the American Chemical Society, the Department of Chemistry and the Office of Admissions at the college.

Two visitation days were held this spring. During each, students and teachers from the high schools toured the laboratory facilities at the college, observed experiments conducted by students from the college and talked about various careers and applications in chemistry.

The high school students and teachers also toured the computer center and looked at some of the scientific applications of computers.

Dr. Robert B. LaCount, chairman of the Chemistry Department, said, "We look forward to giving the high school students a realistic view of a college chemistry program. The visitation program may help students decide whether chemistry is the right career field for them."

Among the demonstrations in the program were computer interfacing with laboratory equipment, optics and robotics. Members of the Chemistry Department faculty discussed the independent research projects they have been involved with, and explained some of the applications of the work.

LaCount said the visitation program "would not be possible without the help of the students at the college. They are involved in many kinds of research projects and classroom work, and yet they volunteer their time to tell high school students about their work and what careers may be open to them."

Approximately 250 students attended the two sessions. Students attended from Albert Gallatin, Bentworth, Burgettstown, Charleroi, Chartiers-Houston, Laurel Highlands, McGuffey, Ringgold, Uniontown, Waynesburg Central and West Greene high schools.

Electricity Seen As Friend And Foe

WAYNESBURG — Electricity is one of mankind's most useful energy sources and at the same time a potentially dangerous enemy. This was the message of a presentation given by Rotarian Dick Adamovich at the Waynesburg Rotary Club meeting.

Adamovich, a safety engineer with the West Penn Power Co., emphasized the dangers of electricity in his lecture and demonstration. He said his company "wages a continuous fight to safeguard the public."

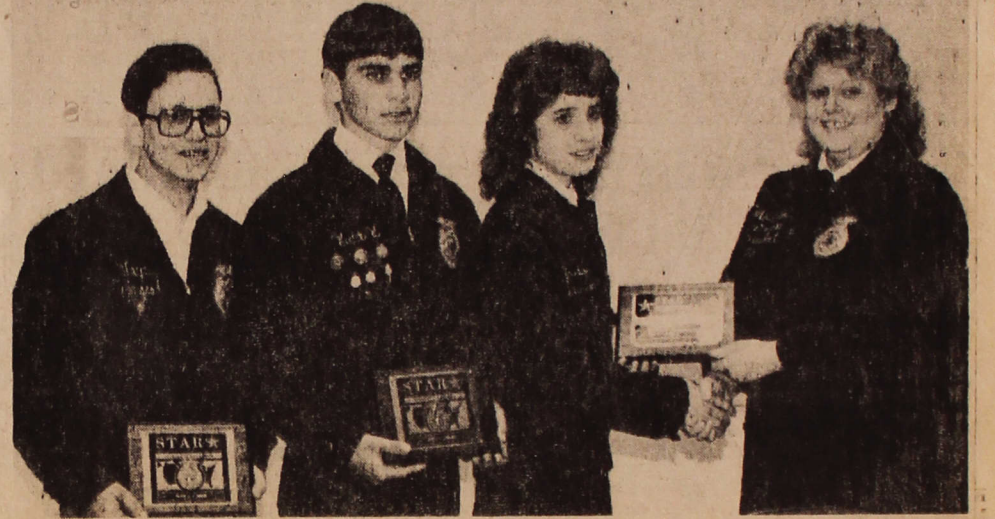

Using a six-foot scaled display, complete with transformer, utility poles, buildings, vehicles and people, Adamovich pointed out a series of potentially hazardous situations, which he said "can occur anywhere, and at any time, where electricity is found."

A control switch enabled the safety engineer to light up the display, which flashed and sparked as Adamovich demonstrated the hazards which can occur from contact with the electrical system.

He demonstrated a number of classic situations, many of them based on documented cases in which people come into contact with electricity and are injured or killed.

During the demonstration, Adamovich stressed the underlying theme of safety. Electricity seeks the ground and will head for it by any means available, he said.

West Greene FFA Members Honored At Annual Banquet

ROGERSVILLE — Students from the West Greene School District who are involved in the Future Farmers of America were honored Friday during the chapter's Annual Parent and Membership Banquet.

The chapter also recognized Mrs. Mary Jane Katchmark for the assistance she has offered the local chapter by naming her an honorary chapter member.

Mrs. Katchmark was presented the award by her son, Kurt, who is president of the local chapter and who received the chapter's 1985 DeKalb Award. The award is presented to the senior FFA member who has demonstrated exceptional leadership skills and scholastic achievement.

Star Awards were presented to three students. Joetta Denman, a ninth-grade FFA member, was presented the Star Greenhand Award, Kurt Katchmark was presented the Star Chapter Farmer Award and Wayne Livingood was presented the Star Agribusinessman Award.

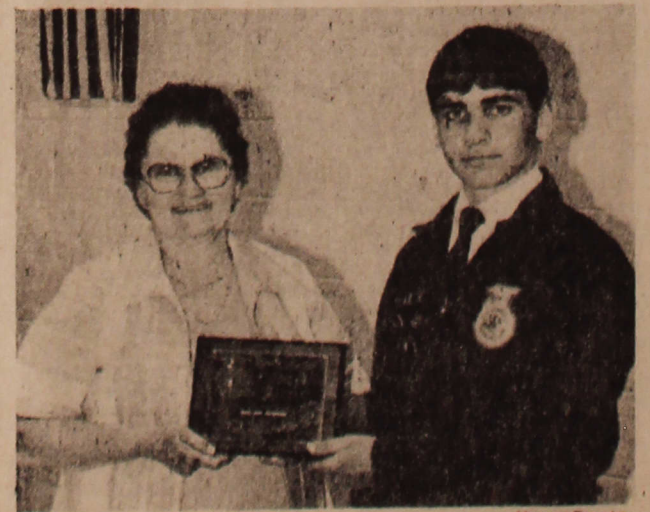

Several individual awards were also presented. Joyce Pettit, who is vice president of the chapter, received the Farm Credit Award, Robbie Helphenstine received the Salesmanship Award, Wayne Livingood received the Small Engines Award and Susie Hewitt, the Speaking Award.

During the banquet, students and members of the community who had received FFA awards at the county and state levels were also recognized.

Receiving recognition for winning awards for project books on the state level were Joyce Pettit, who won a gold award; Rob Parson and Ed Amos, who both won silver awards; and Jacob Courtwright, who won a bronze award.

The group also recognized Kurt Katchmark, who had received the Keystone Degree, and two members of the community, Charles Behm Jr. and Bradley Eisiminger, who had been presented Honorary Keystone Degrees. The Harvest Queen, Ann Kolb, was also introduced.

The guest speaker for the event was Kim Brownfield, the Western Pennsylvania regional vice president. The chapter's advisor is Byron Hughes.

Mary Jane Katchmark was presented an honorary chapter member award by her son, Kurt, chapter president.

Balloons Over Elementary School

Hundreds of balloons float over the Jefferson-Morgan Elementary School Wednesday afternoon, May 1, following a balloon-release sponsored by the PTO. Each balloon had an address tag on it and prizes for those balloons which travel the farthest will be awarded. The prizes will be awarded during the school's Spring Fair on May 18.

Waynesburg Administrator Named For Special Projects

WAYNESBURG — C.B. Stoy, whose service to Waynesburg College in the area of financial services spans 26 years, has been named to handle a series of special projects as part of the college's fund-raising and institutional advancement programs. This will include the identification and recruitment of new sources of voluntary support.

The announcement was made by Dr. J. Thomas Mills, college president. In making the announcement, Mills noted that Stoy will continue in his duties as vice president for business and finance.

"As Waynesburg College enters a critical period in terms of capital needs, annual fund giving and the Endowment Building Program, Mr. Stoy has enthusiastically accepted this new area of responsibility," Mills said.

Stoy, a Uniontown native, said he wants to do whatever possible to help Waynesburg College. "As a loyal alumnus, I have always been willing to do whatever is necessary to help Waynesburg College meet its challenges. I know that there are a number of special challenges facing the college and I hope that I will be able to utilize my financial background and experience in helping the college reach its goals."

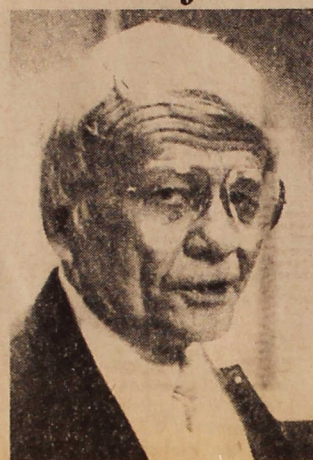

As vice president for business and finance, Stoy is responsible for accounting, building and grounds, security, labor relations and a host of other related duties. He serves the college on the Operations Committee, is a member of the Long Range Planning Task Force and works closely

Local Man Faces Burglary Charge

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg man was apprehended inside McDonald's Restaurant on Route 21 in Franklin Township Friday morning, May 3, according to state police.

State police arrested Donald Wayne Davis, 21, of Room 1, Triangle Hotel, Waynesburg, at 3:53 a.m.

Davis was arraigned on a charge of burglary before Magistrate John Watson and placed in the Greene County Jail, in lieu of $6,000 bond.

with the Finance and Property Committee of the Board of Trustees.

Stoy said the quality and commitment of the staff in departments he supervises are important factors in his ability to handle these additional projects.

"We have excellent people in those departments who are capable of working independently," he said. "They know what needs to be accomplished and we have established procedures to enable them to take the initiative."

His work in the development office as part of the institutional advancement team will be additional duties. This is indicative of the kind of commitment alumni, staff, faculty, friends and others must be willing to make to meet special challenges facing the college in the next decade, said Mills.

Life March Starts In Pittsburgh

The seventh annual Greater Pittsburgh March for Life will be held Saturday, May 11. The march will start at 10 a.m. at the Civic Arena and go down Fifth Avenue to Market Square where a rally will take place at 11 a.m.

The theme is "Stop the Pain of Abortion."

Cumberland Twp. Board To Hold Hearing May 27

The Cumberland Township Zoning Hearing Board has scheduled a hearing on a special use permit requested by Barbara Jones for the nursing home she operates at 561, Route 88.

The township zoning officer had denied Mrs. Jones a zoning permit, although the home is already in operation. The home is in a C-1 (commercial) district. According to the zoning ordinance, a nursing home in a C-1 district must have a special use permit. The hearing was scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, May 27.

In a realignment of zoning board officers due to the resignation of secretary Dave Katusa, chairman Emmett McKenzie appointed Wally Jackson Jr. as vice chairman; Zigmund Bokot, secretary; and Edward Begovich, assistant secretary.

McKenzie reported on a recent community planning and zoning workshop he and zoning officer Phil Donaldson attended in Pittsburgh. He said they were instructed that there should be a constant revision of the zoning ordinance, and that it is up to the zoning hearing board to incorporate decisions reached through board hearings into the ordinance as precedents.

The board decided to hold a workshop meeting on this subject with the township supervisors.

McKenzie reported that the board had no outstanding decisions and no other cases to be heard.

Donaldson reported that the following permits were issued to residents during April:

- Consolidation Coal Co. for a fan house on Route 559.
- Robert McWilliams for a mobile home in Route 21 Mobile Home Park.
- William Rankin for a mobile home in Route 21 Mobile Home Park.
- Joseph Bregan for a mobile home in Route 88 Mobile Home Park.
- Dennis M. Balogh for a patio at a house in Nemaacolin.
- Wanda Lee Vandenberg for an addition to a house on Route 88.
- Joseph and Brenda Stagers for an addition to house on McCann's Ferry Road.
- Audrey B. Davidson for a mobile home on Route 21.

Township Officials Are Told About Route 21's Future

WAYNESBURG — Widening of Route 21 through Morrisville to three lanes is scheduled to begin late this summer, according to a Department of Transportation official who spoke at the 70th annual convention of the Greene County Association of Township Officers.

The all-day convention held in Waynesburg included addresses by a number of officials and legislators, workshops, the election of officers, and a concluding banquet at the Waynesburg Moose Lodge.

Cumberland Township Supervisor William Groves, who has served as association president for the past two years, was succeeded by Harold F. Finnegan, a supervisor in Richhill Township. Morgan Township Supervisor George Handford was elected first vice president and Perry Township Supervisor Ronald Minor second vice president. Charles E. Tanner, a supervisor in Washington Township, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

William Beaumariage, assistant district superintendent for services in PennDOT District 12, said that work on Route 21 in Morrisville will include widening of the road from two lanes to three lanes between the Sugar Run Road intersection and the Foodland store. It will also include resurfacing, curbing and drainage.

"Widening the road should reduce a lot of the traffic congestion that has been a problem for so many years," he said.

Beaumariage also said that resurfacing of Route 21 between Khedive and Baily's Crossroads, of Route 188 from Jefferson to Dry Tavern, and of Route 18 from West Waynesburg to Sycamore should be completed by July. He also reported that the department has scheduled resurfacing of 75 miles of secondary roads in the county for this summer.

Blaine Everly, a member of District 12 Bureau of Municipal Services, said that an increasing number of Greene County townships are taking part in the state road turnback program, in which townships are taking over the maintenance of rural roads after they have been improved by the state.

To date, Perry, Jackson, Jefferson, Dummkard, Freeport and Wayne Townships, as well as Greensboro Borough, have signed up for the program to take over a total of 32 miles of road. As part of the program, they receive an annual allocation of $2,500 per mile from the state Liquid Fuels Tax fund for maintenance of the roads, as compared with the $1,100 per mile they receive for other roads on the township system.

The impact on township finances created by expected abolishment of the federal revenue sharing program in 1986 came in for a lot of attention at the meeting.

Keith Hite, a staff member of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors, noted that U.S. Rep. Austin J. Murphy is one of the leaders in the battle to retain the federal payments to local government, but that most observers feel "he faces an uphill battle."

Hite pointed out that revenue sharing has become a major factor in township government and said that he feels it is the best form of aid municipalities have since local officials make the decision on ways to use the money to best benefit their people.

Both State Sen. Barry Stout and Rep. Bill DeWeese discussed measures the state legislature is already considering to fill the gap if the program is canceled.

One of them is to earmark all revenues from PURDA (the state tax on public utilities) for distribution to local municipalities. At the present time, DeWeese said, some $125 million of the revenues go into the state general fund.

"The tax was intended as a source of revenue for local government when it was adopted," he said. "We estimate we would need about $220 million a year to plug the revenue sharing gap and this would be a start."

Stout reported that construction of a railroad overpass on Route 218 (Morgan Street) in Waynesburg is moving up in PennDOT priority, but that the administration is still dragging its heels on the Route 21 by-pass around Waynesburg. As a member of the Senate Transportation Committee he said he is working for both projects.

Judge Glenn Toothman, who spoke on the need for fiscal responsibility at all levels of government, noted that he was addressing the convention for the final time after doing so in each of the 20 years he has served as Greene County judge.

He was given a standing ovation, with President Groves thanking him for "the skill, dedication and integrity you have brought to the position of judge for the past 20 years."

Waynesburg Mayor Roy Huffman, who is serving the final year of a four-year term, gave the address of welcome, in which he asked association members to use whatever influence they might have to have it rain in Waynesburg on July 29 this year.

"It hasn't rained on Rain Day for the past three years, and I don't want to go down in history as 'No Rain Huffman,' the man who killed a Waynesburg tradition," he said.

Hospital Plans Special Events For Pennsylvania Nurse Week

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital, in recognition of Pennsylvania Nurse Week and National Nurse Day, will sponsor several events this week.

Pennsylvania Nurse Week is being observed for the 30th year beginning May 6, and Sunday, May 12, has been designated National Nurse Day. May 12 marks the 165th anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birthday.

Theme for the special week in Pennsylvania is "Pennsylvania Nurses...Credible Professionals Doing Incredible Jobs." There are 76,650 professional nurses in the state.

Nurses at Greene County Memorial Hospital are observing the week with special tents to be placed on patient meal trays, furnished by the local unit of the Pennsylvania Nurses Association.

On Thursday, May 9, a special program for hospital personnel featuring the video tape, "Nursing: Caring Is Our Profession," was offered. The video highlights registered nurses in a variety of health care work settings.

The videotape was shown May 9 to the hospital's Medical Careers Explorer Post 1290, along with a discussion by nursing personnel about the nursing career opportunities available to them.

The local unit of the Pennsylvania Nurses Association has once again challenged the hospital administration to a Bowl-A-Thon in recognition of Pennsylvania Nurse Week.

Success of Road Turnback Sign Of Professionalism

The Department of Transportation's rural road turnback program has caught on in Greene County.

After getting off to a slow start three years ago, the program to relinquish the maintenance of low-traffic roads to local municipalities has reached the point where the state is getting more applications from local townships than it can afford to fund.

William Beaumariage, PennDOT District 12 assistant engineer, reported at the convention last week of Greene County township officials that 24 miles of road have already been turned back to six townships and that applications have been approved for action on an additional eight miles in two townships in 1985-86.

It's reached the point where all available funding for the program is being used," he said.

Second class townships such as those in Greene County are getting most of these secondary highways, which are essentially small local roads which carry little traffic. They are a major problem for PennDOT since they make up about one-fourth of Pennsylvania's sprawling 55,000 mile system.

Most are narrow blacktop roads and most are in poor condition. They get little attention from the state because they are far down the list on maintenance priorities.

Under the turnback program, a municipality agrees to take over such a road after it has been placed in what they consider to be acceptable shape. The road is then added to the township system and the municipalities receive state gasoline tax dollars for its future maintenance.

As an incentive, the townships each year get $2,500 a mile for future maintenance of these roads, which is considerably higher than the $1,100 a mile they get for other township roads.

Beaumariage said, however, that the big factor in its success has been that townships are learning that PennDOT means it when it promises to restore the roads to good shape before handing them over.

"It's a matter of confidence, and the best advertising we are getting come from township supervisors who have become involved in the program," he said.

Such confidence has not always existed, and the fact that it now does is a testimonial to the new professionalism of the Department of Highways.

Beneficiaries of the program are the motorists who have to use these roads. They might not carry much traffic, but those who drive them regularly must certainly appreciate the new attention they are getting.

SCENES FROM THE PAST

Do You Recognize Them?

It's hard to believe, but this would have been the scene near the turn of the century if you were standing at the intersection of High and Washington streets looking north toward the college. The only thing familiar in the picture to most of us is Hanna Hall far in the distance.

by marcia mckenna biddle

I recently read an item of interest in the bridge column written by Charles Goren and Omar Sharif. They claimed that the Mexican government has taken to subsidizing the Mexican bridge team, sending its members to tournaments all over the world. And paying their way.

This news created a sensation among members of my bridge club. "We could do it!" they cried. "We could become the official American bridge team, and then the government would pay our way to Honolulu and Vienna and who knows where else."

"We would be famous, and Gorden and Sharif would write about us!"

"Better still," somebody said, "we would meet Omar Sharif!"

We decided to go for it.

But we weren't sure what steps to take first. "We don't want to try to international champions, role models for the world of bridge, should attempt to refrain from making. The list grew, and grew. It included:

"Was that a short club bid?"

"Oh, is it my turn to bid?"

"Was that a pre-empt, or did you mean to bid two instead of three?"

"I wish I'd get some face cards, for once."

"Can I change my lead?"

"You're going to kill me when you see my hand."

"Oh, sorry, I pulled the wrong card."

"Are you sure you don't have any clubs left?"

"Oh, did I say hearts? I meant to say spades."

Well, the list went on, and the practice proceeded rapidly. It was, in fact, intense. And we expect Omar to call us any day now.

work our way up through the amateur ranks," somebody said. "That would take too much time."

So we decided the best thing to do would be to make a big splash by winning a major national tournament, and go on from there.

"We'll have to start practicing every day," one person said.

"We can make that sacrifice," said another. "And when we make it big, the government will pay us enough to hire cooks and housekeepers."

"And hairdressers, I hope," said somebody else. "I can't meet Omar Sharif with my hair looking like this!"

So we started practicing. But that's when the trouble started.

"You can't say that any more!" somebody shouted at one table.

When the uproar died down, it appeared that one person had said, "Did I deal this mess?"

The culprit finally had to admit that both Charles and Omar would frown on such questions, and promised not to do it again.

But then another disturbance erupted at the other table, when somebody asked, "What's trump?"

"The hand's half over, and she asks me what's trump," growled her partner. "How are we going to win the world championship if she can't remember that much?"

The atmosphere of this normally friendly game was beginning to turn a little sour. The prospects of fame and fortune were fraying our nerves. We agreed to calm down.

We also agreed to make a list of comments that we, as potential in-

LETTERBOX

It's A Contract, But Is It From UMW?

After traveling throughout the many mine portals in District 4, I find that UMWA miners are confused about the face-to-face agreement that Joe Monovich made with the owner of L&J. Since the pickets were removed many believe that a UMWA contract had been reached. This is not so.

For the first time in the history of the United Mine Workers our International Representative has secured jobs for miners at a non-union mine. This agreement called for the return to work of four miners from the picket line. What about the other eight miners who faithfully served the picket line for 20 months? They and their families have nothing now — no job and no strike fund which has surely created a financial hardship on them.

These men could have been working for the past 20 months but instead voted to join the UMWA. Due to an election protest the National Labor Relations Board has to decide the outcome.

Since the return to work of the four men who served on the picket line, they have put up with all types of harassment — tires being slashed, trucks vandalized, and they even went so far as to put a decayed dead animal in the vehicle of one of the men. What are Tom Rabbitt and Joe Monovich, the two people responsible for overseeing the organizing, doing to protect these men?

I personally feel that the picket line at the bridge should have remained there until the NLRB rendered their decision. This could have prevented the harassment now taking place at the strip. This would have also eliminated the hardship now imposed on the other eight pickets and their families.

As a member of the United Mine Workers for many years and also as a candidate in the election, I have found nothing in the International Constitution that prohibits a member of our union from expressing their opinions, especially when the opinion expressed would be very informative to the membership of the UMWA.

Also, President Trumka sent a letter to each candidate in this election stating that they should run on his or her own merit. Yet Mr. Rabbitt and Mr. Monovich are repeatedly stating that the members of "The Action Team" are not supporting Mr. Trumka. John Burich and Dave Menhart along with the other members of this team were some of the most active supporters of the "Why Not The Best" slate when President Trumka was elected.

Great Day For Special Olympics

We, the organizers of the Greene County Special Olympics, would like to extend our deepest gratitude to all who made our tag-day fund-raiser a success. Thank you, the members of the Jefferson-Morgan National Honor Society, who volunteered at various sites in the county to operate tag-day.

Thanks to the managers of the Rices Landing Gallatin Bank, First National Bank of Carmichaels and the Waynesburg Shop-N-Save, who allowed us to raise funds at their businesses.

Most of all, our deepest appreciation is extended to the people of Greene County who donated so generously. You are the people who make Special Olympics possible. Thank you for being a vital part of our organization.

During Kramer's eight-week training program, he studied general military subjects, designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training.

SENIORS MEET

The Senior Citizens of Bobtown held their monthly meeting Tuesday at the Shannopin Civic Club. President Ann Novak presided.

There were 38 people in attendance. Charles Morris, a candidate for Greene County judge, was the guest speaker. The event also was marked by a dinner and entertainment.

It was announced that those who plan to attend the Senior Citizens Banquet at the Hilton Hotel in Pittsburgh on June 2 should contact the president immediately. Only a limited number of reservations are available. Transportation to the dinner is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Those observing birthdays in May are Grace Davidson, Millie Novak, Mary Skvarch, Margaret Zelina and Helen Bierer.

The prize, a clock, was won by Ann Gasti; the door prize went to Grace Gould.

The next meeting will be held on May 14. Lunch will be served at noon.

It was noted that the Ladies Auxiliary of the Greensboro-Monongahela Township Volunteer Fire Department will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, May 13, instead of May 20.

Police Sponsor Country-Western Show

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg Police Association will sponsor a country-western show on Saturday, July 27, at the Greene County Fairgrounds.

Headliners include Tommy Cash and the Tomcats, Freddie Hart and Jan Howard.

Representatives of Tessier Talent Inc. have established an office in Waynesburg and are currently contacting businesses and individuals about a ticket package.

Tommy Cash, like his famous brother Johnny, is a major figure in the industry. His "Six White Horses" sold over a million copies.

Freddie Hart has had 17 albums. His record "Easy Loving" was number one on the country charts. This song is the only one in the history of the Country Music Association to be named best song, best entertainer, top male vocalist, best album and best record.

Jan Howard has had three songs rated number one on the charts including, "Evil On Your Mind," "For Loving You," and "Bad Seed." She was a regular member of the Grand Ole Opry for 12 years and a member of the Johnny Cash show for four years. She later joined Tammy Wynette and Bill Anderson on their television shows.

Tommy Cash and The Tomcats will be featured in a country-western show July 27.

Spring Voter Signup Surpasses 19,000

WAYNESBURG — For the first time in many years, Greene County will have more than 19,000 registered voters eligible to go to the polls in a primary election.

The 19,310 residents on the voting rolls for the May 20 primary also exceeds the 18,865 who were signed up for the presidential election last November, making it the first time within memory that the spring registration has exceeded that of the preceding fall.

Betty Ray, chief registration clerk for the county, attributed the development primarily to the relatively small number of voter names removed from the rolls this January for failure to vote within the past two years.

"We had just 609 voters who failed to meet the requirement to vote at least once every two years to keep their registrations active. That's less than half the number we generally get," she said, adding that a major factor was the unusually heavy turnout for the presidential election.

In addition to the 609 names removed for non-voting, the rolls were further depleted by 106 deaths and by 97 cancellations by people who have moved from the county.

The loss was more than offset, however, by 1,257 new registrations received since the November election. Of these, 996 signed up as Democrats, 228 as Republicans and 33 as Independents.

Totals for the county now show 15,160 Democrats (a gain of 487 since November), 3,754 Republicans (a gain of 39) and 424 Independents (a gain of 30). The county also has two members of the Constitutional Party and two persons enrolled as having "no party" affiliation.

Deadline for registering for the primary election was April 22. The rolls will now remain closed until after election has been held.

Morgan Twp. Awarded $12,000, May Get More

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County municipality has been awarded $12,000, with the possibility of more to come, for damage done to one of its roads by a heavy crane.

The Greene County Court, following a non-jury trial, awarded the damages to Morgan Township as compensation for damage done almost two years ago by a crane owned by Falcon Crane and Rigging Inc. of Uniontown.

The township lawsuit claimed that an 18-wheel crane owned by the defendant was driven without permission over Township Route 595 on July 12, 1983, demolishing the road surface for a distance of nearly 1 1/4 miles and damaging a bridge to the point where a wingwall later collapsed.

The township supervisors claimed that the action forced extensive repairs to the section of road between Route 221, near Lippencott, and a point near the Brown's Run Air Shaft near the Washington County line.

The company denied that one of its cranes damaged the road.

In addition to awarding the township the $12,000 to compensate it for the cost of repairs, the court reserved the possibility of awarding additional punitive damages later. The township asked for punitive damages on the grounds that the defendant had flagrantly ignored a township ordinance which sets a 10-ton weight limit on the road, claiming that the crane was "far in excess" of the legal limit.

The court also granted the defendants time in which to file post-trial motions.

Coal Company Gives Money To PSU From Project Award

WAYNESBURG — A $5,000 grant has been made to Pennsylvania State University by an award-winning Consolidation Coal Co. team honored for environmental protection work performed at the company's Bailey mine in Greene County.

The Consol team won the Conoco Chairman's Environmental Conservation Award for 1984. As part of the award, the team was authorized to designate a college or university to receive a $5,000 grant.

The team consisted of senior civil engineers Andrew Gorun and Richard A. Weaver; Bailey mine project manager Donald P. Keel, and Jonathan M. Pachter, manager-environmental permits. The team received the award for nearly four years of innovative design engineering and environmental planning and execution which went into construction of Bailey No.1 mine in Richhill Township, near Enon. The mine is operated by Consol Pennsylvania Coal Co., a subsidiary of Consol.

The team elected to present the $5,000 grant to Penn State's Maurice K. Goddard, Chair for Professor of Forestry and Environmental Resource Conservation.

"It is Consol's hope that this grant be used to fund work being done to help resolve those conflicts which often occur between energy development and the environment," team member Jonathan Pachter said in presenting the grant to the university.

Death Was Accidental

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Coroner Frank Behm said Tuesday that a head injury caused the death of a Washington County man who was involved in a motorcycle race accident at Mt. Morris Sunday afternoon. James T. Nye, 21, of 124 Lincoln Street, Cokeburg, died at 5:40 p.m. Monday in West Virginia University Hospital, Morgantown.

Behm said that Nye, an experienced racer, was taking part in a sanctioned race at the Mt. Morris Motorcross track near Mt. Morris when he missed one of the jumps.

"Apparently he went over the handlebars and the bike came down on top of him," Behm said.

He added that his preliminary investigation indicates that the raceway had emergency medical technicians and an ambulance at the track. The technicians administered emergency aid and took Nye to the hospital.

"So far as I can learn so far, he was wearing a helmet and all safety precautions were being met," the coroner said. "The investigation isn't complete but at this point it looks like one of those tragic accidents."

Divorce Granted

WAYNESBURG — Rebecca Lynn Patterson Collins of Waynesburg was granted a divorce from Howard Stanton Collins Jr. of Pittsburgh in a final decree handed down Tuesday by the Greene County Court.

They were married July 23, 1983. There are no children.

Estate Planning Seminar May 18

WAYNESBURG — A wills clinic and estate planning seminar will be a part of this year's Alumni Day activities at Waynesburg College to be held from 2:30-4 p.m. Saturday, May 18, in McCance Auditorium in the Buhl Humanities Building.
Harry J. Mahr, a vice president at the Mellon Bank Center, will conduct the seminar. Mahr previously conducted a wills clinic and estate planning seminar at the college last November.

The program is being held for trustees, alumni directors, faculty, staff and interested alumni and friends of the college.

Dr. J.E. Victor Carlson, who is coordinating the Endowment Building Program at the college, said participants will be able to get answers to questions of general interest, as well as answers to specific questions.

Hospital Contest Winners Named

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Memorial Hospital has announced the winners of a contest held in March during the observance of National Nutrition Month.

The contest for fourth grade students in each of the county's elementary schools was held as part of the community education element of the month-long education and awareness program held for the hospital staff by its Dietary Department.

Students submitted original posters on the theme "Food, It Even Sounds Nutritious." All posters were hung in the hospital dining room throughout March. First, second and third place winners from each school district received "Four for Fitness" T-shirts and frisbees.

School district winners, listed in the order in which they placed:
Carmichaels Area — Shannon Henry, Matthew Zabrosy, Amy

Prescock.
Central Greene — Paula Ruse, Jason Beyer, Stefanie Morosky.
Jefferson-Morgan — Emily Dorean, Julie Reggan, Tommy Viencsek.
Southeastern Greene — Eric Bixler, Steven Halbert, John Morecraft.
West Greene — Amy Brezovsky, Amie Wise, Crystal Bennington.

Police Dept. Becomes Issue In Primary

mayor, since the mayor is the official who considers any grievances or complaints filed by a member of the force.

"I don't think it would be possible for a patrolman to get a fair shake under those conditions," he said.

He also said that he did not take out a petition to run for mayor until McAndrews filed as a candidate.

"People had asked me to run but I really had no intention of doing so until I read in the newspapers that P.J. had filed," he said.

McAndrews, on the other hand, said that he only decided to run because he heard Eddy was going to be a candidate.

"Somebody told me at the post office that Eddy was planning to run for the office and that's when I decided I should run," he said.

Hawfield said that in his opinion the police department has come a long way toward professionalism since 1980.

"I'm not saying there isn't room for improvement and if anyone has suggestions on how to make them I'm glad to get them," he said. "But if you'll look at the record you'll find that in relation to the size of the department arrests for drunken driving have increased, officers are spending more time on patrol, the number of incidents being investigated have increased, and supervision has improved."

He pointed out that there were 11 people in the department in 1979-80 while there are just seven members on the force now, one less than the complement, with one of them being away for training.

"Within the constraints of our financing, I feel we are doing a very good job," he said.

He cited the much-publicized drug investigation conducted by Clark as one example of the department's ability to maintain a lengthy and complex investigation without having to resort to a request for outside assistance, as was often done in past years.

"We feel confident of our ability to handle just about any type of case without putting a strain on the budget," he said.

He also said that he feels the department's image has been greatly improved with a new emphasis on community service through presenting programs on such things as drugs, child abuse, public safety and crime prevention.

With regard to having his father-in-law as mayor and the possible conflict it would create if a member of his force had a grievance, he said that he would expect no special consideration from McAndrews and also pointed out that if the grievance was not resolved by the mayor the patrolman would have the right of appeal to council.

"But you might also consider that if the mayor upholds a patrolman's grievance it ends there," he said.

New Drafting Computer

The drafting program at the Greene County Vo-Tech School recently added a Computer-aided Drafting (CAD) System. The computer updates the drafting program with current trends in industry and is advanced enough for advanced or adult training. Students trained on the CAD System will enter the job market qualified for all types of drafting work. Keith Main, one of the students in the drafting program, is pictured using the new CAD System. Standing behind are instructor Thomas Gottschalk and student Carol Landman.
