Emerald Mines' New Shaft Plans Are Reviewed

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Emerald Mines Corp.'s plan to build a new shaft and portal for its Emerald Mine in West Waynesburg was reviewed recently by the Greene County Planning Commission.

The commission approved plans for a package sewage treatment plant that will serve the bathroom to be erected at the site, which is designated No. 4 air shaft and portal.

County Planner Valerie Cole said the new facility will be located just east of the intersection of Franklin Township Routes 508 and 487, some two miles south of Waynesburg. When completed, it will serve as the mine entry for 405 employees who now enter the mine at the No. 1 portal.

In other action, the planning commission approved a lot split which will enable the West Penn Power Co. to purchase 3.3 acres of land in Cumberland Township from Thomas Robertson. The land will be used for the erection of a new substation to upgrade electrical service in the Carmichaels area.

A 25 kilovolt line will service the station, which will be built south of Carmichaels between Route 88 and the Nemaconin road. Mrs. Cole said she was informed that West Penn, as a utility, was exempt from township zoning regulations.

One year after he was granted conditional approval for the erection of a car washing facility in West Waynesburg, Richard Scott of Waynesburg received final approval. Construction of the car wash has been delayed by the ban on new sewer taps into the Waynesburg Borough plant, which serves West Waynesburg.

Mrs. Cole said Scott has been notified that he will be issued a permit from the state Department of Environmental Resources for a package treatment plant that he will build to process waste water from the facility, making it unnecessary for him to connect to the borough system.

The commission reviewed plans from the state Department of Transportation to use the Interstate 79 bridge over Route 30109 at the Mt. Morris interchange for the testing of four new kinds of surfacing materials.

Mrs. Cole said the test will cost an estimated $600,000, of which 90 percent will come from the federal government.

Charles J. Behm III of Wind Ridge received approval for the development of Green Acres Subdivision in Richhill Township.

His plans call for the division of a 56-acre tract on Township Route 350 into four lots of 10 acres or more. The subdivision will contain no interior roads.

Plans by William McCormick for creation of a subdivision in Morgan Township were tabled pending receipt of additional information. He plans to subdivide 47 acres of land into four lots of 10 acres or more and two lots of two acres or more. The property is in Mather.

Sketch plans for a Country Convenience Store in Dry Tavern were given preliminary review, but no action was taken. They were submitted by the developer, William Gallentine of Carmichaels.

Mrs. Cole presented a proposal by the Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board for a new fee schedule for permits it issues. She explained the state planning code requires county planning commission review when changes are made to a municipal zoning ordinance.

The board made no comment on the proposal, indicating that it felt that setting of fees was the prerogative of the municipality.

Fire Kills Family Of Four

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

ROGERSVILLE — Two brothers and two sisters died Wednesday night, June 19, in Greene County's most disastrous fire in 60 years. State police and firemen listed lightning as the probable cause.

The house fire near Rogersville, Center Township, killed James W. Fields, 68; Sarah Belle Fields, 50; Virginia Fields, 66; and Donald Fields, 55. Their badly burned bodies were recovered in the ruins after the two-story, frame home collapsed into the basement.

The home, owned by T. Reed Huffman of Rogersville, is located along TR 511 about a mile south of Rogersville.

Rogersville firemen received the alarm at about 11 p.m. when Mr. and Mrs. Larry Stoneking and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stauling, who were in a four-wheel-drive recreational vehicle nearby, saw a glow in the sky.

David Smith, chief of the Rogersville volunteers, said half of the home was in flames when they arrived and any rescue effort was impossible.

Firemen were hampered by a lack of water and called for assistance from fire companies in Graysville, Waynesburg and Jefferson. Tanker trucks were forced to haul water from a creek near Rogersville to the hill-top residence.

Firemen were able to recover the bodies about four hours after the fire began. The victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner Charles Behm, who ruled the cause of death as asphyxiation due to smoke and flame inhalation.

It was believed to be the worst fire, in terms of loss of life, since the Downey House fire on December 23, 1925, when five volunteer firefighters perished while battling the hotel blaze on West High Street in Waynesburg.

State police fire marshal Walter Anderson arrived on the scene early Thursday morning to begin his investigation and was back at the scene later in the morning.

Damage was estimated at $35,000.

The family was well known in the Rogersville and Waynesburg areas. The sisters, Sarah Belle and Virginia, who frequently shopped in the downtown area of Waynesburg. According to a family friend, the sisters "always had a kind word for everyone" and frequently stopped to chat in local stores.

A court-appointed guardian looked after their affairs and brought them to town several days each week. Although the brothers were not regularly employed, they did yard work and other small jobs for residents in Rogersville.

The only other member of the immediate family is a brother, John B. Fields, who resides in Tustin, Calif.

Despite their friendly reputation, the Fields were victims of at least two robberies in the past few years. Suspects were arrested and convicted for the last robbery about a year ago.

Grand Marshal Selected

Jacktown Fair Will Begin July 30

WIND RIDGE — The 120th annual Jacktown Fair will be held Tuesday, July 30, through Saturday, Aug. 3, according to the Richhill Agricultural Society, which announced that this year's theme will be "Heritage of Memories."

Dr. Meyer R. Sonneborn, a local physician who has served the fair and other community projects for the past 24 years, was unanimously selected by the fair board to be grand marshal for this year's parade.

According to an announcement for the fair board, "Dr. Sonneborn has unselfishly given of himself for the betterment of our community and we appreciate his efforts. His unending dedication and care is greatly appreciated."

The family of Dr. Sonneborn, who practices medicine at the Wind Ridge

Medical Center, also was noted. His wife Loreen and daughter Marcia have been active in many community affairs.

The parade that kicks off the fair will begin at 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 30. Dr. Sonneborn will be accepting parade entries at 428-4200 and 428-4205.

Improvements to the hill-top fair-ground have been made since last year, including excavation to permit more and larger amusement rides. Hannah Amusements will again have the midway rides and concessions.

Following the parade, Miss Jacktown Fair will be crowned and there will be a band contest and the introduction of state and local dignitaries. Also on opening night, there will be "Pedal Power" contests for children and women.

Carmichaels Area School Board Fails To Adopt Revised Budget

By Marcia Biddle, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — The Carmichaels Area School Board failed to adopt its 1985-86 budget by a vote of 6-2 Thursday, June 20.

The budget had been revised and stood at $4,432,973, down from $4,573,834. The revised budget would have required a 4-mill increase in the current property tax of 93 mills.

A mill of tax produces $18,600, but a board member said the collectible amount on which the budget is based is closer to $16,900.

The board recessed the meeting to 7:30 p.m. Friday, June 28, when it will try again to adopt a budget. The board, which did not discuss its reasons for rejecting the latest proposal, indicated it will have a workshop session prior to the June 28 meeting.

The board also vote 7-1 not to adopt the Greene County Vocational-Technical School budget. The district's share of the budget is $116,092.

James Clovis, chairman of the board negotiating committee, announced that the non-professional custodial contract has been agreed upon and was ratified by the employees. The board accepted the contract. No details were given.

Clovis also said that according to Act 93, the school district must produce a compensation plan for administrators. He said this plan will include the four principals and the maintenance foreman. He asked the board to ratify the plan produced by his committee.

Approval was not given, however, as the board voted 5-3 against it. Board President Edward Chess said the proposal "will need additional work."

Jerry Fortney, chairman of the education and personnel committee, announced three changes in school assignments for the coming year.

Truck Demolished

A garbage truck owned by Long Trucking Co. of Waynesburg R.D.3 was demolished after it apparently was driven to the top of a hill on Franklin Township Route 579 and allowed to drift down the rural road, which connects Sugar Run Road with Route 19. The truck, loaded with refuse, lost its front wheels when it ran into a ditch and then careened across the road and overturned on property owned by Raymond Santee and came to rest against some trees. State police said the truck was stolen Friday night, June 21, by burglars who got the keys to the truck when they broke into company headquarters in a service station on Route 218 south of Waynesburg. Mrs. Santee discovered the wrecked truck at 7 a.m. Saturday. Long Trucking is the franchised refuse hauler for Waynesburg Borough.

Defendant Pleads Guilty In Greene County Court

WAYNESBURG — James Edward Smith, 26, of Jefferson, pleaded guilty in Greene County Court Monday, June 24, to theft by unlawful taking.

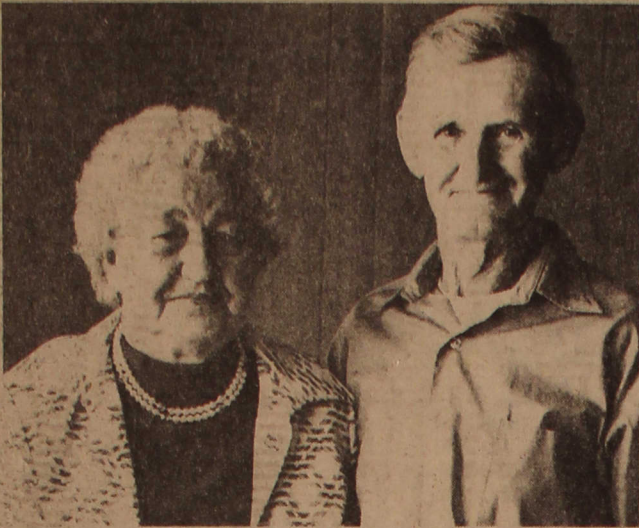

He was given a 2-to-23 month jail sentence, which was suspended because he already has spent more than two months in jail since his arrest on April 15 for stealing a battery from a car. He was placed on probation for the balance of his sentence, subject to a detainer placed against him from another county.

In other court action, a charge of simple assault brought against Jack Donaldson, 52, of Rogersville, was dismissed. He was charged with the offense in a private prosecution initiated by Jean Burnsworth of Waynesburg, who claimed that the defendant injured her neck by forcibly ejecting her from a nursing home.

District Attorney Charles Morris said the charge was being dropped with the consent of Burnsworth, with the understanding that Donaldson would take care of medical bills.

Three other cases which remained on the trial list for the May term of criminal court were postponed, after which members of the jury panel were discharged from further service by Judge Glenn Toothman.

Bronze Plaque To Be Placed On Pioneer Settler's House

GARARDS FORT — The home built by a minister who is one of Greene County's pioneer settlers was the focus of attention as the Corbly Reunion Society held its 54th annual reunion Sunday.

Route 30027, about a mile from the church, and is now owned by Raefield Honsaker of Carmichaels. It is still used as a dwelling.

Student Census Under Way In Central Greene

WAYNESBURG — The annual student census is under way in Central Greene School District and will continue through July.

Walter Stout, school district business manager, said census enumerators in each of the six municipalities which make up the district will be making their survey both by phone and through household visits.

"They will be asking such questions as the number of children in a household, the schools they attend, their ages, the buses they ride and the grade they will be in this fall," Stout said. He added that the enumerators will have proper identification in making household visits.

As part of the program, descendants of the Rev. John Corbly dedicated a bronze plaque which will be placed on the house to mark its designation by the U.S. Department of the Interior as a National Historic Landmark.

Corbly came to Garards Fort in 1775 as pastor of what was then the Goshen Baptist Church, now the John Corbly Memorial Baptist Church. Between then and the time of his death in 1803, he established many other Baptist churches in the area and was a prominent figure in the Whiskey Rebellion.

His family also obtained a place in local history as victims of one of the county's most infamous massacres. On May 10, 1782, the minister's second wife, Elizabeth Tyler Corbly, and four of their children were scalped by Indians as they were walking to church for Sunday worship.

The two-story brick house which Corbly built in 1796 is located on the plaque was dedicated by Robert Craig of Cassopolis, Mich., president of the reunion association, and Dr. Donald Jacobs of York, a former Waynesburg resident who is vice president of the association. Others taking part in the ceremony were Farley Toothman of Waynesburg, president of the Greene County Historical Society, and Dr. Alvah Headlee of Morgantown, Historical Society curator.

Craig said that the reunion society is working toward the establishment of a fund which could be used to acquire and maintain the historic home.

"This (designation as a historic landmark) is just the first step," he said. "What happens in the years ahead will determine if this house will be preserved for our children and grandchildren."

Toothman offered the support of the Historical Society and complimented all those involved in obtaining recognition of the house as a national monument.

"It reflects the fact that someone has done a lot of work and researched a lot of history, which is the first step in preserving our heritage, he said. Call on us for anything we can do to help in the future."

Alvah Headlee spoke of Corbly as a farmer, pointing out Greene County census records. He said that the farm first appeared on county tax records on 1796, when the house was assigned a value of $5. By 1802 Corbly was listed as owning 300 acres with a house valued at $200, a smaller house, three cabins, three horses valued at $55, and several cows. The household was composed of three males and six females, including this third wife, Nancy.

"It indicates a sizable farm operation which would have been adequate to take care of his large family," Headlee said.

Craig and Jacobs were re-elected president and vice president, respectively. Other officers are Helen Murdock Meighen of Monongahela, treasurer; Leota Murphy of Pendleton, Ind., recording secretary; and Leola Sewell of Anderson, Ind., corresponding secretary.

Jacobs will chair the committee to preserve the Corbly house. Marilyn Eichenlaub of Waynesburg will chair the liaison committee between the association and the historical society and Eleanor Graves of Georgetown, Ky., was appointed chairman of the genealogical research committee.

Vestaburg Home Rehabilitation Grant Unofficially Confirmed

FREDERICKTOWN — Things are starting to look better for some homeowners in the Vestaburg section of East Bethlehem Township.

The supervisors had applied to the Department of Community Affairs for a $100,000 housing rehabilitation grant for the Vestaburg homeowners.

The township recently received "unofficial confirmation" that it will receive the grant. Official word is expected in several weeks, Supervisor Frank Mazeppa said.

The supervisors applied for the grant in early February to help low-to-moderate-income families living in Vestaburg. Some 15 to 20 families are expected to benefit from the state money.

"We have a high percentage of laid-off miners there," Mazeppa said.

The $100,000 grant, he said, is the standard allotment usually given by the DCA. That is not going to be the amount East Bethlehem officials will actually have, however.

"We are going to have to hire a project engineer, which will run us $14,000," he said. The remainder is to be evenly divided among the program's recipients.

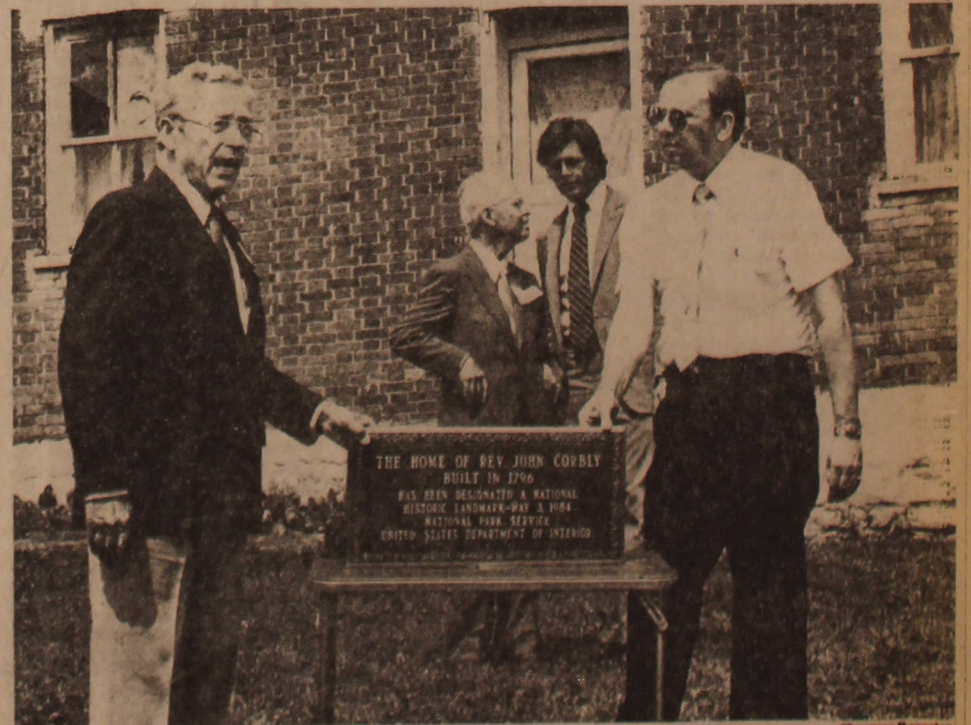

Eligibility for the funds is determined by income and not the value of the home. To get the money, a person must own and occupy a single-family dwelling. Income must not exceed $12,400 for a family of one, or $22,100 for a family of eight. Mazeppa said all income guidelines are subject to change.

The project engineer will determine the need of each family. The money will be awarded to the homeowners on the basis of their need.

The project funds can be used only for several repairs at once. They include wiring, insulation or plumbing. The money can not be put toward the structure's appearance.

Mazeppa said a person can receive more than $6,000, depending on the costs. Under the program, for every $6 the individual is willing to invest, the state will contribute $4. Costs can not exceed $8,500.

Declining Enrollment Forces Vo-Tech To Cut 2 Positions

WAYNESBURG — Declining enrollment and a decrease in the amount of federal funding have led to the elimination of two positions and a decrease in the hours of a third at the Greene County Vo-Tech School. The action was taken during a recent meeting of the school's Joint Operating Committee.

The supervisory position of vocational education, held by Frank Gressly, was eliminated because of low enrollment. The same reason was cited for cutting the drafting class to half-time. Tom Gottschalk, the drafting instructor, will teach the afternoon session only but the committee voted to continue his full health benefits.

Because of decreased federal funding the communication skills program is being discontinued. The supplementary service program is taught by James Walters.

In making the above moves the committee named Solicitor Robert Durant from the legal firm of Meyer, Darragh, Bueller, Bebenek and Eck of Pittsburgh to handle any grievances that may arise.

Executive Director Linda Girosky reported that in spite of nine classes being offered for summer school, only one class is in session. She cited problems with competing schools offering lower tuition as well as some students receiving grades too late to enroll as reasons why the classes were not filled. Each class needed an enrollment of 12 students to be held and currently only English 10 is being taught.

Ms. Girosky also reported the receipt of a grant from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) in the amount of $28,172. The grant will enable the school to purchase 25 computers for its math program. The school was one of 46 schools which received a grant, out of 358 districts which had applied.

By a narrow vote, the committee agreed to spend $16,966 for a three-terminal computer system and maintenance contract for the administrative offices. Noting that there is no money in next year's budget for the purchase, the committee voted to buy the computer system with the surplus remaining in the current budget.

Two maintenance contracts were approved. One contract with MCC Powers on all building equipment was approved for $10,452. Another contract, with the Intermediate Unit for 15 typewriters was approved in the amount of $692. The committee also agreed to spend $755 with Neil Electric of Uniontown for a phase guard on the school's electrical system. The device is intended to prevent motors from burning out in the event of an electrical power surge.

Instructors who work on curriculum development during the summer will be given compensatory pay. Ms. Girosky said the compensation will amount to $2,000 for two days work by the teachers who participate.

The school will advertise for bids on obsolete equipment. The items are expected to be sold in July.

Sewage Authority Will Allow Jefferson-Morgan To Decide

JEFFERSON — The Lower Ten Mile Joint Sewage Authority has decided to let the Jefferson-Morgan School Board make the decision on whether the district will abandon its sewage treatment plant and connect with the authority's proposed system.

Authority members voted to send the board a letter saying that it has the option of connecting to the system during the time it is being constructed — and while 75 percent federal funding is available — or waiting until the district's system fails.

If the district chooses to wait, the motion said, then it would be responsible for the costs of later connecting to the public system.

The state Department of Environmental Resources had first told the authority the district was to be connected to the system, despite having inspected the district's 4-to-5-year old plant and determining that it was functioning properly.

When the $165,000 cost of including the district in the plan was determined not to be cost effective, DER re-evaluated its position and told the authority that it was up to the authority to decide whether it should be included.

Authority Solicitor William Hook reported that he had talked with the school board about connecting to the system and at first they seemed to oppose the idea because they had only recently installed the plant. He added, however, that they were also concerned that maybe five years from now the plant might break down.

Authority member Jeno Palone argued that it might not be cost effective for the district and taxpayers to make the school connect to the system. "You got a great system that works perfectly," he said. "Why change it?" He also argued that the district's plant might never break down.

John Schaudt, authority engineer, told authority members that if the district's plant does malfunction later, chances are DER will not let them rebuild it, and will make them connect to the public system.

Palone also asked how much the district's monthly service charge would be. No figures were available, but Hook, who has worked with the Franklin Authority, said Waynesburg Central High School pays about $1,000 a month.

One of the arguments the authority also considered was that including the district would bring in revenue from tap-in fees and service charges, which would help reduce the costs for other customers.

In other business, Hook reported that all the municipalities that form the authority had signed agreements which say they approve of the authority's plan to finance the system. He also said he would send ordinances to the municipalities which must be approved before the authority can obtain the $615,000 loan it will use for interim financing.

Hook said the closing on the loan, which is with First National Bank of Carmichaels, will be completed the week of July 15. The authority will use the money for designing the project and will later issue bonds for construction.

Schaudt reported that the engineering plans for the Mather, Jefferson Borough and Jefferson Township areas will be presented at the next meeting. He said the engineers will do whatever possible to re-design the plans taking into consideration resident's comments. He added, however, that some requests might be impossible because of costs.

SE Greene OKs Budget For Vo-Tech

After a brief discussion, the Southeastern Greene School Board voted 5-4 to approve the Greene County Vocational-Technical School budget, which lists the district's share at $100,968.

A motion to approve the budget was accepted only after the board voted down a motion to "disapprove" the budget. Several board members who were against accepting it, argued the Vo-Tech board had not gone far enough in making cuts.

At an earlier meeting, the board had voted to reject the budget and directed its secretary to write a letter to other districts urging them to do the same.

Board member Mark Brozik said he believed the board "had sent a message" to the Vo-Tech. "We wanted a more cost-effective operation," he said, adding, "I don't think they've gone far enough."

Adan Novak, who also spoke against the budget, criticized the Vo-Tech's failure to drop the mining program, which has a low enrollment; its addition of a math program, which requires the hiring of a new teacher; and its hiring of an additional maintenance person.

Board member Bob Headlee urged the board to approve the budget. "They did work on that budget and made a number of cuts," he said. The board had cut one supervisory position, a communications skills program and a drafting class to half-time.

Headlee also said before the Vo-Tech can think of cutting the mining program, it will have to consider cutting other programs which have lower enrollment than the mining course.

Board President George Biletz also urged the board to accept the budget. "I recommend we approve the budget, since they have made some changes, but immediately after school starts, we (should) have a county board meeting," he said.

The district will send 40 students to the Vo-Tech next year. Principal William Guappone, however, said there are more students who would like to go to the Vo-Tech. "For every one that drops out, I have 10 waiting," he said.

The five board members voting for accepting the budget were Headlee, board President George Biletz, Joe Spiker, Terry Ganocy and Jim Provance.

Greene County Libraries Plan Summer Events For Children

WAYNESBURG — A series of special summer programs and activities for children has been scheduled by the Greene County Library System's Outreach for Books van, the Flenniken Memorial Library in Carmichaels, and the Bowlby Public Library in Waynesburg.

Some of the programs will be conducted by Outreach Librarian Cindy Bailey and Children's Librarian Mary Trauth. Designed for children in kindergarten through grade six, these programs will include movies, crafts, and the opportunity to borrow books.

Flenniken Library will also be holding some programs for children, but these will be announced.

As a cooperative effort by all elements of the library system, a county-wide contest will be held throughout the summer.

Children will be making a scrapbook called "The World's Most Interesting Kid." It will include artwork and creative writing the child has done, as well as a list of books he or she has read over the summer.

Any child who desires may submit his book in this county-wide contest. A total of six winners will be chosen — two from the Outreach programs, two from Bowlby and two from Flenniken. The contest and the programs are free, but donations to help cover the cost of the crafts would be appreciated.

Any child who is a Greene County resident can participate in the scrapbook contest. Materials for the scrapbook are now available. They can be obtained from the Outreach for Books van, which makes regular visits to various areas of the county, or from either the Bowlby or Flenniken Library. Deadline for entries is Aug. 14.

Outreach programs to be conducted by Mrs. Bailey will be held at two locations.

One will be at Apartment 126 in Wayne Village, West Waynesburg. They will be held from 11 a.m. to noon on four consecutive Tuesdays — July 30 and Aug. 6, 13 and 20.

Sex Assault Sentences Are Given

WAYNESBURG — Two Waynesburg brothers charged with sexually assaulting a 9-year-old boy received 5-to-10 year prison sentences in Greene County Court recently.

Michael E. Shenkel, 20, and George E. Shenkel, 18, of 32 West Elm Street, entered guilty pleas just prior to the scheduled start of their trial on charges of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, corruption of a minor, indecent assault and unlawful restraint.

Assistant District Attorney Mary Pruss told the court that the defendants accosted the boy on a street near their home on Feb. 8, took him to a service station rest room, and assaulted him.

Judge Glenn Toothman committed the defendants to the Western Pennsylvania Diagnostic and Classification Center at Pittsburgh and indicated that he would recommend that they be permitted to serve their sentence at Camp Hill because of their young ages.

It was noted that the 5-to-10 year sentence is mandatory in cases of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse. Sentences on the other charges were merged into that sentence.

animals. Thursday, Aug. 15, craft, design your own puzzle.

Thursday, Aug. 22, craft, découpage wooden plaques.

Thursday, Aug. 29, film, Mark Twain's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

Ruling Allows Damage Claim Over Sewer Line

WAYNESBURG — The Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court has reversed a Greene County Court ruling which barred Carmichaels Mining Machine Repair Co. from claiming damages in connection with the laying of a sewer line on its property in 1975.

The company, in 1982, petitioned the county court for the appointment of a board of view to assess damages connected with the laying of a sewer line along a section of Oak Avenue East by the Carmichaels and Cumberland Township Joint Sewer Authority.

The authority filed preliminary objections based on the contention that there was a six-year statute of limitations on the filing of damage claims which was not met since the claim for compensation was not filed until seven years after the line was laid.

The appeal to Commonwealth Court was taken after the county court sustained the authority's objections and dismissed the petition.

In reversing the local court decision, the Commonwealth Court noted that in 1978 the law was changed to increase the statute of limitations in such cases from six to 21 years. It held that since the company's statute of limitations had not run out at the time the statute was changed in 1978, it was entitled to the benefit of the additional time provided under the new limitation.

It therefore remanded the case to the Greene County Court for a hearing on the merits of the damage claim.

Oppose Sewer System

Sugar Run Area Residents Lodge Protests Early

WAYNESBURG — Between 20 and 30 residents of the Sugar Run area of Franklin Township attended a meeting of the Franklin Township Sewer Authority recently to register an early protest against extension of sewer lines into their neighborhood.

Mrs. Jane Hoskinson, spokeswoman for the group, presented the authority with a petition of protest signed by 40 residents opposed to having a public sewer system.

Most of the opposition was based on the premise that the sewer was not needed because septic systems are functioning well. Residents also pointed out that there are several senior citizens in the neighborhood who could ill afford the assessment and tap-in fees and the monthly charge once a line is operational.

Residents denied sewage was contaminating the creek, water table or the land and cited the lack of odors as evidence. "You don't see raw sewage along the road or on the top of the ground, so why do we need a sewer line," one resident questioned the authority members.

No specific plans have been authorized by the authority, although the engineer and manager have been doing preliminary survey work in the area.

The authority is looking toward the possibility of extending the line for some 3,000 feet to serve about 30 customers.

However, it was pointed out by the authority that no decision could be made until after the engineer tests the rock strata, noting it could be too rocky to make the project cost effective.

Another resident asked the authority members if the project was initiated because one family requested it. Board members denied this and said they had been looking at the area for the past two years to consider the possibility of extending service.

Authority members ended the long discussion by telling the residents they might not have an argument because the project might never get off the ground. "We won't know until the rock is checked out," board president John Parker said.

In other action, the board was informed that the authority had received a $75,000 check from the Department of Community Affairs to be used toward the extension now under construction to an area near the Curry Home.

Revised Zoning Ordinance Would Reduce Disputes

The Waynesburg Zoning Hearing Board has run into a lot of problems in recent months in attempting to administer a 20-year-old zoning ordinance which leaves a lot to be desired.

Members of the board are dedicated individuals who serve without pay. To the best of their ability, they attempt to reach fair decisions which adhere to the spirit of the ordinance to protect neighborhoods from unsuitable incursions, while being flexible enough to permit variances where common sense indicates strict adherence to regulations would work an unreasonable hardship.

But when a controversial issue comes before it, the board can be sure that those who feel aggrieved by a decision will challenge it on procedural grounds, citing areas where they feel the local ordinance does not adhere to the Pennsylvania Municipal Planning Code.

Granting of a permit for a pizza parlor, which has led to a lawsuit, and a dispute over development of a parking lot to serve a funeral home are examples of the difficult decisions the board has had to make in recent months — decisions which can be supported or challenged according to the way in which the ordinance is interpreted.

At the request of the zoning hearing board, borough council has reactivated the borough planning commission as the first step toward completely reviewing the zoning ordinance and revising it where necessary.

To do the job properly, though, the borough must have expert assistance. It can't afford to again take a typical ordinance from another community and attempt to revise it to meet Waynesburg's needs. This will cost money, but it would be money well spent.

A well drawn, unambiguous ordinance with well defined steps for its administration would greatly ease the job of the board and would prevent many of the disputes which are now arising.

CURRENT COMMENT

ROUND 2 OF 'SUPERFUND'

A recent news report that the Northeast faces more serious problems with toxic wastes than other sections of the United States should come as no surprise.

The Northeast corridor, from Boston to Richmond, long has been this country's industrial backbone. The residue of that industrialization — toxic waste dumps — is a sorry fact of life for those who find their drinking water contaminated, their health placed in jeopardy.

The federal Superfund program was supposed to straighten out the mess with $1.6 billion in cleanup funds.

The concept was fine, but the program — as we unfortunately learned — was underfunded by an estimated $20 billion, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA says it would take about $22 billion to clean up all the dangerous waste sites — about 542 dumps — in the U.S.

The original Superfund program expires at the end of September. The Reagan administration has asked for $5.3 billion in funding for the next five years, while environmental groups are calling for $13.5 billion. Meanwhile, Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., has introduced a $10.1 billion Superfund program in the House.

For the most part, the Superfund is financed by a tax on chemical manufacturers. And it has been suggested that any additional money the program receives be generated, for the most part, by a tax increase on oil and chemical producers.

In the next 4½ months, elected officials undoubtedly will debate on the means of financing the Superfund as well as the level of funding.

We like the idea of making the producers bear the major burden of the Superfund cost since it is the improper disposition of their waste that has contaminated landfills, streams and ground water supplies.

Although it has had its problems, Superfund must be given a chance. It needs proper funding. There's no other alternative.

Readers' Comments

Israel Friend

Israel is one-fourth the size of Pennsylvania and is surrounded by enemy countries in the Middle East which have vowed they will destroy every Jew in Israel — countries which have 500 times more land than Israel but refuse to acknowledge Israel's right to exist.

Many of these countries have attacked Israel four times in the last 40 years. Sometimes five and six countries have attacked together, yet Israel remains.

Israel is the only democratic nation we can trust in the Middle East. They don't hijack our planes for ransom; they don't kidnap hostages and hold them in terror for 444 days; they don't kidnap our ambassadors; they don't blow up our Marines; they don't burn American flags and scream hate slogans. Instead, Israel supports us.

Those Moslem countries involved in terrorism often make the terrorists out as heroes in their country. Many of these Moslem terrorists are trained and supplied by the Soviet Union. Russia also supplied many of these Moslem countries with jets, tanks and artillery in their unsuccessful attempts at war to destroy Israel.

Israel is our friend.
