14 Girls Will Compete In 32nd Coal Queen Pageant

CARMICHAELS — Fourteen seniors will represent area high schools in the 32nd annual Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Queen Pageant at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, in the Carmichaels Area High School auditorium.

The young ladies will be evaluated on talent, interview, beauty and poise by a panel of judges.

Candidates have already participated in some activities including a dinner at the Red Bull Inn followed by a trip to Heinz Hall in Pittsburgh where they saw the Civic Light Opera's "Man of La Mancha."

They also enjoyed a swim party and picnic at the Carmichaels Pool earlier this month.

Other activities planned include a closed rehearsal on Thursday, Aug. 22, in the auditorium.

The 1985 queen and her court will be guests at 2 p.m. luncheon on Saturday, Aug. 31, in the Carmichaels Grange Hall, where the ladies will dress prior to participation in the annual King Coal Parade.

On Thursday, Sept. 5, the girls and their mothers will be guests of the Carmichaels Area Women's Civic Club at a tea in the Lutheran Church.

Candidates for the 1985 Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Queen are:

'Free Trade' Not Always Fair, UMW Says

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — United Mine Worker President Richard Trumka called for legislation which would replace a "free trade" policy with a "fair trade" policy in an address Sunday in Waynesburg.

Commissioners Agrees To Discuss Salaries

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners have agreed to meet with other elected county officials to discuss the establishment of a salary scale for those elected both this year and in 1987.

John Gardner, board of commissioners chairman, scheduled the meeting for 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 29.

The meeting was requested primarily by Sheriff Remo Bertugli, who is opposed for re-election in November. He pointed out that if the commissioners do not set a salary schedule prior to the November election, his salary would remain frozen throughout his next four-year term.

The only other officials in the same position are Coroner Frank Behm and Jury Commissioners Bernice Kuharcik and Rosalind B. Laur, all of whom are to be re-elected this year. In addition, any action the commissioners would take at this time would affect the person elected in November to complete the final two years of the term of Clerk of Courts Al Darney, who died in May.

Because of the difference in terms, Bertugli is currently receiving an annual salary of $15,500 while most other county officials are paid from $17,000 to $19,000. He will "catch up" on Jan. 1, 1986, when he takes office for a new term at $17,000.

Current county salaries were set by the state Legislature in 1981. At that time, the law was changed to give county commissioners the responsibility of providing future salary increases in the form of annual percentage raises established prior to the start of a new term.

While the commissioners will be able to discuss a new salary schedule at the Aug. 29 meeting, they will not be able to take action at that time. The law provides that any action be taken at a pre-advertised evening meeting to give interested persons an opportunity to comment on a proposal which is made.

service' to an announced goal of making the United States independent of overseas suppliers in meeting its energy needs.

"Given an opportunity to compete on a fair basis, American miners can produce coal more efficiently than anyone in the world," he said. "But we're competing with companies that have gone abroad — multinational companies with no loyalty to this country."

The labor leader has particular criticism for a new mine which Exxon is developing in Colombia, South America, and for South African coal mines.

He said the Colombian government is providing half of the $3 billion it will take to build the mine, which will be one of the largest in the world, and will also take care of transportation of the coal.

"The dollars you spend when you buy from an Exxon pump will help develop a mine which will ultimately cut your throat," he said. "Their goal is to capture 10 percent of the world market by 1989."

Because of this he said, he has asked for legislation which will assess a tariff of $8 per ton on all Colombian coal shipped to the United States.

Trumka was also very critical of South Africa, where he said coal is produced by "slave labor" paid $30 a week. "They (the miners) are not granted citizenship and there are no costly safety or environmental regulations that have to be met."

exchange it for a fair trade policy that will equalize the unfair advantage inherent in cheap labor and government subsidy. When that happens, American miners can compete with anybody."

He pointed out that in 1985, American miners produced a record 890 million tons of coal despite the fact that there were 60,000 laid-off miners in the nation. By 1995, he said, that total is expected to rise to 1,250 million tons. He also noted that while coal production has increased by 70 percent since 1979, the per ton labor cost has increased at a far slower pace.

"Coal is by far the most economical form of energy," he said, noting that in 1977 the comparative cost of producing a million BTUs of energy was 95 cents for coal, $2.23 for oil and $1.30 for natural gas. In 1983, the latest year for which figures are available, coal stood at $1.62 per million BTUs, oil at $4.62 and natural gas at $3.47.

Trumka said, however, that Congress recently disbanded the Synthetic Fuels Corp. because it was not satisfied with progress it has been making, and that nothing realistic has been done toward developing a methane fuel program which could provide a market for 340 million tons of coal a year.

"In the 1970s the government proclaimed a goal of making the United States free of dependence on foreign energy but never paid more than lip service to doing anything about it," he said. "Since 1980, the percentage of our energy needs has increased from 17 percent to 22 percent. It accounts for a large percentage of our trade deficit, and every billion dollars in trade deficit equates to the loss of 10,000 American jobs."

Trumka was introduced by Samuel F. Steinmiller of Pine Bank R.D.1, president of the Greene County Coal Owners Association.

He noted that the association was formed in 1977 to provide landowners in western Greene County with an opportunity to band together to market coal underlying their land at a more advantageous price. He said that the membership represents 100,000 acres of Mapletown and Freeport coal.

Its other objectives, he said, are to urge government and industry to take advantage of the relatively inexpensive energy provided by coal.

Steinmiller noted that the association has already been addressed by a government official, and is planning to schedule a coal industry spokesman for one of its future meetings.

Jaycees Sets 2 Records

WAYNESBURG — The first female Jaycees chapter in a prison was formally chartered Friday night at the State Correctional Institution for Women (SCIW) in Waynesburg.

Members of the Pennsylvania Jaycees presented the charter to officers of the local chapter during a banquet. In addition to being the first such chapter in a U.S. correctional institution, the local chapter is also the first all-female chapter in the state.

The idea to start a Jaycees chapter at SCIW came from a woman who was incarcerated there briefly. Her dream became a reality soon after the Supreme Court decided last year that women could not be barred from membership in the Jaycees.

John D'Eletto, activities director at SCIW, said in addition to the recreational aspects of Jaycees membership, the organization lays the groundwork for individual development and leadership training.

Many of the women at SCIW, he noted, did not grow up exposed to organizations sanctioned by society. Through Jaycees, he said, "They learn to mature through the organization's structure. The civic-minded goals of Jaycees teaches them problem-solving behavior. The whole process is really a living, learning laboratory."

The best illustration of the benefits of the organization came from the main speaker for Friday's banquet: Sam Coco, a vice president of the Pennsylvania Jaycees. Coco became involved with the Jaycees while incarcerated at the Vanguard SCI in Pittsburgh. Because of his involvement with the organization, he was later paroled and granted a full pardon by Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

The woman who initiated the Jaycees chapter at SCIW has since left the institution. She began making inquiries about a chapter in July 1984, at a time when the Supreme Court was deciding if the Jaycees could exclude women.

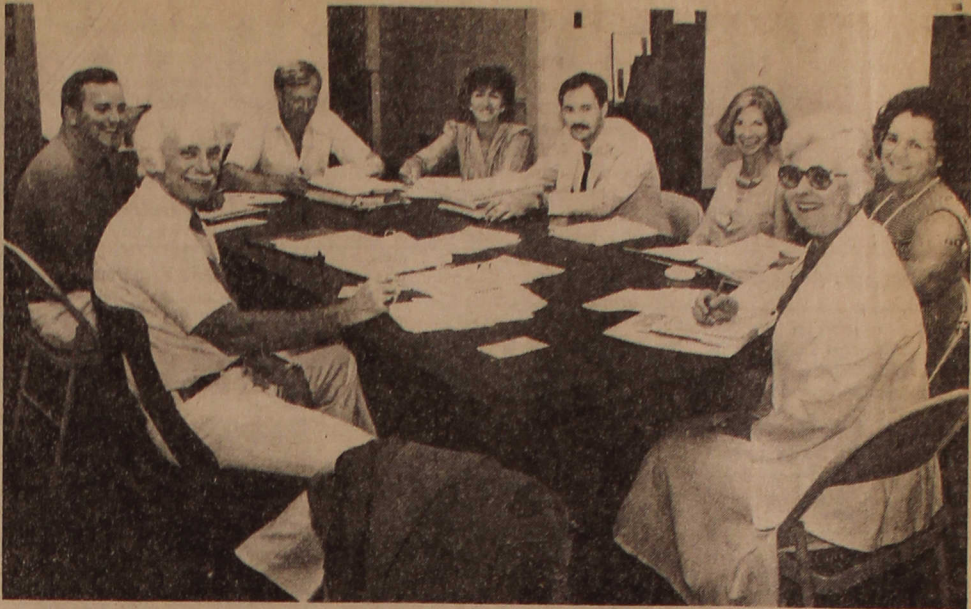

After a few phone calls to community members, the activities department of the SCIW was referred to the Carmichaels Area Jaycees. Past President John Curtis and President Dave Antonelli met with officials at the institution to explore the possibilities. Rather than starting a Women of the Jaycees or a Jayceette chapter, the woman waited until the final ruling by the court. Shortly after the Supreme Court handed down its decision, the inmates decided to form a chapter and the Carmichaels chapter became their sponsor.

When money was a problem, the Carmichaels chapter paid the charter fee and loaned the women enough money to pay their dues. The charter was finally issued in October, the third to be issued to women nationwide. When a woman leaves SCIW, she may transfer her Jaycees membership to any chapter.

In its short history the chapter has become a viable Jaycee organization with a solvent treasury and a membership dedicated to community service. Recipients of the chapters efforts are C.A.R.E., Sickle Cell, Children's Hospital and Try-Again Homes. During last month's Runathon, the women raised $1,000 for the Big Brothers / Big Sisters program of Try-Again Homes.

Officers of SCIW Jaycees are Traacy Green, president; Mona Shearer, vice president; Bernice Crosby, secretary, and Barbara Hall, treasurer.

United Way campaign members are Kenneth Stilwell, Archie Trader, Harry Drew, Brenda Morris, Robert Sonneborn, Donna Porterfield, Nancy Davis and Lois Hewitt.

United Way Is Already Halfway To 1985 Goal

WAYNESBURG — Greene County United Way kicked off its 1985 campaign Monday with the announcement that it already is more than halfway to its goal of $110,000, an increase of $20,000 over the 1984 goal.

Credit for most of the $60,000 raised through pacesetter drives went to employees at U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine in Kirby, who have pledged donations totaling $57,000.

The announcement was made during a lunchtime program in front of the courthouse in Waynesburg — one of the stops on a day-long bus tour of the county by United Way volunteers. Other programs were held in Jefferson, Carmichaels, Greensboro and Wind Ridge.

"Cumberland employees have set an example for all of us," Master of Ceremonies John Loeper of radio station WJNB said. "Now we have to make sure that the rest of the campaign is equally successful."

Lois Hewitt, West Penn Power Jefferson Division manager, who is county campaign chairman, noted that funds raised through the county fund drive are distributed to 14 county agencies which provide services to county residents.

"United Way is a uniquely American way to handle problems and help our neighbors," she said. "It is a once-a-year volunteer effort which assures that more of your dollars go to help people who need it."

Others who spoke briefly were Nancy Davis, superintendent of Central Greene School District, who is campaign vice chairman, and Karen Feinstein, a representative of United Way of Southwestern Pennsylvania.

The Cumberland Mine effort was headed by Jim Blanc, a management representative, and Joseph Peroni, representing the UMW contract employees.

"Our campaign is a joint effort between management and labor," said Brian Howarth, a mine engineer and member of the campaign team.

"We have a joint steering committee which plans the drive and arranges for every employee to be approached on a one-on-one basis."

Howarth said that the $57,000 raised this year exceeded the $55,000 goal and also was well above the $45,421 raised in 1984. He said that 83 percent of the mine's 500 employees had made pledges.

"This makes the fifth year in a row we have surpassed the goal we set for ourselves," he said.

Archie Trader, president of Greene County United Way, and many of the other volunteers who are heading this year's campaign took part in the bus tour, which was held to make county residents aware that the United Way effort assists people in all parts of the county.

With the Cumberland Mine contribution and other early donations, they were able to paint the red line of a campaign thermometer set up on the courthouse lawn to the height of $60,000.

Chapter sponsor Dave Antonelli and vice president of development for Pennsylvania Jaycees Paul Knapp present the charter to officers Traacy Green, president; Mona Shearer, vice president; Bernice Crosby, secretary, and Barbara Hall, treasurer.

Fike-Thomas Wedding Vows Heard

WAYNESBURG — Donna Mae Fike, daughter of Scott and Patricia Fike of Omaha, Neb., formerly of Masontown, became the bride of Joey Bill Thomas, son of Billy and Phyllis Thomas of 805 Bonar Avenue, Waynesburg, at a ceremony held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27, 1985, in the First Baptist Church, Waynesburg.

The Rev. Dr. Richard E. Visser performed the double-ring ceremony. Wynona Willison was organist and musical selections were offered by Melodie Ellsworth and Bob Robinson. Roberta Neubauer of Uniontown served as matron of honor and wore a chalk violet dress with sheer yokes and puff sleeves and a high neck. The ensemble included a stitched cameo on the front and the full skirts fell straight down from the waist.

Bridesmaids were JoAnn Gould, cousin of the bride; Jody Dusha, and Melinda Fike, a sister of the bride. Tara Stewart and Jessie Stewart, nieces of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaids.

Sam Neubauer of Waynesburg was best man and the groomsmen were Robbie Escott, Steve Neubauer and Tag Ross. Dusty Stewart, nephew of the bridegroom, served as junior groomsmen and Matthew Meighen, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Lee Anne Neubauer was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's gown, a Slisa creation, was made of white tissue taffeta with Slencon lace seed pearls and irridescent. It had a high neckline of sheer yoke silk illusion and a basque bodice of alencon lace accents.

The long sleeves had a top puff, tapered, and a tight fitting from elbow to wrist coming to a point down to the middle of the back of the hand.

The A-line skirt had accents and appliques of Slencon lace. The cathedral train had cascades of ruffles of chiffon adorned the train. Her matching hat was of silk illusion frame.

The bride carried a bouquet of six Philanopolis orchids, 15 purple roses and cascading Stephanis and ming.

A reception was held in the basement of the church with 150 guests present. Guests were from New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Nebraska, Virginia, West Virginia and Connecticut.

The bride graduated from Westminster Academy in 1980 and is employed by Neubauer's Flowers. The bridegroom graduated from Waynesburg Central High School in 1977 and West Virginia Wesleyan College in 1981. He is in the U.S. Air Force.

Following a honeymoon in West Virginia, they will be making their home at Hahn Air Force Base in Hunsrueck, West Germany.

MRS. WHIPKEY

Vows Heard In Church Ceremony

Pursley Baptist Church was the setting of the July 20, 1985, ceremony that united in marriage Tammy Lynn Bartolovich and Kevin Michael Whipkey. The Rev. Andrew Hobbs officiated the 4 p.m. double-ring ceremony, with Ruth Hobbs, pianist; and Jim Bartholovich, brother of the bride, soloist.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin W. Bartolovich of Waynesburg R.D.4. The bridegroom is the son of Madalyn Clutter of West Finley and Robert Whipkey of Waynesburg, Cameron Star Route.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of chiffon knit with an empire waistline, a Victorian collar with hand-clipped Chantilly lace, V-shaped illusion yoke with silk chiffon embroidered floral and pearl trim, bodice of Chantilly lace appliques and Bishop sleeves with lace appliques and cuffs with lace trim. The crystal-pleated skirt and attached train was edged with wide scalloped Chantilly lace and had an underpanel ruffle of crystal pleating. The train fell into a full chapel sweep. Her waist-length veil was edged with scalloped ruffle lace with blusher attached to a Rhinestone tiara headpiece. She carried a silk cascading bouquet of white daisies accented with pink and yellow roses. All bridal traditions were observed in her attire.

The matron of honor was Nancy Fordyce. She wore a yellow floor-length gown and carried a fan of silk flowers. The bridesmaid, Cassie Bartolovich, sister of the bride, wore a pink floor-length gown and carried a fan of silk flowers.

Tom Lazear of Graysville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was the best man. Ushers were Van Loughman of Sycamore and David Whipkey of Sycamore, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception and buffet-style dinner were held for 140 guests at the 4-H Building, Greene County Fairgrounds. Music was by the band "Boothill."

The new Mrs. Bartolovich is a 1980 graduate of West Greene High School. She is employed in the Bakery Department at IGA Foodline. Her husband is a 1982 graduate of West Greene High School and is employed by Judy Construction Co.

80TH BIRTHDAY — Fremont Ewart of Jefferson R.D.1 was honored by the Polly Edgar family on the occasion of his 80th birthday recently. A surprise dinner was held at the Jefferson American Legion with more than 60 persons in attendance. The Rev. John Dorean offered the invocation.

Michelle Ann Lewis, George Popernack Wed

BOBTOWN — St. Ignatius Church in Bobtown was the setting for the June 15, 1985, wedding of Michelle Ann Lewis and George Andrew Popernack. The Rev. Daniel Dixon heard the 3 p.m. double exchange of vows. Rita Imrich of Waynesburg was the organist.

The bride is the daughter of Isaac and Patricia Lewis of Garards Fort and the bridegroom is the son of Andrew and Anna Marie Popernack of Bobtown.

Donna Rodavich of Garards Fort attended her sister as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Pauline Alfieri of Morgantown, sister of the bridegroom; Diane Ewart of Carmichaels, cousin of the bride; Vee Lewis of Garards Fort, sister-in-law of the bride; Connie Phillips of Carmichaels, cousin of the bride; Diane Prete of Pittsburgh, sister of the bridegroom, and Lisa Rumble of Greensboro.

Mike Skoda of Bobtown served as best man. The ushers were Mark Lewis of Carmichaels and Ike Lewis of Garards Fort, brothers of the bride; Michael Lewis of Garards Fort, twin brother of the bride; Dave Alfieri of Morgantown, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Ernie Vannicola of Greensboro, and Mark Prete of Pittsburgh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Mapletown High School and is employed by the East Dunkard Water Association. The bridegroom, a 1981 graduate of the same school, is employed by the Southeastern Greene Community Health Centers.

The newlyweds are residing in Bobtown.

Debra Kurincak Bride Of James Marancy Jr.

Debra Kurincak, daughter of Bernard and Elizabeth Kurincak of Nemaocolin and James Marancy Jr., son of Dorteia Shumar of Brownsville and James Marancy Sr. of Alicia, were united in marriage at the Full Gospel Church in California on Saturday, July 27, 1985, with the Rev. Bonnell Heard officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white, silk chiffon gown with a high neckline, leg-of-mutton sleeves and a dropped waistline, all accented with Venice lace, seed pearls and sequins. Her full skirt fell into a chapel-length train. The head piece of silk flowers held a chapel-length veil of illusion.

Maid of honor was Brenda Kurincak, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Gretchen Henderson of Jefferson and Billie Jean Lee of Carmichaels.

John Maraney served his brother as best man and the ushers were Bernard King, uncle of the bridegroom and Bernard Kurincak, brother of the bride.

Angie Kurincak of Pittsburgh, sister of the bride, was organist and Maureen Slevin of Pittsburgh was the soloist.

A reception was held at Danlaps Creek Academy in Merrittstown. A three-tier wedding cake and three bridesmaids' "doll" cakes were made by the bride's mother.

The couple went to Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Florida on their honeymoon.

The bride, a graduate of Carmichaels Area High School and Uniontown Beauty Academy, is employed at Holiday Hair Fashions, Greene Plaza, Waynesburg.

The bridegroom graduated from Laurel Highlands High School and is employed at Halomet Inc.

College Offers Training Program

WAYNESBURG — The Waynesburg College admissions office is continuing to accept applications from those who are eligible for benefits under the Trade Re-adjustment Act (TRA).

Laid-off miners from Gateway, Isabella and Maple Creek mines and employees of the Tac-Tec facility in Meadow Lands may be eligible to take courses which will improve their chances of finding alternate employment.

At Waynesburg College, these persons may select courses that help them better prepare themselves for staying employed.

Benefits from TRA may be available so that a laid-off miner or Tac-Tec employee may obtain an associate degree in business administration, bachelor's degree in mine management or in any number of majors.

Advisors from the admission office are available to help these unemployed persons complete the necessary paper work in time to receive the financial aid needed for college.

College Welcomes Freshmen Class

WAYNESBURG — As Waynesburg College enters its 137th year, freshmen entering the institution for the first time will participate in the matriculation convocation.

Set to begin at 11 a.m. Friday, Aug. 23, at the First Presbyterian Church in Waynesburg, the first-year students will be formally welcomed to the college and presented with their matriculation certificates.

Timothy Thyreen, dean of student life and director of admissions, will welcome the students. Dr. J. Thomas Mills Jr., president of the college, will deliver the convocation address.

The presentation of the matriculation certificates will be conducted by Dr. G. Wayne Smith, vice president for academic affairs, and Robert J. Hurd, registrar of the college.

'Try-Again' Purpose Explained

WAYNESBURG — The executive director of Try-Again Homes, Rotarian David Dinich of Waynesburg, was the guest speaker at the Waynesburg Rotary Club meeting Monday.

Before joining Try-Again Homes about seven years ago, Dinich served as a counselor at the Waynesburg Youth Development Center.

Dinich explained that the organization tries to "help those youngsters who are somewhere between the status of a confirmed criminal and a person who is seeking help in maturing into a meaningful relationship with society."

"These young people for the most part usually find their home life less than ideal, for whatever reason, but still need the security of some kind of haven, a place which can be called home, if only for a brief period of time. This is basically what we try to provide."

Try-Again employs about 40 people in Washington and Fayette counties and has a smaller staff in West Virginia, he said. The homes are located in Washington and Uniontown. Dinich said he hopes a similar home can be established in Waynesburg, where an effort to place a home failed several years ago.

In addition to establishing homes for boys and girls, the organization is broadening its scope of operations, according to Dinich. It is now in its third year of a relatively new program, "Big Brothers-Big Sisters."

This program found a "great deal of support from corporations in the area," said Dinich. It focuses on single-parent families in which a boy or girl needs a "sort of stand-in dad or mom working to supplement the missing elements in the client's life."

Try-Again also has set up a counseling program which takes place in the home, Dinich said. Under the program, family problems can be resolved before explosive situations become unmanageable. Dinich said some 200 boys and girls are currently involved in the counseling program.

In other action, the club said goodbye to Marj Marotta of Waynesburg, who was leaving for Brazil. Through the Rotary Youth Exchange Program, Miss Marotta will live in this South American country for a year.

Miss Marotta, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marotta of Waynesburg, will live with a Brazilian family in the province of Victoria, about 100 miles from Rio de Janeiro.

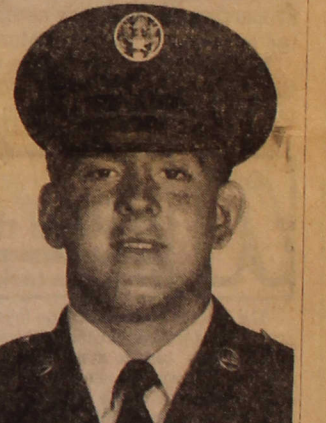

Rotarian Peter Jabour gave a mini-autobiography to the rotarians, noting that he is a "product of Waynesburg schools, including Waynesburg College."

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fitch of Charleston, W.Va., formerly of Waynesburg, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Kristy Lynn to Thomas Allen Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith of Carmichaels. The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Waynesburg Central High School and is employed in the cardiac diagnostic laboratory at West Virginia University Hospitals Inc. as a certified cardiology technologist. Her fiance is a 1980 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and is employed by Davan Industries in Washington as a machinist. A December wedding is planned.

USAF GRADUATE — Airman First Class Terry L. Kelly, son of Arthur M. and Carolyn J. Kelly of Jefferson R.D.1, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training. He will now receive specialized instruction in the avionics systems field. His wife, Rhonda, is the daughter of Connie Bowman of Spraggs. He is a 1976 graduate of Beth Center High School.

ASSIGNED — Airman Dale Knisely, son of Evelyn M. and Wayne Knisely of 721 Seventh Street, Mather, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training. He will now receive specialized instruction in the transportation field. He is a 1984 graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School.

Councilman Puts Money Where Convictions Lie

Waynesburg Borough Council, which is hard pressed to raise funds needed to provide borough services, has come up with an interesting idea in ruling that residents who own rental property are subject to the town's business privilege tax.

The $125 per year tax is routinely levied against persons who operate businesses and those who provide services of all kinds, including professional services. But the idea of collecting it from residents who own and rent houses and apartments has never come up.

At a meeting last week, Michael Mulholland pointed out to his fellow council members that there are a lot of people who collect income from rental property, both residential and commercial. He expressed the opinion that they fall under the section of the ordinance which makes anyone who engages in a commercial activity subject to the tax.

While other councilmen agreed, they raised a number of questions and quickly resolved one issue by arbitrarily ruling that the occupant of a house who rents no more than one apartment in that house should not be subject to the levy.

They also ruled that a borough residents who owns and rents property outside the borough is subject to the tax unless he pays a business tax in the municipality in which the property is located. But there was no resolution of the question of the liability of out-of-town residents who own and rent property in the borough.

Because of the newness of the ruling, council granted a 60 day amnesty period in which property owners are expected to list their rental properties with the borough. After that time, collection procedures will be begun, with assessment and census records being consulted to identify those liable for payment.

Mulholland concedes that council might get some complaints from property owners who are unhappy about the new ruling, probably centering on the fact that owners of a large number of rental units will pay no more than those who have a couple of apartments with which they supplement their income.

But Mulholland will be able to point to the fact that he became the first person to pay the $125 as owner of rental properties, even though he had previously paid the same $125 tax as owner of the local Montgomery Ward catalog store.

Whether or not you agree with him on his interpretation of the business privilege tax ordinance, at least he was willing to put his pocketbook where his convictions are.

The typical Agatha Christie mystery novel starts out like this: "It was Miss Somers' turn to make the tea. Miss Somers was the newest and the most inefficient of the typists. She was no longer young and had a mild worried face like a sheep. The kettle was not quite boiling when Miss Somers poured the water onto the tea, but poor Miss Somers was never quite sure when a kettle was boiling. It was one of the many worries that afflicted her in life."

Every time I feel a bout of the dreaded Mon River Sinus coming on, I think it best to run first to the library and bring home at least six Agatha Christies to serve as companions in misery. Since they are basically extremely clever puzzles, they keep the brain from actually giving up altogether. The books are otherwise soothing, since the characters never really engage the emotions of the reader, and the villains are always, always caught.

Old Picture Identified

The "Faces From the Past" picture which ran in the August 2 edition has been identified by Margaret Rees Scott of Shreveport, La., a loyal Republican subscriber.

Mrs. Scott, who has a copy of the old picture, identified those in the buggy as Thomas M. Rees, a young teacher at the time who was later to own and operate a flour and grist mill at Rogersville and later retired from Equitable Gas Company in 1953.

He is the father of Mrs. Scott and now resides at Curry Memorial Home at the age of 97.

In the middle, sitting on his lap, is Irvin Huffman who died in 1972. Most of his life was spent in the Rogersville area and on the right is Scott Mitchell, who lived on a farm along the Ruff Creek-Lippincott Road. He too is deceased.

The picture was taken on the Rogersville Road in back of Rosemont Cemetery near the covered bridge that was once the main entrance to the cemetery.

Mrs. Scott believes the picture was taken between 1908 and 1911.

These things were among the rules established by the members of The Detection Club, a group of England's top mystery writers who got together in about 1928. To join, the members promised "to honor the King's English, to reveal clues, but not to depend on Divine Revelation, Feminine Intuition, Mumbo-Jumbo, Jiggery-Pokery, Coincidence or the Acts of God to solve their cases."

I'd give a lot to have been able to listen in on their meetings, as they set puzzles for each other, and helped each other with writing problems. G.K. Chesterton was the first president of the club, followed by E.C. Bentley, Dorothy Sayers, then Agatha Christie.

"In constructing their puzzles," one writer says, "they agreed that the writer must play fair with the reader. It was a tacit contract that made sure that the reader and the detective had an equal chance. The writer must display all of the vital clues."

Christie's books are indeed filled with clues, but they're easy to miss. The Miss Somers who can't boil water appears in the Christie book, "A Pocket Full of Rye," but her incompetence has nothing to do with the plot. We don't know that until later on, of course, so we have to keep her in mind, little as we want to.

"A Pocket Full of Rye" features the indomitable Miss Jane Marple, the one character who incites the reader's affection. Unlike Christie's other detective, Hercule Poirot, who is arrogant and egocentric, Miss Marple is lovable. She appears to sweeten one else in the books as just a sweet elderly lady who asks a lot of questions and possibly gossips just a bit too much. Well, she potters around, associates things with other things, and comes up with the right answers when nobody else can. Angela Lansbury's hit TV series, "Murder, She Wrote," owes a lot to Miss Marple.

Still, Miss Marple can say things like, "I've lived a long time and know how very upsetting human nature can be." And, "You believed what he said. It really is very dangerous to believe people. I never have for years."

It is impossible not to associate Miss Marple's mind with Agatha Christie's. And to regret not having been a party to her discussions at The Detection Club.

Local Inventor Was Ahead Of His Time

By Jim Moore, Staff Writer

GRAYSVILLE—The late Jesse F. Livingood of Graysville, with the proper backing or perhaps a lucky break or two, could have been a familiar name in industry.

This mechanical genius, however, rests in eternal peace at Enon Cemetery in a far corner of Greene County unknown but to his family, close friends and a few antique engine buffs.

Jesse was born in 1894 in Erton and, when he was 18 years old, moved to Iowa with his family.

Had circumstances been different, this Greene County native could have become a millionaire and perhaps one of the nation's greatest automotive giants. His long list of inventions would later become common in modern day machines.

His contributions have since reached far and wide, but he experienced the misfortune that was typical of other inventors of his day. He became a victim of theft, World War II, lack of financial backing and industry exposure.

This misfortune, according to one account, was attributed by many to an archaic system of patent application that not only dealt inventor's a grave injustice, but also discouraged new efforts. Although his mechanical devices provided great self-satisfaction and enjoyment, neither Livingood nor his family ever profited from any of his many inventions.

During his many years of work with machines, he developed four-wheel drive, differential transmissions, four-wheel brakes, two- and four-cylinder steam engines, speed governors operating from the transmissions, and many other mechanical variations. He installed four-wheel drive on the Model T Ford in February 1914.

Members of his family can produce patents issued in the United States and Canada. Many describe devices now used in modern-day transportation. Before the U.S. entry into World War I, Livingood developed the four-wheel drive and, in later years, he obtained patents on the pulley and ball thrust bearing in 1927 and the differential transmission in 1931.

He developed wheel attachments for the front-wheel drive in 1932 and, in 1940, in response to interest abroad, he sent a four-cylinder steam engine to England for testing. However, World War II began and all development was halted.

One of his last inventions was an electrical baseboard hot water heating system for homes. Over 500 were installed. Many are still being used in homes in Washington and Greene counties.

He also built a two-cylinder steam-powered car that was road tested locally at 70 miles per hour.

When his sons were teen-agers and anxious to drive the family car, Livingood proved the practicality of his skill. To control the youthful desire for high speed and relieve anxiety at home, he developed and installed on his own car a unique governor that operated from the transmission.

Unlike most governors that control the speed of the motor, the Livingood device, by operating from the transmission, curbed the speed of the car itself, not the speed of the motor.

He not only learned his trade through practical experience in his own garage, he graduated from Sweeney's Trade School in Kansas City. For many years, he operated his own garage in New Virginia, Iowa, but returned to Greene County with his family in 1931. Family members believe the depression was the main reason for their return.

He often told his sons about a trip to the Iowa State Fair where he was exhibiting his four-wheel-drive Model T. He had gone to lunch and when he returned, two men were on their backs under the vehicle making notes. Although unable to prove it, he always believed the men were auto engineers for a major company.

On another occasion while en route to Iowa for a visit, Livingood stopped overnight in Chicago. The following morning he awoke to find someone had stolen his Model T.

The car was never seen again, until a few years ago when it may have been featured in a national magazine. Livingood's son, Bob, was flipping through a 1975 issue of Four-Wheel Drive and noticed a picture of a specially adapted 1923 Model T much like the one stolen from his father.

The picture was the property of the government, but letters to the publisher have never been acknowledged or answered.

Over the years, Livingood was a draftsman in Chicago and was the owner and operator of a garage in Graysville.

He focused most of his attention on steam engines and boilers beginning in 1950. The U.S. government once ordered 500 of his steam boilers to be installed in Philadelphia homes, but for reasons never explained to him, the deal fell through. At the time, he was in partnership with two Waynesburg businessmen who were handling the paperwork.

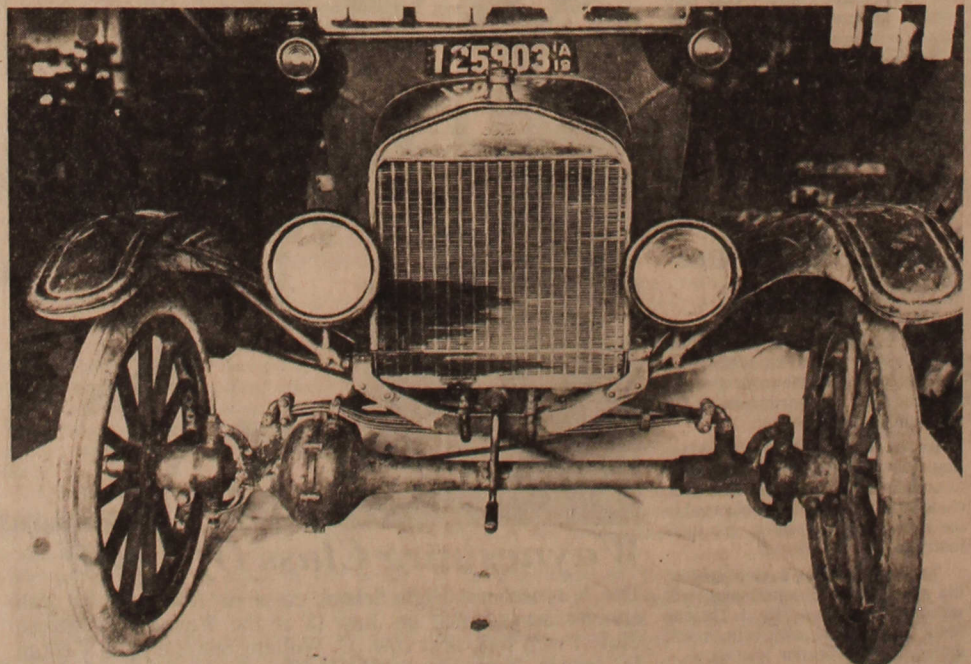

Private homeowners were not so reluctant and many of his boilers were installed in the area. Bob Livingood, a machinist at Star Dynamics in Washington, still services the boilers. He recently sold a special boiler to Frank Hunt in Washington County who uses the boiler in the manufacture of sulky shafts.

Livingood raised his family in the quiet village of Graysville where four of his five children were born. His oldest child, Ruth, was born Des Moines, Iowa, and the others, Bob, Alice, Kenneth and Delmar, were born in Greene County. Alice now lives in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., and Delmar runs the service station and grocery store in Graysville. Kenneth is deceased. Ruth is the wife of the Rev. William Auld of San Francisco.

Livingood, who died a week before his 67th birthday, never looked back, according to his son Bob. "He never appeared bitter about the way things turned out and was content to work in his shop," Bob said.

The Livingood cars are still with us and, in fact, one will be making a trip to Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, this week.

Bob, along with Carl and Pete Amos, Chuck Rice and Bob's son, Wayne, will be leaving Graysville Friday night in a 1919 Model T. They will be taking turns driving the Model T over back roads heading for the Mid West Old Threshers reunion next week. They also plan a stopover in Portland, Ind., for another show.

The late Jesse Livingood of Graysville was far ahead of his time as this 1919 Model T Ford would indicate. His four-wheel-drive autos far outdated the more modern vehicles which have become commonplace. This particular auto was developed in Iowa.

Waynesburg
 Southwestern Pennsylvania Human Services Inc. to Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging, house and lot, High Street, no consideration.

Township Approves Land Sale

CARMICHAELS—At a meeting Aug. 15, the Cumberland Township Supervisors approved the sale of a piece of unused property owned by the township on Hewitt Avenue in Carmichaels.

They said the property is triangular in shape and is about 150 feet by 173 feet by 73 feet. They approved the higher bid of the two received, which was submitted by Helen Bolsoly in the amount of $3,001.

After talks with Carmichaels Area School District officials, the supervisors declared one-way traffic on two roads for the safety of school bus travel.

The one-way traffic rule will be enforced on Blaker's Ridge, Route 622, moving south, between the hours of 7:45 and 8:15 a.m. and 3:45 and 4:15 p.m. Traffic on Haines Hollow Road, Route 497, will be one-way, moving east during the same hours.

The supervisors approved two amendments to the contract with Bankston Engineers for work on the Crucible Sewage project. Because the cost per foot of installing sewage lines proved to be higher than originally estimated, the supervisors said insulation of storm drains and resurfacing of the street had to be eliminated.

Chairman William Schifko said damage to Crucible streets has been minimal since few lateral lines were laid across streets and those streets were repaired at that time by the contractor.

The supervisors said first estimates of sewage line costs were $22 a foot, but the cost came out to about $29 per foot during construction.

In response to a question, the supervisors said that Crucible residents are paying no front footage fee because the work is being done through a grant and pay only the cost of the installation of lines from their homes to the tap.

They added that monthly fees would be for plant operation only and should amount to only $10 a month.

In the second amendment, the supervisors agreed that the engineering firm is not responsible for the inspection of the sewer line construction and was not hired to do so. They said that several inspectors have worked on the project.

In answer to a question which came up at their last meeting about protection from sandblasting, the supervisors said they had decided that sandblasting is covered under the township zoning ordinance dust control regulations.

All Systems 'Go' For Central Greene Schools

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Several teachers were hired and other staff appointments made by the Central Greene School Board Tuesday as preparations were completed for the start of classes next Monday.

Superintendent Nancy Davis reported that "everything is ready" for the start of the 1985-86 school year, which begins with an in-service day for teachers on Friday. She said there will be eight new faculty members and six full-time substitutes on the staff.

Business manager Walter Stout reported that the Department of Education has notified the district it will be receiving $3,324,360 in basic state subsidy this year, which is $144,000 more than had been budgeted.

He noted, however, that a smaller-than-anticipated TELLS (remedial teaching) payment of $67,432 will reduce the net increase to some $100,800, all of which will be placed in budgetary reserve.

Board Member Francis Fox said all the buildings in the district are "in the best condition I can remember in my years as a board member."

Four new teachers were hired for the staff of the Margaret Bell Miller Middle School.

Michael Rapach, a University of Pittsburgh graduate with seven years of experience, was named teacher of the gifted and talented. Karen Lees, a Clarion State University graduate with several years of experience as a substitute in five districts, was employed as a language arts teacher.

Sharon Oswalt, a graduate of LaSalle College with a master's degree from West Virginia University who has five years of experience, was hired as special education teacher. Edward John Lasko, a graduate of St. Vincent College, was hired as a long-term substitute in art during the sabbatical leave of David Lesako.

Terri Brewer, a California University of Pennsylvania graduate with seven years of substitute experience, was hired as the half-time Chapter I reading specialist at the Spraggs Elementary School and the half-time elementary gifted teacher.

Lynn Harriger, a graduate of Slippery Rock State University with seven years experience, was hired as elementary special education teacher.

Glenn Potter, who was on the West Virginia University football team for four years, was hired as assistant varsity football coach at a salary of $1,700.

The resignation of Margaret Washnock as girls' varsity volleyball head coach was accepted, with Cheryl deBlecourt being appointed to succeed her at a salary of $1,700.

Curtis Griffin was named head junior high football coach at a salary of $1,400 and Wayne Kiger as his assistant at a salary of $1,200.

Darla Yanachik was appointed newspaper advisor at the high school at a salary of $807.

positions at the high school will be eliminated. Joetta Hoy, the monitor with the least experience, was furloughed from that position but was named classroom monitor at the Whiteley School to replace Gloria Kindervater, who was assigned, along with Donna Stephenson, as a general aide at the middle school.

In other action involving non-professional personnel, the board named Patricia Shay as a lunch aide at the East Franklin School and Jack Woods of Waynesburg R.D.3 as high school driveway security man. Gloria Kindervater and Helen Dittman were again named as callers for substitute teachers at a rate of $1,000 each for the school year.

Kathy Gursky of Grindstone was appointed as a dental hygienist for the district at a rate of $11.75 per hour, with the number of hours she works being determined by the amount of state reimbursement for the program.

In other action, the board:

- Accepted a proposal from Barber-Colman Co. of $2,485 to provide air conditioning for the newly-relocated teachers' planning room at the high school, which has no outside windows or outside air.

- Approved a student transportation schedule which the business manager said contained "very few changes from last year." A contract with Delmont Rose for van transportation in the Spraggs area was transferred to Barbara Simpson and the contract with George Powell for van transportation in the Spraggs area was renewed. Each will be paid $83 a day. Kathryn Courtemanche will be paid $70.75 per round trip for transporting a student to the Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf.
- Approved the 1985-86 high school band itinerary, with provision for transportation costs of between $5,000 and $6,000.
- Awarded contracts to United Ohio Valley Dairy for supplying dairy products to the school district and to Stroemann Brothers Bakery for providing bread products.
- Agreed to purchase a continuous form check signing machine from Burroughs for $1,295.
- Authorized implementation at all grade levels of a model physical education program designed to show students the importance of lifelong physical skills.

Waynesburg Woman Tries To Keep Parking Lot Out

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — A Waynesburg woman whose property adjoins the site of a proposed funeral home parking lot testified at a Waynesburg Zoning Board hearing Monday that while the lot might relieve traffic congestion and parking problems in one area, it would shift them to her neighborhood.

Karen Heincemon, who resides at 250 Cherry Street, is objecting to the issuing of a zoning permit to the Mariner and Milliken Funeral Home to establish a parking lot on the former Ralph Jewell property on College Street, across from the funeral home.

She said the back of her house is within 18 inches of the 60-by-180-foot lot on which the parking lot is to be constructed, and that traffic exiting from it would travel Wine Alley along the side of her house to Cherry Street to get back to College Street.

"It might help relieve problems on College and Maiden Street, but it would create them for me," she said.

Samuel Milliken, who is seeking the zoning permit, said that the funeral home has been located at the corner of Maiden and College streets since 1947 and that it has been under its present ownership since 1960. He said that this is the first time that a piece of property large enough for a parking lot has become available.

He purchased the property earlier this year with the intention of tearing down the house and other buildings on it. He said the paved parking lot would be landscaped, planted with flowers, and have lighting which would illuminate it, but not intrude on neighboring properties.

He also said that he has secured the approval of the owners of all other properties abutting on the site, but has been unable to reach an accommodation with Ms. Heincemon, despite the fact that she had earlier indicated she would be willing to withdraw her objections provided adequate provision was made for her privacy, perhaps through construction of a fence at the rear of her property.

At the time he applied for the permit, which is required because the funeral home is in an R-1 (single-family) zone, Milliken presented the zoning board with a petition signed by 54 residents in the immediate area supporting the parking lot.

A number of them testified at Monday's hearing that parking and traffic congestion has been a problem in the area for many years when visitations and funerals are being held.

"There's always been a parking and traffic flow problem," Frances E. Baldwin of 198 North Maiden Street said. "When they have a funeral or visitors it's impossible to park in front of my house." Asked if it was dangerous, he said "most definitely."

Baldwin and the other property owners who testified along the same line all said they believed the value of their homes would be increased rather than decreased if the parking lot was built.

Kenneth Willison Jr., a Waynesburg real estate broker, also testified that the parking lot would increase property values in the area, including that of Ms. Heincemon's house.

Ms. Heincemon, however, said she felt it would decrease the value of her property. "I do not feel a parking lot is necessary in a residential area," she said.

When questioned under cross-examination by Attorney William Davis as to why she had earlier stated she could work out a satisfactory agreement with Milliken to insure her privacy and then withdrew her objections, she said she had not been represented by legal counsel at that time.

She also conceded that she believed she should receive a settlement and agreed that she had asked for $10,000. She explained, however, that she had no idea that Milliken would agree. "I felt if I made it high enough, he would back off from his little venture," she said.

Following closing arguments by Davis and by Attorney John Hardisty, who is representing Ms. Heincemon, the Zoning Board asked the two attorneys to present them with written summaries of their position so that they will be in a position to hand down a decision in the case at their next regular meeting on Sept. 3.

Lucas Funeral Home Forms Partnership

CARMICHAELS — Martin J. Yoskovich of Washington has joined Michael Lucas of Carmichaels in forming a partnership known as the Lucas and Yoskovich Funeral Home. The partnership will continue to serve both the Carmichaels and Mount Morris communities.

Yoskovich was formerly employed as a funeral director at Piatt and Barnhill Funeral Directors Inc. of Washington. A former resident of Ma-sonstown, he is a graduate of Albert Gallatin High School and Washington and Jefferson College. He attended the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science and completed his resident internship with Piatt and Barnhill Funeral Directors Inc. in 1981. Upon receiving his funeral director's license, he was appointed a deputy coroner of Washington County.

Yoskovich has been certified by the Medical Eye Bank of Pittsburgh in the procedure of eye enucleation for the purpose of corneal transplantation. He was recently presented with a certificate of distinguished service from the Medical Eye Bank. In addition, he is currently serving on the board of directors for the Washington County chapter of the Association for Retarded Citizens.

The Michael Lucas Funeral Home was first opened in Greensboro in 1939. Eight years later, Lucas purchased the property located on the corner of Morgantown and Vine streets in Carmichaels and moved the funeral home to its present location. In 1972, Lucas opened the branch location in Mount Morris.

Yoskovich and his wife, Janice, a registered nurse at Greene County Memorial Hospital, will reside at the Carmichaels funeral home.

Canning Results Listed

WAYNESBURG — Helen C. Dinsmore and Mary Jane Kent, superintendents of the Home and Garden Department at the Greene County Fair, have announced the winners of Ball Home Canning Awards being presented in connection with last week's fair.

In the fruits division, adult winners were Dorothy Clark of Carmichaels R.D.1, first, and Mary Wright of 654 Bowlby Street, Waynesburg, second.

First and second place winners in the vegetable division were, respectively, Orpha Worley and Mabel Barber, both of Grindstone R.D.1.

Kathleen Willner of Sycamore R.D.1 took first place and Byrdena Brant of Keisterville second place in the pickles and relishes division.

In the jams and jellies competition, first place went to Jean Grubbs of Uniontown R.D.1 and second place to Matilda Carter of Carmichaels.

Winners in the junior division were Diana Hetz of Greensboro for vegetables and Jan Mitchell of Rogersville for jams and jellies.

The superintendents also announced that the Greene County Heart Fund received $105 from the baked goods auction held at the fair. The auction was conducted by Marjorie Calvert, chairman of the Baked Goods Department. Rex Lemley and

Emerald Mine A Team Takes First Place

CARMICHAELS — The Emerald Mines Corp. "A" team took first place in the Southwestern Pennsylvania Safety Association regional mine rescue contest held Saturday in Carmichaels.

It marked the third consecutive year that a team from the Waynesburg mine had won the event. The "B" team placed first last year, while the "A" team was the winner in 1983.

The winning team is captained by Alan Vozel, with Tom Coss as briefing officer. Other members are Lou Nagy, Mike Ansell, Brad Miller, Brad Monas and Tom Bochna.

Placing second through fourth, respectively, were U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine No. 1 team, Consolidation Coal Co.'s Bailey Mine team, and the Cumberland Mine No. 2 team.

Winner of the Benchman Award was Malcolm Dunbar, a member of the Mathies Mine team.

The Southwestern Pennsylvania contest was held as a preliminary to the state mine rescue contest, which will be held in Carmichaels Saturday

J-M School Repairs Won't Halt Startup

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

JEFFERSON — The ceilings are gone and the floor is now only bare concrete but, despite its appearance, the Jefferson-Morgan Junior-Senior High School Building has been readied for the start of classes, said Superintendent Kenneth Macek.

At a meeting Monday, Macek assured board members that the building, which is currently being renovated, would be adequately prepared for the Aug. 26 startup date.

The $3.1 million renovation project includes replacement of the floors and the ceilings as well as the installation of new lights, repairs to the roof and replacement of boilers.

The ceilings in the building are being replaced in part because they contained asbestos. Macek reported that the asbestos had been removed, and a test by a Pittsburgh consultant indicated that the level of the material in the building is safe.

There also are some places where additional lighting will be required because of work that has been done, Macek said. He added that additional lights will be provided where they are needed.

The only problems, however, seem to be cosmetic. "All the ceilings have been removed and you're looking at only the joists and lights," Macek said. The rooms will be cleaned, but "it's not a building that has shiny floors."

The lack of ceilings and floors "is not going to hinder the education process," Macek added.

Macek was asked by a person in the audience if students would be safe in the building while work was being conducted during the day. He said students will not be in work areas. The crews will isolate and work on three or four rooms at a time. The arts and crafts, industrial arts and home economics rooms, where work is currently being conducted, won't be open until November, he said.

He also was asked if students should dress any differently because of the condition of the school. His reply was that students can probably wear what they always have worn to school.

In a matter related to the project, the board approved a $3,100 change order, which was necessary because the architect failed to include the cost of the valve that flushes urinals in the project's total costs.

In other business, the board voted to connect to the sewage treatment system which has been proposed by the Lower Ten Mile Joint Sewage Authority. With the action, the district will abandon a treatment plant which was built in 1980 at a cost of $225,000 and which has functioned properly.

"I really think in the end it will be better for the taxpayer," said Business Manager Forrest Cottle. The district won't have to maintain its own plant, or pay very much for connecting to the authority's system.

The state Department of Environmental Resources, which had forced the authority to construct a sewage treatment system, gave the authority the option of including the district in the system or leaving it out. DER said if the district was made to connect, the costs could be included in the authority's federal grant.

The authority had sent a letter to the board asking the board to decide if it wanted to connect to the system. It later sent information on the cost to the district. The authority said the tap-in fee has been estimated at $900 per customer, and the monthly fee will be based on water usage. But the cost of connecting later, without the assistance of the grant, could be about $90,000.

Board President Stanley Fowler was the only member present to vote against the motion. Under this plan, he said, residents in the district who also will be served by the authority will be paying twice, through school taxes and sewage fees.

The board also voted to rehire Macek under a four-year contract. Macek, who has been district superintendent for the past 12 years, said he was "very pleased" with the board's decision. "It was a vote of confidence on the part of the board," he said.

The board also approved a three-year audit by the state Auditor General's Office, which showed no errors or discrepancies had been made in the district's accounts. It was noted that in the past nine years, the district has never been issued a citation for violation of regulations.

It was announced that the Jefferson-Morgan football field would be dedicated to Ben Parker, a former coach and principal, during halftime at the first home football game on Aug. 30. The field will be re-named Parker Field. Fowler will present a plaque to Fowler.

The board also asked Elementary Principal Vicki Monas to establish criteria for testing pupils on whether they are ready for kindergarten; and decided to set up a committee to work with her on the project.

The matter arose when a parent asked the board if the district could make an exception to district policy which says a child must be five years old by Dec. 1 to be enrolled in the kindergarten program. The tests could be another method of determining whether a child is ready to begin school.

Instructional Improvement Is Goal

Central Greene Initiates Staff Projects

WAYNESBURG — During the 1985-86 school year, the Central Greene School District will be involved in two major staff development programs — Staff Development for Instructional Improvement and New Teacher Induction Program.

Beverly Krill, district principal intern, will be leader of the Staff Development for Instructional Improvement program which will be held on the Waynesburg College campus.

Plans call for the holding of three separate four-day workshops with 15 teachers in each. The program will be continued throughout the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years.

The program will focus on teaching as decision making, elements of instruction, learning taxonomies, and thinking skills. The program is based on Madeline Hunter's "Science of the Art of Teaching."

Phyllis Davis, Intermediate Unit I program specialist, will serve as administrative facilitator throughout Cable splicing uses new technology when using fiber optic cable. The fiber, the thickness of a human hair, must be cut perfectly square. The two ends are inserted into a splicing machine, butted and fused by heat until melted together. A plastic book is placed over the splice, heat shrunk and the completed splice is then placed in the proper sequence in an organizer.

ALLTEL Installs New Cable

WAYNESBURG — Customers of ALLTEL Pennsylvania, Inc. in the Mt. Morris and Bobtown exchanges can expect their toll calls to be routed over fiber optic cable the week of Sept. 16 according to present indications.

Fiber optic fusion, or splicing, of the outside cable going on presently should be complete by Aug. 23. The equipment necessary to connect fiber optic cable to the switch gear in Mt. Morris and Waynesburg central offices is expected by Sept. 1.

Installation of this equipment will commence immediately upon its arrival. Special schooling for ALLTEL employees in maintenance procedures of fiber optics will be held Sept. 10-11.

New digital switches will replace mechanical switches in the Bobtown, Greensboro and Graysville central offices in the near future. Nov. 9 the cutover date for Bobtown and Greensboro equipment with Graysville to follow on Nov. 15.

Dialing changes will be necessary in some instances and will be explained at a later date. Once the new switches are installed, technically speaking, Bobtown, Greensboro and Graysville will become satellite switches with Waynesburg as the host.

According to Gordon Curry, vice president operations, over 18 miles of fiber optic cable has been strung and will be used to make connections at the central offices.

The present copper cable will be used as subscriber cable once the change over to fiber optics has been effected.

Smithsonian Exhibit Put On Display

CARMICHAELS — A film, "With Babes and Banners," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. today at the Flenniken Memorial Library at Carmichaels as one of the special programs to be held in conjunction with the Smithsonian exhibit, "Perfect in Her Place: Women at Work in Industrial America," which is currently on display at the library.

"With Babes and Banners" tells the story of the Women's Emergency Brigade which was formed during the sit-down strikes in the auto industry in the 1930s. Following the film, Sara Bradmon, president of a local union, and Marcia Biddle, author of a book on women labor leaders, will speak. Both are Carmichaels residents.

"Perfect in Her Place" is a collection of photographs and lithographs which illustrate the history of women in the workplace. They are mounted on panels with explanatory texts which are displayed on walls of the library.

The exhibit, which opened Monday, Aug. 19, will remain in place until Sept. 14, after which it will be shipped on to its next showing at the Buffalo (N.Y.) Historical Society. The Carmichaels showing is being sponsored by the Greene County Council on the Arts. Its cost of $800 is funded by a mini-grant from the Pennsylvania Humanities Council and with contributions from the Carmichaels Area Chamber of Commerce and other donors.

To augment the Smithsonian exhibit, the council has arranged for the display of tools commonly used by women in years past — a wooden washing machine, an antique typewriter, telephone, churn, spinning and weaving tools, and many others. They are on loan from the Greene County Museum and from private collections.

Admission to the library and to the special programs, which will be held each Wednesday evening during the run of the exhibit, is free.

MBA Program In Third Year

WAYNESBURG — The Masters in Business Administration program at Waynesburg College enters its third year this fall with the first semester of the 1985-86 term to begin Aug. 26.

Over 140 students have enrolled in the program since its inception. Twenty-two individuals received degrees in May and 25 new MBA students have already enrolled for the fall term.

Courses being offered this year include marketing management, statistical methods, applied economics, operations management, human resources management, financial management, management policy, financial accounting for managers, the master's paper, and also business, government and society.

Further information concerning the graduate degree program may be obtained by contacting the admissions office at Waynesburg College.

Burned Man Files Suit

WAYNESBURG — A Greene County man who was burned when gasoline backfired through the carburetor of a pickup truck has filed suit in Greene County Court seeking damages "in excess of $20,000."

William H. Whitlatch of Sycamore R.D.1 claims that negligence on the part of individuals who were attempting to start the truck by pouring gasoline into the carburetor caused the accident on Feb. 25, 1985, at the home of Ronnie Barr and Donise D. Ankrom of Waynesburg R.D.1.

Barr, Ms. Ankrom and George W. Fields Jr. of Holbrook R.D.1 are named as defendants.

According to the complaint, Whitlatch and Fields went to the home of Barr and Ms. Ankrom to purchase a pool table, which Ms. Ankrom agreed to deliver in her pickup truck. Finding the truck was out of gas, they purchased five gallons of gas, part of which was used to prime the carburetor in an effort to start the vehicle.

The complaint states that Whitlatch was standing beside the truck while Fields was pouring gasoline from a beverage can into the carburetor while Barr was trying to start the engine. When the engine backfired through the carburetor, it states, it caught the beverage can on fire, causing Fields to throw it to one side.

The flaming can struck Whitlatch, setting his clothing on fire. The plaintiff states he suffered second and third degree burns over 15 percent of his body, primarily the left chest, arm and hand, which required extensive skin grafts and left him permanently scarred.

Library Contest Winners Named

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Library System's Outreach for Books program and the Bowlby Public Library have announced the names of winners in the county-wide scrapbook contest held throughout the summer.

The contest, entitled "The World's Most Interesting Kid," was a cooperative effort of the county library system. Flenniken Memorial Library at Carmichaels also took part in the contest but will announce its winners at a later date.

The children prepared scrapbooks containing a list of favorite things, wishes, artwork, poetry, and a list of books read over the summer.

Winners at the various Outreach locations were Adam Smith, John Velicevich and Elizabeth Zahand. Those receiving honorable mention were Tonya Addis, Myra Billez, Lauren Bristor, Jonas Dusenberry, Rachael Dusenberry, Jeremy Kuharcik, Marlaina Mallory and Dawn Velicevich.

Stacy Ankney, Carrie Dorean, Emily Dorean and Janice Tsai were winners at the Bowlby Library. Honorable mention went to Rhonda Conner, Cathy Fahey, Ellen Fahey, Julie Krill, Rebecca Krill, Andrea Ratulowski, Josephine Tsai and Megan E. Yost.

All children who participated received certificates and prizes which were donated by Waynesburg area businesses.

Scrapbooks and prizes must be picked up at the Outreach locations and at the Bowlby Library no later than Sept. 25.

Licenses Required For Gold Dealers

WAYNESBURG — Greene County Sheriff Remo Bertugli said Monday that he has obtained licenses which purchasers of gold, silver and other precious metals must obtain before they can do business in the county.

A new state law requires all dealers in precious metals to obtain a license from the county sheriff before doing business in a county.

The license fee, good for one year, costs $50, which goes into the county treasury. It applies both to dealers permanently located in a county and to those who come in during the year to purchase precious metals.

Bertugli said precious metals includes all articles containing gold, silver or platinum. The act excludes coins or any article containing less than 5 percent of gold, silver or platinum by weight.

The sheriff said that the act provides for the charging of unlicensed dealers with a misdemeanor of the third degree.

Carmichaels Girl Tours In Musical

CARMICHAELS — Sandra Yarish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Yarish of Carmichaels, recently appeared in her 1,000th performance in the hit musical "42nd Street."

Sandra was chosen for the chorus of the original road company of the David Merrick production in the fall of 1982. Merrick chose her for the small role of Lorraine at that time.

In October 1984, she was promoted from the chorus line to the role of Annie, which was played by Ginger Rogers in the movie starring Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell.

The company is now performing at the Auditorium Theatre in Denver,

James Hopton and Nancy Dukate, officers of the Greene County Council on the Arts, mount Smithsonian exhibit on walls at Flenniken Memorial Library.
