Carmichaels Girl Is Bituminous Coal Queen

CARMICHAELS — Much to the delight of her hometown supporters, Tammy Rene Croftcheck, representing Carmichaels Area High School, danced her way to the title of Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal Queen during competition Sunday night in the high school auditorium.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Croftcheck of Carmichaels, the new queen performed an acrobatic dance. She wore a white, chiffon gown with puffed sleeves adorned with seed pearls.

The queen is also head cheerleader, a member of the National Honor Society and several other school organizations.

First runner-up was Diana Lynn Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Boyd of Waynesburg, representing Waynesburg Central High School. She performed a piano solo during the competition.

Second runner-up was Jamie Morgan, representing Laurel Highlands, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morgan of Uniontown. Third runner-up was Laura Cochran of Mary Fuller Frazier High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cochran of Dawson.

Susan Franty of Uniontown Area High School was selected as fourth runner-up. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Franty of Uniontown. Jacqueline Poyle, a student at Beth Center High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Poyle of Richeyville was chosen by her fellow contestants as "Miss Congeniality."

U.S. Steel Co. Cumberland Mine Number One team captured the 1985 State Mine Rescue Contest held last Saturday, defeating 21 other teams.

The winning team had zero deductions.

Members of the winning team include Ken Murray, captain; Gary Klinefelter, John Chambers, Dan Fraley, Wayne Knisely, Almon Tressler and Mike Collins, briefing officer and benchman. Each member of the winning team received a plaque donated by the United Mine Workers of America and a team trophy donated by Mine Safety Appliances.

Helen Mining Co., with eight deductions, captured second place and a trophy donated by the Keystone Bituminous Coal Association.

Third place was awarded to the Emerald Mine "A" team of Emerald Mines Corp. on the basis of 11 deductions. Members of this local team include Alan Vozel, captain; Lou Nagy, Mike Ansell, Brad Miller, Brad Monas, Tom Coss, briefing officer and Tom Bochna, alternate and benchman.

A team from Greenwich No. 2, of Pennsylvania Mines Corp., captured fourth place with 12 deductions noted.

Ethics Commission Clears Cumberland Twp. Supervisor

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

HARRISBURG — The State Ethics Commission has cleared Cumberland Township Supervisor William Groves of any wrongdoing in connection with charges he used township equipment and personnel for private purposes and used his office to obtain work for a company with which he is a partner.

The commission's ruling, which answers a complaint filed by a citizen on December 17, 1984, lists two allegations against Groves for violations of Section 3-A of the State Ethics Act. The act prohibits public officials from using their office or confidential information gained through that office for personal financial gain.

The first allegation accused Groves of using township equipment and personnel for such private purposes as cleaning and installing a fishing lake for the Dry Tavern Sportsman's Club, installing a driveway at his home and the home of another private citizen, having township employees service a private vehicle and having township gravel hauled to his home and business.

In the second allegation, Groves was accused of using his office to obtain work for the Baily Trucking Co., in which Groves reportedly was a partner.

After investigating the charges, the commission concluded "there is no evidence that (Groves) used township equipment or personnel for private purpose and we find no violation" of the ethics act. It added, "each of the incidents alleged were actions related to (Groves') responsibility for the township."

The commission also said that Baily Trucking Company, PUC, Inc., a separate company from the Baily Trucking Company and one in which Groves does have an interest, has never received business from the township; therefore no violation exists.

"As far as we're concerned, and our law is concerned, that's the end of the case," said Edward Seladones, executive director of the State Ethics Commission.

The commission refused to release the name of the person who filed the complaint. According to Seladones, all complaints investigated by the commission must be accompanied by a notarized statement affirming that facts set forth in the complaint are true. Even though there was no evidence to support the allegations against Groves, the commission believes the person who filing the complaint had "not knowingly filed false statements," he said.

Groves said Thursday that he had received a letter from the commission, dated August 5, informing him that he had been absolved of the allegations. He also said an earlier complaint, similar to the first allegation against, had been filed with the commission against supervisor William Schifko; the commission had cleared Schifko of any wrongdoing in July.

"It's very easy to get investigated if you're a public official," Groves said. "All it takes is for one person out of the 7,100 (persons in the township) to file a complaint."

Questioned about specific actions listed in the allegations, Groves said about many of them that they simply were untrue. He also added that many of the actions had been approved by the supervisors at public meetings and were recorded in the minutes of the meeting.

In the findings, the commission reported that through its investigations it discovered:

That Hopkins and Sons of Waynesburg had built the lake at the Dry Tavern Sportsman's Club sometime in 1982, and there was no evidence township equipment or personnel were used on the project.

That the township had removed two trees from in front of a resident's home at Dowlin and South streets, but the trees were not on private property and were damaging the sidewalk; the township agreed to remove the stumps if the property owner dug around them, and this was done.

That the township built an access road to the home of a township resident near Stringtown after the road collapsed; it was determined that repairing the road would cost between $50,000 and $75,000 and the township engineer recommended that in its place a new road be built on the resident's property; a proper agreement was obtained from the owner.

That the auditors had approved the use of the supervisor's personal vehicles for hauling township employees and equipment and established a rate of compensation for use of the vehicles; no wrong was committed when the hitch on a supervisor's truck broke while hauling a road roller on township business, and the hitch was repaired by township employees.

That no evidence was found that Groves had used township equipment to haul gravel to his home or business. Groves said his driveway had been installed before he became a supervisor, and the driveway at his business, a service station in Dry Tavern, is covered with blacktop, which was laid before he became a supervisor.

In the findings on the accusation that Groves had used his office to obtain work for Baily Trucking Company, the commission found that the Baily Trucking Company has received contracts with the township between 1979 and 1984. The company, however, is owned by J. Craig Baily and his wife and Groves has "no financial interest in that business," the commission said.

The commission found there is no evidence that the company formed by Groves and Baily on June 5, 1984 — Baily Trucking Company, PUC, Inc. — has ever received business from the township.

Groves added that he has listed his interest in Baily PUC on his financial disclosure statement each year since the business was formed.

Stabbing Suspect Was Released From Mayview

CARMICHAELS — According to a news release issued by the Pennsylvania State Police Monday, Steve J. Kotarsky, 18, of Nemaocolin, who is accused of stabbing his mother to death Sunday afternoon, was recently discharged from Mayview Hospital.

Police said Kotarsky stabbed his mother, Patricia Elaine O'Brien, 41, five times with a large kitchen knife. There were three wounds in the chest and two in the back.

The incident occurred at about 2 p.m. at the height of a family argument.

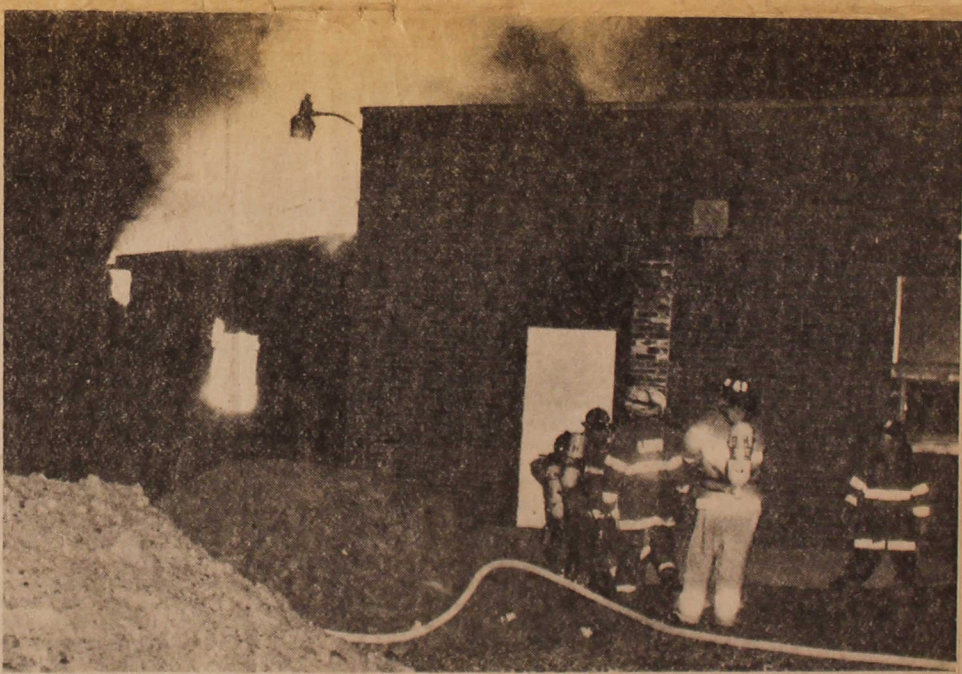

Following arraignment before

Magistrate Ruth Hughes, the suspect was taken to Greene County Jail and held without bail.

Waynesburg attorney John Stets has been appointed by the court to represent Kotarsky.

According to an anonymous source in Carmichaels, Kotarsky was under medication following his release from the hospital.

He was being considered for accelerated rehabilitative disposition (ARD) after being charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. However, this consideration was dropped a few weeks ago when the Flames shoot out of the rear of the Graffiti Restaurant and Auto Ranch Outlet in Morrisville.

Morrisville Store Burns

WAYNESBURG — Fire of undetermined origin heavily damaged a brick building in Morrisville which housed the Graffiti Restaurant and an auto parts store, both owned and operated by G. Ronald Hall of Waynesburg R.D.2.

"I would say the building was damaged beyond repair," Waynesburg Fire Chief Pete Walker said. He estimated the loss at $100,000, including $25,000 for contents.

The fire which broke out shortly after midnight Monday was the second one to ravage the building. It was extensively damaged in March 1983, but was rebuilt by Hall, who reopened the restaurant in January.

"At this point I have no plans for building again," Hall said Monday.

Walker said the blaze broke out in an office at the rear of the parts store and in the hallways at the rear of the building. State Police Fire Marshal Walter Anderson was called in by Walker, who said the fire is still under investigation.

Hall said that he and his parents were in Nashville, Tenn., for the weekend visiting his sister.

"We drove back Sunday night and got home about 11:30 p.m. after an 11-hour trip," he said. "We had just gotten to bed when we were called about the fire."

Hall said the restaurant had been open Sunday night and that employees had apparently left shortly before the blaze broke out. "I understand they were there until almost 11:30," he said.

The alarm was turned in by Mark Collins and John Smith of Waynesburg, who said they saw smoke coming out of the building as they drove past shortly after midnight.

"We drove to the fire hall and turned in the alarm," Collins said. "Firemen were on the scene within minutes."

The heaviest fire damage was confined to the rear of the building where the offices and food storage rooms were located, but there also was extensive damage throughout the two-story structure. Jefferson firemen were called to help in fighting the blaze, which firemen brought under control within 30 minutes.

Walker said that part of the loss of contents was borne by Chessy's Auto Wrecking Service of Core, W.Va., which had both new and used auto parts in the building under consignment.

tim died of a massive hemorrhage due to stab wounds of the chest.

Mrs. O'Brien and her two sons, Steve and Tom were making their home with her mother, Mrs. Mildred O'Brien, 74, at 164 Westwood Avenue in Nemaocolin.

Apparently the victim, the elder Mrs. O'Brien and the suspect were the only ones at home at the time of the incident. Tom Katarsky is attending West Virginia University.

Lake Slowly Disappearing At Ryerson Park

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WIND RIDGE — When Ryerson Station State Park opened in 1960, the lake which forms its central attraction covered 62 acres, reaching well up into the North Fork of Wheeling Creek, from which it was formed.

Twenty-five years later, the size of the lake has been reduced by an estimated 20 acres due to a serious silting problem which Park Superintendent Dave Barrett feels could make the lake virtually useless in the next 20 years unless something is done.

For the past two years Barrett has recommended, without success, that complete dredging of the lake be included in the annual budget of the Department of Environmental Resources, which maintains and operates the park.

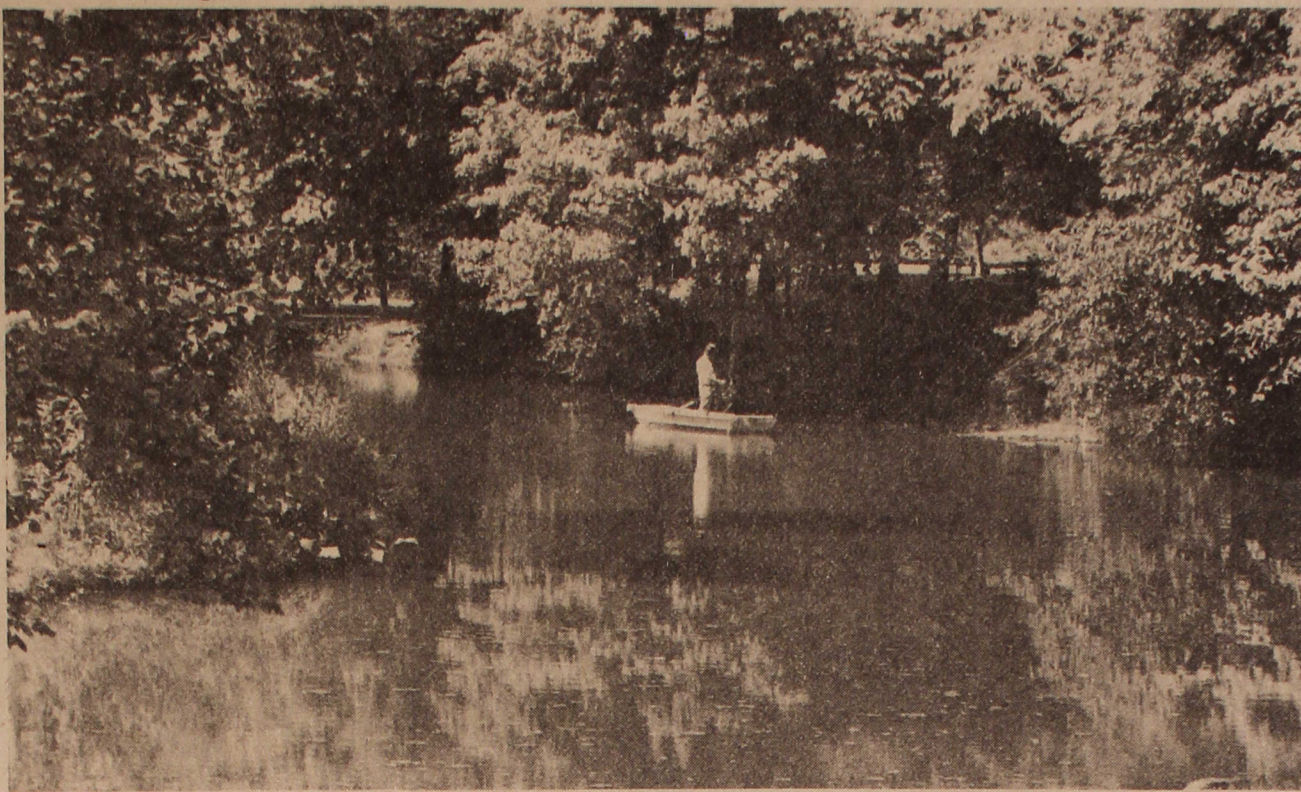

"It's probably money, since it is estimated that it would cost a million dollars to do the job," Barrett said Friday.

Barrett, however, will be getting support from a group of local fishermen who are concerned about the situation and the effect it is having on what they regard as the center of trout fishing in Greene County.

Ken W. Dufalla of Waynesburg R.D.1, who works at Ryerson part time, said that he and a number of other fishermen are currently circulating petitions asking for DER action. They are also making arrangements for a meeting with State Sen. Barry Stout and Rep. H. William DeWeese to seek their support.

"Whenever you see a grass-covered island grow in the center of the lake, you know you have a bad problem," he said.

Approximately a half mile of lake, from the handicapped area upstream to an iron bridge at the head of the lake, are most affected by the silting problem. Dufalla noted, however, that the depth of the main portion of the lake, behind the dam, has been reduced from 22 feet to about 18 feet.

He noted that on the opening day of trout season there are always "some 4,000 people at the lake" and that it is a popular place with warm water fisherman. But Barrett, who is also a deputy waterways conservation officer with the Fish Commission, wonders how long the commission will keep stocking the lake in view of the silting problem.

"At one time there were a lot of good bass in the lake, but no longer," he said. "They can't live with that kind of a mud bottom."

Dufalla, who is a teacher in the Trinity School District, said that copies of the petition are available from him, from Richard Ketchum of Waynesburg R.D.3, at Ozzie's Sports Shop in Dry Tavern, from Richard Wendell of Wind Ridge, and at the Wind Ridge Sportsmen's Club.

Dufalla and the other fishermen would like to see the DER draw down the lake to 6 or 7 feet and then dredge out the silt to the iron bridge. They feel that a silt basin could then be installed near the iron bridge to catch soil as it continues to wash downstream. "It could be cleaned periodically without too much trouble and it would prevent or at least cut to a minimum future silting in the lake. Barrett estimates there are some 225,000 cubic yards of silt in the lake which would have to be removed. "A large part of the cost would be in hauling it away and finding a place to put it," he said.

He agrees with Dufalla, however, that preservation of the lake should be of prime importance with the DER.

"It's used for boating as well as fishing and is the scenic heart of the park," he said. "We've greatly expanded and improved the facilities around the lake, but we're letting the lake itself go."

Blake Weirich, southwest regional biologist for the Fish Commission, agreed that the lake has lost a large percentage of its size and depth due to the silt problem. He pointed out that several years ago the late Ronald Duke, who at that time was Ryerson Park superintendent, had part of the lake dredged with partial success.

"The valley floor is high in erosive materials. If you look at the banks of the creeks you will find them bare. Not much can be done."

Weirich also said that one of the reasons the requests for money are not getting priority from the DER is because of the remote location of Ryerson Station State Park.

"It's probably the least used lake in western Pennsylvania because of its location," Weirich said. "More people from West Virginia probably fish in it than from Pennsylvania."

Barrett, however, sees the park as an important part of the state's recreational network, noting that it attracts thousands of people each year who use the boating, picnicking, swimming, camping and hiking facilities, as well as being a popular place with fishermen.

"It's a beautiful park and we'd like to keep it that way," he said.

Planning Panel Studies More Building Projects

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Plans for several development projects throughout the county were reviewed by the Greene County Planning Commission Monday as administrators of the county site plan ordinance.

They involved a mining company office in Waynesburg, a new post office in Brave, a service station and convenience store in Mt. Morris, a church parking lot in Carmichaels and a school bus garage in Dry Tavern.

The board gave final approval to plans for construction of a headquarters building for Emway Resources, Inc., operators of the Emerald mine in Waynesburg. When it is completed, the company will move its headquarters from its present location in the Millcraft Center, Washington.

David Hook of Waynesburg will erect the building for lease to Emway, the one-story structure, containing 8,200 feet of space, will be located on Elm Drive, off Route 21 east of Waynesburg, near Greene Plaza Shopping Center. Contractor for the project will be McAnallen Corp. of Washington.

Donald Zalaznik presented plans for construction of a new post office building in Brave to replace the present post office located in an addition to a house. The 25-by-45-foot building will be erected opposite the Wayne Township fire hall and will include parking for 10 cars.

The planning commission gave preliminary approval to the project, subject primarily to assurance that construction will take into account the possibility of flooding in the area. County Planner Valerie Cole was authorized to issue final approval when all conditions of the ordinance have been met.

The same type of approval was given to plans for construction of an Exxon service center and convenience store just off Route 30107 at the southbound ramp of the Mt. Morris interchange of Interstate 79.

The facility is to be developed by Marshall Bishop of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., on land leased from Joseph George of Mt. Morris, with construction to start later this year.

The board granted a variance to permit the private service road for the facility to be built to a width of 24 feet to match the width of the state highway it will access. The ordinance stipulates that such roads be 30 feet wide.

Betty Morris of Carmichaels met with the commission regarding plans by the First United Methodist Church of Carmichaels for a 60-by-150-foot lot it plans to purchase from Orpha Baily.

She said the church plans to tear down two vacant houses on the property and to use at least part of the lot for a church parking lot and, eventually, to use it as the site for a church manse. The property is located at the corner of Vine (Route 88) and West South streets.

The planning commission recommended that any access to the lot be from South Street rather than Vine Street, and also stipulated that plans for the lot be submitted to Mrs. Cole when they have been prepared.

No action was required on plans for a school bus shelter to be built along Route 188 in Dry Tavern by John L. and Jack McNelly of Waynesburg. The three-sided shelter, measuring 147 by 50 feet, will be added to an existing garage which is to be remodeled.

The planning commission also reviewed plans for two sewage package treatment plants.

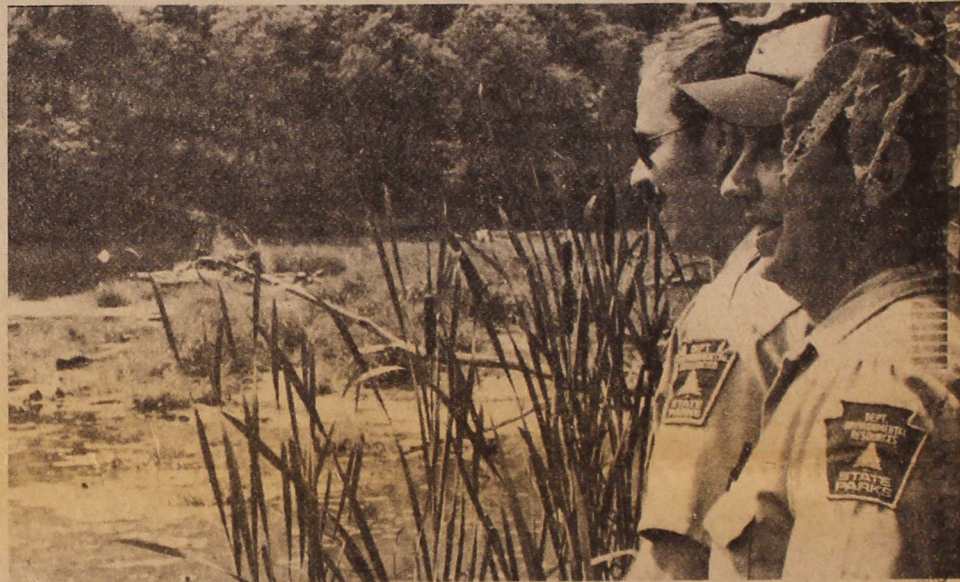

One will be built at West Penn Power Co.'s Hatfield Ferry power plant to replace an existing in-ground septic system. It will have a capacity of 2,000 gallons per day to provide for additional toilet and washroom facilities.

The other plant is to be built by Southeastern Greene School District at the new Penn Pitt Elementary School, where the septic system has rarely functioned properly. According to the application, the district decided to build the package treatment plant when tests indicated that the site was not suitable for in-ground facilities.

The plant will have a capacity of 2,200 gallons per day to accommodate the existing enrollment of 300 students and the 32 staff members, but will be designed to permit future expansion of the plant.

Mrs. Cole briefed planning commission members on plans by West Penn Power to erect a 200-foot-tall microwave communication tower at its district headquarters in Dry Tavern and on progress being made with the establishment of county committees to become involved with planning for solid waste disposal and with staffing of the new tourist information center the Department of Transportation plans to install as part of roadside rest facilities on Interstate 79 south of Kirby.

David M. Smith of Carmichaels was introduced as a new member of the planning commission. He moved to Carmichaels after retiring as treasurer of the University of Pittsburgh.

West Greene Board Hires 3 Teachers

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

NEW FREEPORT — Three teachers were hired last Friday by the West Greene School Board as it completed its preparations for the start of classes.

At the continuation of a meeting recessed last Thursday, the board voted to hire Jane McCollum of Waynesburg as a special education teacher, Connie McClure of Charleston, W.Va., as a home economics teacher and Dave Davis of Clarksville as an elementary school teacher.

It was noted that McCollum and McClure both have teaching experience, and their annual salaries were set at $13,000. Davis, who is without experience, was hired at a salary of $10,600.

Roy Barnhart, chairman of the board's personnel committee, also noted that the salaries are subject to whatever salaries are finally negotiated with the teachers' union.

The West Greene School District has yet to reach a contract settlement with its teachers. Classes will begin on Monday, however, as both sides have agreed to abide by terms of the contract that recently expired.

According to board president Dan Morris, there should be no problems with the start of school. "The teachers have agreed (to continue under the old contract) and are cooperating in every way," he said.

Negotiating teams for the board and teachers last met Aug. 20. Morris said last Thursday that the two sides have made progress, and he is optimistic a contract can be reached without a strike.

In other business, the board hired Kevin Jackson as an assistant football coach and approved five persons as unpaid volunteers for varsity football. The volunteers are Randy Guthrie, Jon Helphenstine, Jamie Reed, Kenny Jones and Jay Jones.

The board voted to add Mary Bowman and Rose Mary Andrew to the substitute teacher list; David Andrejak to the substitute custodian list; and Cynthia Curtis to the substitute cafeteria worker list.

The board also decided to accept a bid for milk from Fike's Dairy. The board had accepted Fike's bid at its meeting Thursday, but later was informed by the company there was an error in its prices, and the revised prices would be in accordance with those established by the milk marketing board.

The board heard from Wyletta Stewart, who asked for special transportation for her daughter. Mrs. Stewart said because of health problems she cannot take her daughter to the bus stop. The board asked Mrs. Stewart to discuss her request with Superintendent Paul Polink.

Habitat Volunteers

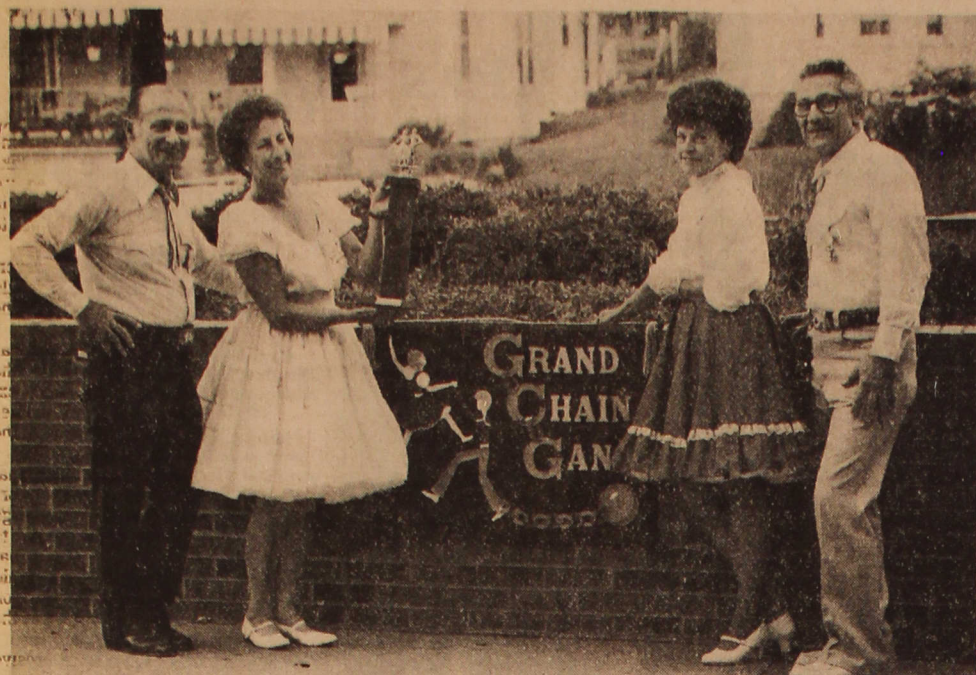

More than 20 volunteers started work Saturday morning on a home recently purchased by Habitat for Humanity at 181 East Greene Street in Waynesburg. The home will be remodeled and then sold to a young couple selected from a list of 50. The new owners will only pay the actual costs and will repay the mortgage on an interest-free contract. Volunteers left to right, Richard Cowan, Bill Szonogle, Bob Bishop, Bill Sukolsky and Rex Gardner.

Ram, Ewe Sale Scheduled

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Sheep and Wool Growers Association will hold its 18th annual registered ram and ewe sale at the Greene County Fairgrounds Saturday.

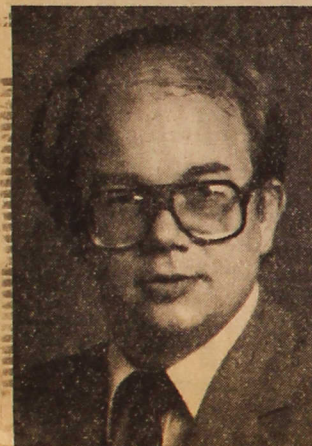

The sale is combined with a field day which includes activities throughout the day.

Animals for the sale will be checked in between 7 and 10 a.m., with a sheep show being held at 1:30 p.m. A lamb blocking contest will be held at 3 p.m. and a lead line contest at 5 p.m., with competition being held in four divisions — tots, juniors, ladies and shepherds.

The sale will be held at 6:30 p.m. under management of William L. Patton, with Charles J. (Bud) Behm as auctioneer.

Rams will be offered for sale in the Dorset, Hampshire and Suffolk breeds. Registered ewes will be available in the Dorset, Hampshire, Merino, Rambouillet and Suffolk breeds. The Suffolk breed offers the largest est number of consignments with 25 rams and 48 ewes. Thirty-two consignors from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia will have sheep in the sale.

DR. CLARK LANTZ

WVU Professor Selected To Present Paper

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Dr. Clark Lantz, assistant professor of anatomy at West Virginia University Medical School, has been selected to present a paper at the 4th European Symposium for stereology to be held Monday through Friday in Gothenburg, Sweden.

Lantz' paper, entitled "Morphometric alterations in the lung induced by inhaled bacterial endotoxin," concerns original research dealing with the health effects to cotton mill workers following exposure to cotton dust.

Lantz, a 1966 graduate of West Greene High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lantz of Rogersville and is married to Kristine Marley Lantz, formerly of Holbrook.

He received his bachelor of science degree in physics from Juniata College in 1970 and his doctorate in physiology and biophysics from West Virginia University in 1975.

Following four years of post-doctoral research at Rockefeller University in New York and Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., Lantz returned to West Virginia University.

The annual Hixenbaugh reunion will be held Sunday, Sept. 8, at the South Franklin Township pavilion in Lagonda, Washington County. Lunch is scheduled for 1 p.m.

Each family attending is asked to bring a wrapped gift for a white elephant sale and a picnic lunch. Tableware and coffee will be furnished. Games will be held with prizes being awarded.

All family members and friends are invited.

PYLE
Descendants of Warren and Amanda Troy Pyle held their 39th annual reunion on Sunday, Aug. 25, at SSS Grove, Bealsville, with more than 50 people in attendance.

During a short business meeting, Jane Snyder was elected president. Other officers elected were Ron Krupzig, vice president; Lynda Smith, secretary, and Charles Snyder, treasurer.

Date of the 1986 reunion will be announced at a later date.

ACKLEY
Descendants of Forrest S. and Cora Smith Ackley will meet for their annual reunion Saturday at the William Horne farm, nine miles east of Waynesburg on Route 21.

Friends and relatives are asked to bring a basket lunch, beverage, table service and chair for lunch at noon.

SUSANNAH CROW

UM Ministries Picks Coordinator

The Greene County United Methodist Ministries recently appointed Susannah M. Crow as church and community coordinator for Greene County.

Miss Crow is a graduate of Waynesburg College. She received her bachelor of arts degree in English, with an emphasis on writing.

While attending college, she was involved with the school newspaper and Avant Garde, an organization for non-traditional students. In 1983, Miss Crow was awarded special mention in The Green Fuse Poetry Contest for "Death Swept in on Golden Wings."

Miss Crow attends the Fairview United Methodist Church in Wind Ridge. She is actively involved in the choir, newsletter publication and rest home visitations. She is a co-leader of the youth group. Miss Crow also has developed and helped in the production of an Easter cantata, homecoming program and Christmas program.

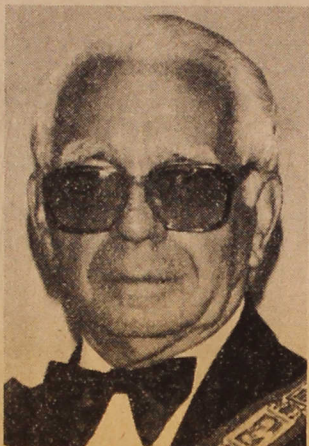

Among other responsibilities, Miss Crow will set up workshops, recreational events, and work toward meeting the goals and needs of the Greene County Methodist Churches. She will be under the supervision of the ministries executive committee and will work with 15 pastors and 39 churches.

Her office will be in the parish house of the First United Methodist Church in Waynesburg. Miss Crow will begin the responsibilities of church and community coordinator Sept. 1.

Mobile Home Guttled By Fire

A mobile home owned by Reed H. and Karen S. Clutter of Prosperity R.D.1 was damaged beyond repair by a fire which started at the back of the home.

State police reported the incident occurred about 6:40 p.m. Sunday on L.R. 62114, about a mile west of Route 221, Morris Township.

GAIL M. KENT

County Native Grand Master Of Odd Fellows

HARRISBURG — Gail M. Kent of Belle Vernon, formerly of Brave in Greene County, has been installed as grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, jurisdiction of Pennsylvania.

Ceremonies were held at the Marriott Hotel in Harrisburg.

As grand master, he will have jurisdiction over 240 lodges with a combined membership of more than 11,000.

Kent, who chose as his theme, "Get Odd Fellowship from under the bushel," feels that Odd Fellows have been hiding their good works under a bushel for too many years. Some of their projects include World Eye Bank, United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth, the only fraternal organization allowed this privilege, as well as providing and maintaining two homes for the care and comfort of the aged in Pennsylvania.

The organization has such varied and extensive experience in the field of the aged, that the Odd Fellows serve on President Reagan's committee for the aged.

Local Odd Fellow lodges are located in Waynesburg, Clarksville-Triad and Dunkard Valley at Taylor-town. Local Rebekah lodges include Brave, where Mr. Kent holds membership; Waynesburg, Clarksville and Taylor-town.

Grand Master Kent and his wife Alberta have three children.

They were residents of Brave until 1959, when he was transferred to Monessen. They now reside at Belle Vernon R.D.2.

Rotary's Youth Exchange Student Arrives In Brazil

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg Rotary Club learned Monday that Marj Marotta of Waynesburg, the club's 1985-86 youth exchange student, has arrived in Brazil and is now with the first of four families she will visit during the next year.

She will be living with Judge and Mrs. Antonio Marinho Machado and family of Vila Velha, north of Rio de Janeiro.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marotta left New York on Aug. 17 with 100 students and landed in Brazil following a 12-hour flight. She was greeted by her hosts at the airport. Marj is an early graduate of Waynesburg Central High School, having received her diploma in June.

Hospice Plans Session For Training Volunteers

WAYNESBURG — Hospice Care, Inc. will begin its next volunteer training program in September for Waynesburg area residents at St. George's Episcopal Church on Bonar Avenue in Waynesburg.

The 24-hour training program occurs over six weeks and is required for all volunteers who will be working in the homes of patients with life-limiting and terminal illnesses.

"Our patients have unique medical, emotional and spiritual needs," according to Alice Marie Teagarden, the non-profit agency's director of social services.

"As a result, we make our volunteers sensitive to the different requirements of patients in a hospice home-care program versus those in an institutional setting or those experiencing less limiting illnesses. We also concentrate on the needs of family members who are taking care of their loved ones."

The volunteer training program covers an overflow of the hospice concept, cancer and its effects, emotional and spiritual aspects of hospice.

Dinner Benefits Hospice Care Inc.

Hospice Care Inc., the home care program serving terminally ill individuals in Greene and Washington counties, and Women in Need (WIN), a new pro-life volunteer organization will sponsor a spaghetti dinner from 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 4 at the Waynesburg Moose Lodge.

Cost is $4 for an adult and $2.50 for children under 12.

Women of the Moose are donating their time and use of their facilities with all proceeds being split between the two agencies. Tickets may be purchased at the Hospice office or at the door.

home care medical equipment, communication skills, stages of death and dying and bereavement.

In addition to working with patients and families in the home, Hospice Care volunteers can also help the agency with fund raising, clerical work and transportation.

Any individual interested in signing up for the program or wishing more information can call the Hospice Care office at 627-8118.

President Chosen By Farm Women

JEFFERSON — Dorothy Pyle was elected president of the Greene County Society of Farm Women during the organization's annual picnic held last week at the George Pyle farm, Jefferson R.D.1.

More than 50 members from various clubs attended the picnic.

Other officers elected were Maxine Anderson, vice president; Irene Robson, secretary, and Grace Fuller, treasurer.

Mine Employees Provide United Way Challenge

The quota for Greene County's United Way campaign has been increasing each year. This year's goal of $110,000 is $20,000 higher than that set for the 1984 drive.

While it might be coincidence, it is interesting that the county quota has been increasing in proportion to the target which employees at U.S. Steel's Cumberland Mine at Kirby set for themselves.

The mine United Way campaign, which is held as a pacesetter event for the county drive, has regularly been producing 50 percent or more of the entire county effort. This year is no exception.

When the 1985 county campaign was kicked off last week, it was announced that Cumberland Mine employees had pledged donations of more than $57,000 to exceed their own goal. It represented participation by 83 percent of the 500 people in the mine's labor and management work force.

In 1984, Cumberland Mine accounted for $45,421 of the county quota of $90,000.

The mine campaign is a joint effort by all levels of employees. It was conducted this year by a team headed by management representative Jim Blanc and UMWA representative Joseph Peroni, who arranged for the individualsolicitation of each employee.

"This makes the fifth year that we have surpassed the goal we set for ourselves," mine engineer Brian Howarth said at the county kickoff. "Our people recognize the need to help people who aren't working or who need help for some other reason. They're willing to make a sacrifice to provide some of that help."

County Campaign Chairperson Lois Hewitt noted that all money raised in Greene County goes to 14 county agencies which provide a variety of services to people in need.

As it has in the past, the Cumberland Mine contribution provides a challenge that people who work for other companies can shoot for in assisting those less fortunate than themselves.

'Pink Eye' Disease Is Reported In Area

WAYNESBURG — Several cases of acute catarrhal conjunctivitis (pink eye) have been reported in area and is apparently causing concern because of schools re-opening soon.

The highly contagious disease of the eye usually occurs in the spring and fall and is caused by various bacteria.

A Waynesburg woman, who recently contracted the disease, has sought treatment from six different doctors and has received 10 separate drug prescriptions.

"It's a nightmare. You even consider suicide because of the intense pain," she said Friday. The woman is now under the care of a specialist in Morgantown.

"You want to pull your eyeballs out," she added.

The woman, who wishes to remain anonymous, said she met another woman from Waynesburg in a doctor's office in Morgantown and between them they later found 10 others who were suffering from the disease.

Nurses at the state's public health office in Waynesburg said they have only received one call about the disease.

Dr. Calvin Rush of Waynesburg said he has treated two cases thus far. Apparently several persons have sought treatment at facilities in Morgantown.

According to Rush, there is no specific treatment for the disease which will eventually run its course. He suggests extreme personal care such as keeping hands washed and not sharing towels, wash clothes, etc.

Rush said the viral disease could have started with a common source but refused to speculate about the source. He expressed concern that students, soon to return to school, should take care and not share towels or clothing in gym classes.

Representatives of various state, federal and township agencies toured a strip mine site in Cumberland Township Wednesday morning to review and hear complaints from landowners who are claiming poor drainage is causing property damage.

Owner Claims Property Damage Is Result Of Boyle Strip Mine

CARMICHAELS — Representatives of Cumberland Township, state Department of Environmental Resources, U.S. Soil Conservation Service and others congregated Wednesday morning along TR 662 to view a strip mine area and hear complaints from a landowner who claims heavy damage to his property.

The mine is being stripped on property owned by Doris Maciewski of Minnesota by Boyle Land and Fuel Co. Operations have been going on for the past three years.

During that time two landowners, Clyde Jeffries and Thomas Neff, have lodged numerous complaints with the coal stripper and township officials.

Jeffries told media representatives during a tour of the area that red dog from the strip site has clogged drainage ditches and pipes which in turn caused water to ruin his bottom land and garden.

Jeffries claims everyone keeps "passing the buck" and doing nothing.

He has obtained the services of the Legal Aid Society to battle the township and state agencies.

During a walking tour, Jeffries pointed to an erosion problem along the rural road, standing water on his property and a crack across the width of the road which he claims was caused by blasting at the mine site.

Road supervisors countered that the township has followed the necessary procedures in obtaining a road maintenance bond and making sure the road is in good condition at all times. Supervisors claim they are caught in the middle of a dispute between the landowners and the coal stripper.

"If it is determined we are at fault in any manner, we will correct the situation to the best of our ability," one supervisor said.

The crack in the road is under control, according to the supervisors, and presents no problem. They claim the crack was probably caused by blasting, but no one concerned, including the township engineer, was aware of an abandoned slope mine entrance near the area where the crack appeared. "All permits and an inspection were completed before the blasting," the supervisors said.

Part of the road erosion was caused by a heavy rain which caused an unnamed creek to overflow. The supervisors claim the road is actually in better condition now than prior to stripping operations largely because of the work done by the stripper to stabilize the dirt road.

Agency representatives toured the actual strip mine site to review erosion practices and other regulations, but did not allow others to accompany them on the tour.

It was the consensus of the supervisors that the landowner is responsible for correcting problems on his own land. Also, if these problems were caused by stripping operations, the landowner should seek redress with the strip mine owner.

Who Needs Paint?

weathered wood barn is slowly being covered by a layer of ivy. It has been quite a while since the barn saw a coat of paint, so its old wood needs some covering.

Yellow Jackets Hoping To Turn Offense Around

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — At times last year, it seemed Jim Marshall was designing Waynesburg College's offensive plays.

The former Minnesota Vikings defensive end, who was part of the Purple People Eaters Defense, is best known for one play which will live in infamy. Marshall picked up a fumble one fall afternoon and rumbled more than 50 yards — the wrong way — into the Vikings' end zone.

For the remainder of his career, they called him wrong-way Jim.

At College Field, and whatever field the Yellow Jackets happened to be on early last season, the Waynesburg offense did its best to keep the memory of Mr. Marshall alive.

It was usually three downs, a cloud of dust as the chain crew moved back and the call "Punt team get ready."

Waynesburg's offense sputtered so badly in the first three games that even the veteran defensive unit couldn't keep the team competitive. It was three quick losses, and in one performance, a 31-0 loss to Westminster, the offense lost 74 yards rushing and totalled zero net yards.

Obviously, things looked bad, especially considering the offense was rather explosive the preceding season.

But head coach Bill Tornabene didn't give up. The team, which had just three seniors starting by the end of the season, improved slowly.

Quarterback's John Theofilides and Brian Virgin shared playing time and seemed to get a little better with experience.

Theofilides, now a 5-10, 175-pound junior, usually made things exciting when he ran the ball on the option but managed an embarrassingly low total of 38 net yards rushing.

He probably would have had a higher rushing total if he hadn't spent so much time being chased out of the pocket by defenders which also hurt his passing stats. Theofilides threw for 336 yards and three touchdowns but suffered nine interceptions.

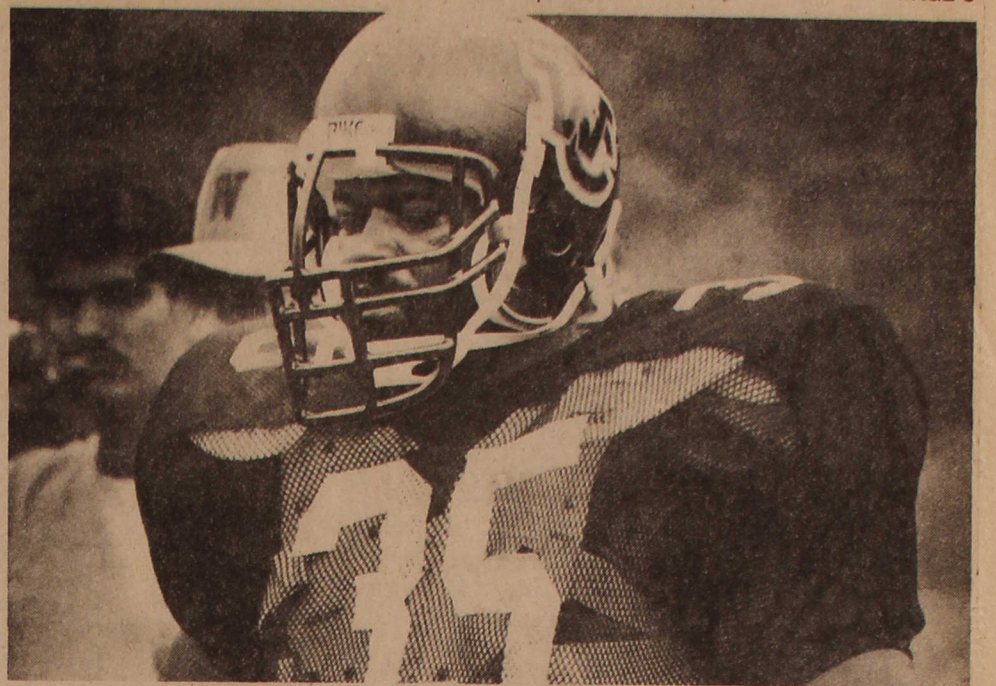

Virgin, a graduate of Jefferson-Morgan High School and now a 5-9, 180-pound sophomore, found some success throwing the ball. He threw for 393 yards but also suffered because the offensive line didn't provide much protection. He threw six interceptions, no touchdowns and completed just 40.5 percent of his passes.

Those two are still battling this year for the starting job and Tornabene said sophomore Al Parente, who played wide receiver last season, has switched to quarterback to battle Theofilides and Virgin.

"There is no order at this point between Brian and John," Tornabene said. "John has proven he can play and has leadership. He has good quickness and he has a way of making things happen."

"Brian, well, he throws well and moves the club well. He's probably the better passer of the two."

Whoever plays, there will have to

Observer-Reporter / Christie Molson

Opposing teams will be watching out for No. 35, Pete Long, this season.

be a big improvement for Waynesburg to better last season's 2-6 record. The offense scored just 10 touchdowns in eight games and through the Yellow Jackets third game of the 1984, it had minus 23 yards net rushing.

"We have two battle-seasoned quarterbacks," Tornabene said. "They have been in there under the fire. Yes, there wasn't very much production from the position last season and we have to have a better performance."

"Offensively we are looking to improve. In my mind we can't improve to the level of efficiency to win unless the offense picks up."

Things could pick up in a hurry considering the team's crop of running backs. However, the one with the most potential is not even officially on the team. Jon Green, a graduate of Mon Valley Catholic, is enrolled at the school but wasn't part of the team as of press time.

Green, a 1982 graduate, rushed for 4,719 yards in high school which left him behind the all-time leader in the state but first in the WPIAL.

He has never played a down of football in college, though, after being red-shirted at the University of Miami and being declared academically ineligible at Slippery Rock University.

The 6-0, 180-pound Green was considered the best back to ever play in the Monongahela Valley and perhaps the best ever in the WPIAL. He would certainly improve Waynesburg's offense.

But even if Green isn't on the team, both starters from last season are back. Senior halfback Shirley Hairston (5-11, 185) rushed for only 180 yards his junior year but was bothered with injuries. Sophomore fullback Bill Watson scored four touchdowns and ran for a team-leading 280 yards.

"Shirley was plagued by injuries and played hurt. He didn't have much of a junior year but he has his speed down (4.7 seconds in the 40-yard dash) and he's worked real hard. He's in better condition, he has better speed and he has the ability to do some great things."

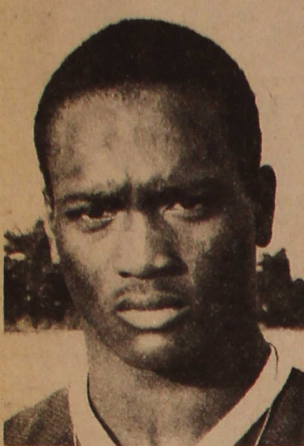

Also in the backfield will be Matt Carlisle, who was at Lafayette last season. The 6-0, 175-pound Fort Cherry graduate rushed for more than 1,000 his senior year in high school. Juniors Tony Nuccetelli and Jim Rubino plus freshman Andre Lewis may also play some in the backfield.

Senior Dave Zilli, who led the team with 21 receptions and a 15.3-yard per catch average, is back at tight end while freshman speedster Terrence Ogletree (4.48 in the 40) heads a group at the wide receiver position. Jerry Castro, Robert Gray, Jim Anderson and Doug Storck should all get some playing time.

The defense, which lost just three starters (Kevin Jozwiakowski, Joe Persichetti and Rich Barnes), should be very strong again. NAIA Division II All-America Pete Long (6-2, 250) returns for his senior season at nose guard. Linebackers Pete Butler and Vince Frank should be strong again as should defensive backs Craig Harris, Bob Abbiatici and Darrin Gavran.

Pete Bell (6-1, 240) is moving from fullback to the defensive line and will work along side Long, Jim Calvario and Bill Britton. Freshman Joe Phillis (6-4, 235), who was at Pitt last year, may also play.

Red Raiders' Young Coach Has Tough Job

WAYNESBURG — The powers of youthful enthusiasm will be put to an interesting test this season, when 23-year-old Jeff Metheny begins his first head coaching job at a school that has won only nine games in this decade and scored just 25 points last season.

Waynesburg Central High School is the place, though you might not recognize it by season's end.

"Attitude is the big thing we're trying to change. We're not going to win every game — I know that," says Metheny, fresh from a stint as offensive backfield coach at Glenville (W.Va.) State College. "But I want these kids to go out and give it their best every night. We can't let ourselves slip away when things are bleak, and I'm sure they will be at times. We've got to change the attitude of the players."

Metheny, a 1984 graduate of Glenville, plans to effect the change by showing the Red Raiders he is on their side. "You have to let your players know you believe in them, no matter how they play," he says. "Then they'll believe in you, and you've got something going there. We have a lot of kids who are working hard and who want to win. They've been real receptive to what we're doing."

The 1984 season here was very, very trying. Waynesburg won only one of 10 games and went six straight weeks without scoring. Streaks like that tend to linger, though Metheny obviously has other ideas.

Those ideas begin with the Raiders' linemen. Senior Todd Berry (5-9, 175) and junior Doug Hughes (5-11, 190) will battle for the right to anchor the offensive line at center. Senior John Blair (5-7, 160) and junior Bill Corbett (6-2, 200) will play the guard spots, with seniors Butch Hewitt (6-4, 230), James Obrad (5-11, 230) and Rick Pultorak (6-1, 205) at tackle. Senior Scot Morris (6-1, 180) will play tight end.

"They're not huge," Metheny said, "but we've got some big kids there. We're counting on Corbett and Pultorak to do a good job for us. Our strong point will probably be our linemen. Against Carmichaels (Waynesburg's first scrimmage), they moved people right out of there, and they didn't miss any assignments."

The starting quarterback position was undecided as the second week of summer practice began. Senior Steve Stuck (5-9, 145) and junior Danny Erhard (6-0, 165) pose Metheny the kind of problem he can live with. "We haven't made a decision on it yet," he said. "We feel we could go with either one and be successful. They're both hard-working, good kids, and they can get the job done for us."

Senior Danny Rush (5-5, 140) and junior Dirk Cole (5-9, 165) will do most of the rushing this season, with three fullbacks expected to help with the blocking: senior Bob Kiger (5-8, 154), junior Calvin Heasley (5-8, 175) and sophomore Pat Haight (5-9, 170).

Seniors Craig Maley (6-3, 180) and Ted Kiger (5-11, 160) and sophomore Mark Hernandez (5-9, 150) will play split end.

On the other side of the ball, Metheny will be looking to improve a defense that allowed 277 points last season. "Defense will be our big thing," he said. "That's what we're going to build on. We've spent a lot of time on the offense, but by the end of this (second) week, our defense will be ahead. We have to hold people down until we get the offense rolling. Defense is what keeps you in games."

Heasley and Blair will play middle guard in Waynesburg's 50 defense, with Hewitt, Obrad, junior Brian Mitchell (5-9, 230) and sophomore John Lemley (6-1, 215) at the tackles. Morris, Ted Kiger, Hughes and sophomore Phil Cook (6-0, 155) will man the end positions.

Defendants In 2 Cases Plead Guilty

WAYNESBURG — Defendants in two cases which had been scheduled for trial this week entered guilty pleas in Greene County Court Monday.

A jury was selected, however, for trial of a third case involving a charge of aggravated assault against Laura Ann Bernard, 18, Waynesburg R.D.4. Alvin Ashford Crawford Jr., 34, of 230 Nemaacolin Way, Carmichaels, pleaded guilty to charges of rape and involuntary deviate sexual intercourse.

He was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in the state penitentiary and was committed to the Western Diagnostic and Classification Center, Pittsburgh, for assignment to a penal institution.

Michael Eugene Henck, 23, of 155 Woodland Avenue, Waynesburg, pleaded guilty to simple assault and terroristic threats. The charges stemmed from an altercation with his grandmother, Mary Henck, on May 21 in which two neighbors intervened.

Borough police said that he threatened to shoot one of the neighbors, James E. Diggs, and choked the other neighbor, Deborah A. Jones.

Under the plea bargain arrangement, Henck was to have received a 6- to 12-month sentence in the Greene County jail with permission to serve the sentence on weekends since he is a student at Waynesburg College.

Judge Glenn Toothman then imposed a sentence which calls for Henck to be released from jail at 8 a.m. and to return to it at 6 p.m. each weekday, and is to be incarcerated full-time over weekends. "He can do his studying at the jail," the jurist said.

County Ordered By State To Inspect All Bridges

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County Commissioners have been notified that unless a qualified engineer inspects all county bridges by Dec. 31, the state may withhold the county's annual Liquid Fuels Tax allocation of more than $65,000.

At their meeting Thursday, the commissioners said they have been notified by the State Department of Transportation that National Bridge Inspection Standards require inspection of all bridges in the Commonwealth — including both state and local bridges — every two years. The last such inspection in Greene County was made in 1980.

Transportation Secretary Thomas D. Larson, in informing the commissioners of the requirement, noted that of the 5,800 local bridges in the state initially inspected by local governments, 4,000 are in violation of the two-year reinspection requirement.

In response to the letter, the commissioners have already contacted C. Vance Dei Cas of McDonald Associates Engineering at Charleroi, who conducted the 1980 inspection. They will also consider an offer by the Department of Transportation to have the work done by consulting engineers that it employs.

In either case, 80 percent of the cost of the study will be reimbursed by the federal government. The county will pay the other 20 percent.

The Chief Clerk Herbert Cox said that the 1980 study by McDonald Engineers cost about $45,000, with the county paying $9,000 of that amount.

The Greene County study would involve 96 bridges the county maintains on local roads. Each must be checked for structural soundness, rated for operating stress levels and, if necessary, posted for weight limits.

In other developments at the meeting, Diane Piatt, administrator of the Curry Memorial Home, reported that the county-operated nursing home had undergone its annual inspection by the State Department of Health last week.

"For the first time in history, no deficiencies were noted," she said.

The surprise inspection assessed nursing procedures, the condition and care of residents, dietary facilities and quality of food, laundry and pharmacy, record keeping, condition and cleanliness of the building, and every other phase of the operation in terms of compliance with state and federal guidelines.

"We are naturally very pleased with the result of the inspection," Mrs. Piatt said. "It is a well-deserved tribute to the work of the staff."

Franklin Township Considers Replacing Central Tax Bureau

WAYNESBURG — Franklin Township supervisors heard a proposal Monday from the Pennsylvania Municipal Service Co. (PMS), a firm bidding to replace Central Tax Bureau as collector of the earned income tax, occupational privilege tax and delinquent per capita taxes.

Franklin has used the services of Central Tax Bureau for several years, but recently became disenchanted when they learned Central Tax was allegedly investing the collected tax and drawing the interest.

Jonathan W. Stanson, representing PMS, said his company would charge 2.85 percent for collecting the earned income tax and occupational privilege taxes, as opposed to the 3 and 3.5 percent respectively being charged by Central Tax Bureau.

Stanson said there would be other advantages, including no charge for collecting delinquent per capita taxes, the availability of computer lists to the township and more frequent deposits of taxes collected.

The township currently collects some $175,000 annually in earned income taxes. The current contract with Central Tax Bureau expires on Dec. 31 with a 90-day notification required. Supervisors said they would study the proposal and possibly render a decision during a September meeting.

In other action, the township received six bids from pipe suppliers for 1,600 feet of eight-inch polyvinyl pipe for a waterline project along Crago Avenue and two bids for fire hydrants and related materials.

The pipe bid was awarded to Famous Supply Co. of Washington on the basis of their low bid of $4,192. Other bidders and their price quotes included W.Va. Water and Waste Supply, $4,928; T&L Supply Co., $4,608; May Pipe Supply Co., $4,960; R.F. Schneider Pipe Supply, $4,640, and A/C Pipe Inc., $4,464.
