Garbage Pickup Bills May Be Lower In Waynesburg

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — Waynesburg residents can look forward to a reduction in their monthly garbage collection bills as a result of bids received by borough council at its monthly meeting Monday, Sept. 9.

Long Trucking Co. of Waynesburg, which holds the present collection franchise, submitted a low proposal of $5 a month for curbside pickups and $5.50 a month for backyard pickups in bidding for a new five-year contract. Long is currently charging $6 and $6.50, respectively.

The only other bid came from William H. Martin Inc., of Washington. It proposed fees of $5.37 for curbside and $5.87 for backyard collections.

Council referred both bids to the borough solicitor for review. A special meeting was scheduled for Monday, Sept. 23, to award the contract, which would become effective Oct. 1.

Sharon Long, who was at the meeting, said that the $1-a-month reduction reflects recent action by council in adopting a policy to require all

Council indicated it was taking the action reluctantly because it felt that owners of rental properties were no less business people than merchants or professional people.

"Most people rent property to make money and we feel they should be subject to the tax," Councilman Lonnie Dusenberry said in making the motion to rescind the motion he made last month.

Prior to the action, Mayor Roy Huffman spoke out strongly against subjecting landlords to the tax. "I think the asinine ideas from borough council will turn Waynesburg into a ghost town," he said.

Ralph Wilson, who has three rental properties, also objected to the tax, claiming that he cleared no more than $1,500 from them last year. "It isn't fair to charge the small landlord the same $125 you charge those with 40 units," he said. "And it isn't fair to charge them the same amount you charge a doctor who makes $150,000 a year."

Councilman Michael Mulholland defended the concept, pointing out that he has already paid a $125 tax as both of whom have moved from the borough.

James Tustin, an employee at the sewage treatment plant, was granted a $500 per year merit raise on completion of his probationary period, and was also granted all benefits which go to full-time employees.

It was announced that Susan Discher, who was hired recently as parking meter agent, had been terminated for failure to perform satisfactorily during her probationary period.

On recommendation of Marion Chambers, administrator of the borough Small Communities Program grant, council awarded contracts for improvements to three additional houses. Under the program, the borough has some $360,000 available in federal funds to bring houses up to federal standards, provided the home owners meet federal income guidelines.

In another area of the grant, council authorized the grants committee to review and approve a contract with the Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging leading to renovation of the former Worthy Scott house Service Forester Bill Wentzel, right, certifies Don Lemley's property into the American Tree Farm System.

Whiteley Township Couple Are Newest Tree Farmers

WAYNESBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Don V. Lemley have become the newest tree farmers in Greene County. Twenty acres of their property in Whiteley Township was recently certified by Bill Wentzel, local service forester with the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, into the American Tree Farm System.

There are now eight official tree farms in Greene County, covering a total of 678 acres of natural woodlands and tree plantations.

The American Tree Farm program is sponsored nationally by the forest industry. The program gives recognition to woodland owners who are following good forest management practices on their land.

A tree farm is an area of privately owned, taxpaying forest land dedicated by its owner to the care and management of the forest resource for timber, wildlife, water and recreational purposes.

Don Lemley is doing just that. In 1978 he planted 5,000 pine and spruce trees in a seven acre open field. Today, just seven years after the planting, the trees average six to eight feet tall with some white pine 12 feet tall. Lemley also cuts firewood from his natural woodlands in the proper manner, thinning the woods but saving the good trees for a future harvest. He doesn't cut all den trees but leaves four to five every acre for wildlife purposes. In 1982 he selectively harvested some white oak trees from the woodlands.

According to Wentzel, Mr. and Mrs. Lemley are good stewards. They properly manage the forest resource on their property; in doing so they are making it more productive and helping to insure future generations with an adequate supply of wood products, wildlife and water.

For more information about the Tree Farm Program, contact Wentzel at 195 East High Street, Waynesburg. The phone number is 627-6624.

High Street Construction

Construction on East High Street will continue until at least the beginning of October as workers install new drains and rebuild the hillsides on both sides of the road. According to a PennDOT spokesman, once the north side of the road has been repaired, workers will move to the south side of the street to make repairs. Traffic then will be blocked off in that lane. The project will correct a drainage problem in this section of road and strengthen the hillsides, which have eroded and started to move, said the spokesman. Work on the road was started Aug. 27; the project has to be completed within 38 days. The contractor on the project is Honeywell and Company of Harwick.

Many Services Available To Elderly

WAYNESBURG — The Southwestern Pennsylvania Area Agency on Aging Inc. reminds those persons 60 years of age or older that five Senior Citizen Centers in Greene County provide many services.

For those who find it difficult to plan enough activities to fill their day or perhaps find it difficult to plan and prepare a meal, the local centers can be of a great help.

These centers offer socialization, recreational activities, congregate meals, education on consumer information, health and nutrition, assistance on income maintenance, housing and legal problems, self-enrichment, counseling and an opportunity to volunteer.

Centers are located in Waynesburg, Carmichaels, Mt. Morris and Clarksville. They operate five days a week, Monday through Friday, while the Bobtown center is open on Tuesdays only.

For those interested, the phone numbers are Waynesburg, 627-6366; Carmichaels, 966-2290; Mt. Morris, 324-5396; Clarksville, 377-1144, and Bobtown, 839-7538.

Crafts, Food Abound At Covered Bridges

CARMCHAELS — The 15th Annual Southwestern Pennsylvania's Covered Bridge Festival will be celebrated Saturday, Sept. 21 and Sunday, Sept. 22 at the covered bridge in Carmichaels and at eight bridges in Washington County.

The festival will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. The activities at the Carmichaels Bridge are under the direction of the Greene Academy of the Arts.

On both days of the festival in Carmichaels, residents and visitors will be able to purchase baked goods at the bake sale, enjoy hot lunches, homemade ice cream, cheese rings, apples, cider and funnel cakes, take pony rides and shop for crafts and other items at an antique flea market. Special events for Saturday include a performance by the "Part Tyme Players" at 11 a.m. and the "Little German Band" at 2 p.m.

The "Part Tyme Players" are a group of five women who play the recorder, an end-blown wooden flute type instrument popular from 1500 to 1700. The women are Mona English, Jeannie Schroyer, Glenda Rogers, Beatrice Hook and Margie Johnson. The recorders they use are replicas of 18th Century Baroque instruments.

At 1:30 p.m. Sunday, the Waynesburg College Glee Club, the "Lamplighters," will perform under the direction of James Randolph.

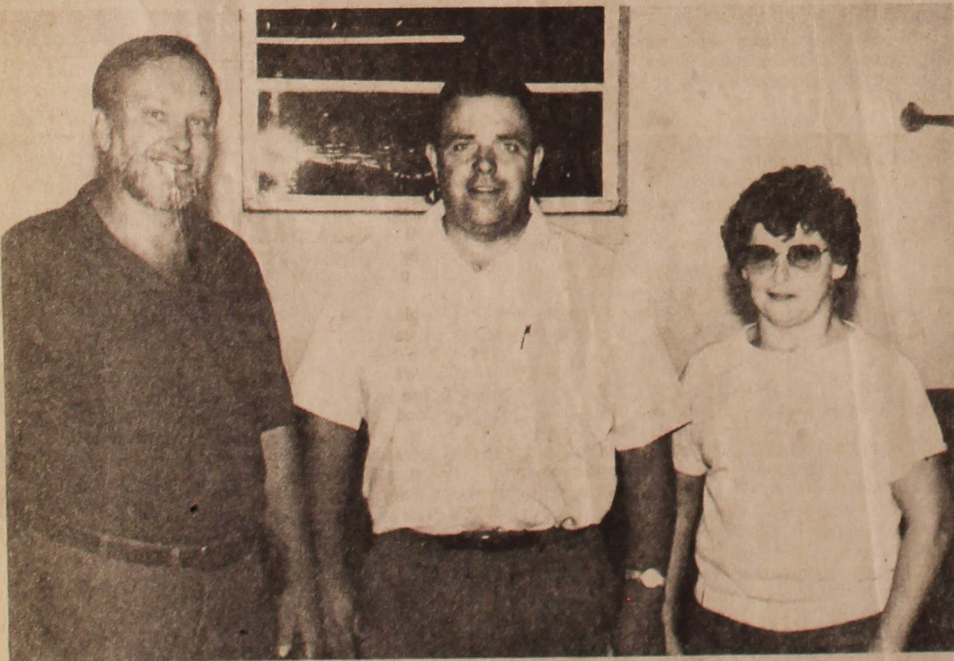

A ceremony will be held at 2 p.m. to dedicate a plaque honoring James Carmichael, the founder of Carmichaels. The plaque was donated to the Greene Academy by the Carmichaels Area Chamber of Commerce. The Uniontown VFW Band will also perform at 2 p.m.

On both days, there will be a display of wood figurines carved by James Gomez of Chambersburg and George Gomez of Nemaacolin. In their works, the two men have depicted such figures as a coal miner, Spaniard, sailor, soldier, aviator, Willie Stargell, the revenue man and more.

Other crafts at the festival include calico crafts, weaving, lace net darning, dried flowers and herbs, dolls, bears, hand-cut jewelry, silversmith works, Cabbage Patch doll clothes, pinecone wreaths, lath art, paintings on slate, tole painting, country stenciling welcome geese, country lamb plaques, hoop art and ceramics.

Activities also are scheduled on these two days at the eight covered bridges in Washington County: the Day Bridge, Ebenezer Bridge, Hughes Bridge, Krepps Bridge, Sprowls Bridge, Bailey Bridge, Wright Bridge and Henry Bridge.

Refuse-Fueled Power Plant Proposed For County

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — A possible solution to Greene County's refuse disposal problem is contained in a proposal which the Dravo Corp. has submitted to Martin Niverth, executive director of the Greene County Conservation District.

It would involve the designing, construction and operation by Dravo of a resource recovery plant in which rubbish, garbage and other refuse would be burned for the dual purpose of disposing of the solid waste and generating electrical power.

The proposal came from Frank

D. Hutchinson, second vice president of Gibbs & Hill, Inc., of New York City, a wholly owned subsidiary of Dravo, which is an international corporation.

Henderson, who has been assigned as general manager of Dravo's resource recovery, stated in a letter to Niverth that Dravo has been involved in the design, construction and operation of more than 45,000 megawatts of power generation projects involving all types of fuel.

The county commissioners discussed the letter at their meeting Thursday since it suggested that the plant be built on county-owned land which Dravo could lease or purchase.

"We're very interested in the idea and have asked Mr. Niverth to follow up on the proposal," Commission Chairman John Gardner said. "It ties right in with the recent meeting we had with township officials to discuss the county's growing waste disposal problem. If this works out it could take care of our needs for the next 40 years."

Niverth also said he has already contacted Hutchinson and will arrange for him to visit the county to provide more details about the plan.

"Overall it looks like a good proposal," Niverth said. "It would require a commitment from municipalities to have their refuse disposed of at the plant, which would meet all standards for air pollution and other environmental concerns."

Under the proposed agreement as outlined in the letter, Dravo would be given a contract to receive refuse from throughout the county at a fee to be negotiated. Refuse haulers would then take their trash to the plant rather than to an out-of-county landfill, as they are now doing.

Dravo would be responsible for the removal and safe disposal of bottom ash generated by the plant.

At the start of operation of the plant, Dravo will initiate a plant de-commissioning fund which would be kept in escrow for the purpose of returning the site to its original condition, or toward the construction of a more modern facility, at the end of the plant's useful life, usually 30 to 40 years.

Dravo also proposes that the county participate in an overview function by designation of a qualified person or group of persons to work with the company during all phases of the project to assure that environmental permitting, design, construction, operation and vehicular traffic are met.

In addition, the company suggests the appointment by the county of a committee to audit plant operation, internal and external plant housekeeping, and profit margins to assure that the negotiated fee charged for disposing of trash at the plant is fair and equitable.

"This sets forth only some of the important aspects of the solution which Dravo proposes to the complex and difficult problem of solid waste disposal," Hutchinson said in his letter. "We would be happy to expand on these aspects and to answer any questions you have in a more formal presentation at your convenience."

Public Meeting Scheduled On County Officials' Salaries

By Bob Eichenlaub, Greene County Editor

WAYNESBURG — The Greene County commissioners announced recently that they will hold a special public meeting at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 27, to take possible action on establishing a salary scale for county officials.

Board Chairman John Gardner said it will be held in the county courthouse. The evening hour is mandated by law to provide the largest number of interested persons with an opportunity to attend.

The meeting is being held prior to the Nov. 5 election so that county officials being elected this year would benefit from any action which is taken. They are the sheriff, coroner, jury commissioners and clerk of courts.

Election of other county officials will not be held until 1987. Any salary increases provided would not affect those who currently hold those offices, but would apply to those taking office in 1988.

By law, the commissioners have the power to provide for annual percentage increases in the salaries of elected county officials but must do so prior to their election if they are to get the raises. If no action is taken, their salaries will remain unchanged from their present levels throughout their new four-year terms.

Gardner said the commissioners have made no decision as yet on whether they will adopt a schedule of raises, or what the annual percentage raise would be if they do decide to grant one.

"We are still waiting for input from the other office holders on what they feel should be done," he said.

Also at the meeting, the commissioners received complaints from Ben Parker of Jefferson about new agreements applying to individuals who stable horses at the county fairgrounds.

Parker has three thoroughbreds which he keeps at the fairgrounds when they are not racing at area tracks. He was particularly concerned about a decision to halt the practice of harrowing the 12 feet of the race track next to the inside rail to make it soft enough for the exercising of running horses, leaving the balance of the track for the exercising of harness horses.

He also challenged the right of the commissioners to alter the agreements which horse owners must sign without first having approved the changes at a regular meeting. "You have no right to sign a contract unless the board authorizes you to do so at a meeting and it is entered in the minutes," he said.

The commissioners said that they had made the changes after consulting with the county solicitor and fairgrounds manager as a means of eliminating some of the disputes over use of the track. They also said that they intended to have the show ring harrowed and made available to owners of thoroughbred horses and said they would have that provision added to the new agreement.

They said that the new agreements would not take effect until Jan. 1 and conceded that Parker was correct in demanding that the track continue to be harrowed as called for in 1985 agreements.

The only other major change will be to require a $50 advance security deposit from all persons who rent horse stalls at the fairgrounds, which would be returned at the time the individual leaves provided there are no outstanding damages to be paid for or any unpaid rent.

The county charges a monthly fee of $12.50 for 4-H members with horses stabled at the fairgrounds and $25 to all others, plus a track fee of $5.

The commissioners adopted a resolution setting a price of $6,000 on a one-acre tract of land, at the western end of the airport, which George F. Keener of Waynesburg wishes to purchase from the county. The market value was set by the county assessor and two independent property appraisers, as required by law.

The land is in a valley adjoining a small tract of land which Keener already owns, where a package sewage treatment plant was formerly located to serve the industrial park. Sale of the property is subject to approval by the Federal Aviation Authority since it is officially designated as part of the airport property.

The commissioners approved a report on 1984-85 financial operations submitted by the Washington-Greene Mental Health and Mental Retardations agency.

Nick Delsignore, an official of the agency, noted that the program provides services to residents of the two counties at an annual cost of some $9.6 million, with most of the funds coming from federal and state sources. Greene County provides $40,000 and Washington County $163,000 of the total budget.

Farm Credit Crunch Could Strike Area

By Phyllis K. Ross, Staff Writer

The current crisis in the Farm Credit System should not hit southwestern Pennsylvania as hard as it will America's west and midwest, according to Jim May, president of West Central Association of the Farm Credit System.

The West Central Association serves 12 counties including Washington and Greene as part of the Baltimore district, which is one of 12 districts in the United States. The district includes Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.

"Our position in Baltimore, is much better than in the other 11 districts in the country," said May, speaking from his Uniontown office.

The West Central Farm Credit Service, includes two locally owned associations;

➤ The West Central Production Credit Association that serves 1,930 borrowers and provides $42 million of short and intermediate term loans.

➤ The West Central Land Bank Association, that is an agent for the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore and has loans of $100,000,000 to 1,860 borrowers in the same geographic area.

"The farmers in our territory are certainly experiencing financial stress given recent trends of declining prices and declining farm asset values," he said. "However most have been able to cope. The delinquencies for West Central Association are at or below Association goals."

"West Central Production Credit has a 3.4 percent delinquency rate, and Federal Land Bank delinquency amounts represent only 2.1 percent of the total dollar volume of outstanding loans in the association as of July 1, 1985," May said.

May feels the following factors have contributed to the more stable farm economy that exists in this area:

➤ Diversified agriculture tends to balance out the types of farm income over this area as compared to other areas of the country where the economy is based on the production of only a few types of products such as corn or livestock.

➤ Farmers in this region have greater opportunities to generate extra income from off-farm sources.

➤ Land values in this district have tended to be less volatile because of urban, industrial and recreational influences.

➤ Transportation and handling costs for agricultural products are reduced in this part of the country because of closeness to large markets.

➤ Borrowers in this region have tended to assume a more conservative debt posture than farmers in other areas of the country.

"Farmers in other parts of the country, such as the Plains states and the midwest, are having much more difficulty since that area represents a significant portion of the farm economy and there adversity is having a severe impact on lending institutions of which Farm Credit plays a major role," May said.

"We have nowhere near the amount of high-risk credit here that they have in the mid-west. Many of our farmers have gone to off-farm income to help out and we can do that here. There aren't many off-farm jobs available in mid-Nebraska," he said.

"I'm not trying to paint a rosy picture, but it just isn't as bad here as in the rest of the country. Not only were borrowers here more conservative, but the lending associations were more conservative too. The optimism of the 70s that dominated the west and midwest didn't affect us here," he said.

WIC Seeks New Clients

Openings are still available in the WIC Program in Washington and Greene counties.

WIC is the common name for the federally funded Special Supplemental Program for Women, Infants and Children. The program provides food and nutrition education to eligible pregnant and breastfeeding women, infants, and children under the age of five. The program is administered at the state level by the Pennsylvania Department of Health and is sponsored by Washington-Greene Community Action Corporation at the local level.

To be eligible one must reside in Washington or Greene County, meet the income guidelines, and be certified by the WIC staff as having a nutrition related health risk. The income guideline is based on family size. For example, a family of four may have an annual household income of $19,703.

More information and an appointment to determine eligibility are available by calling 225-8980 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

WIC officials say research has shown many health problems of women, infants and children are nutritionally related. Mothers who are well nourished protect their health and the health of their babies.

Food Program For The Jobless Is Curtailed

WAYNESBURG — The Food for the Unemployed program in Greene County will be operating on a limited basis during September and October.

Distribution at outlying sites will be discontinued and all services will be provided at the Waynesburg center.

Any person who was served under this program, and is still eligible, will continue to be served as long as food is available.

The Waynesburg center, located in the basement of the New County Office Building on East High Street, will be open from 9:30 to 11 a.m. on Friday mornings during September.

Anyone wishing to apply for the first time should present proof of eligibility on Friday mornings. To be eligible, a person must be unemployed, seeking employment and receiving no public benefits such as Social Security, disability or public assistance.

A fund-raiser for this project will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 15, at the Greene County Fairgrounds when players from area newspapers and radio stations compete.

Admission will be two non-perishable food items.

Cumberland Twp. Supervisors Will Create Sewer Authority

By Bob Niedbala, Staff Writer

CARMICHAELS — The Cumberland Township supervisors held a public hearing recently on the creation of an authority to operate the Crucible sewerage system and voted to take action to establish such a body.

The hearing was held prior to the supervisors' regular meeting.

During the regular meeting, the supervisors voted to advertise an ordinance to create the authority. They also approved a motion regulating the discharge of industrial wastes into the system and establishing the user fee as a flat rate.

It was reported that work on the system, which was built with funds from a $2.1 million federal grant, is near completion.

Although many of the rules and regulations concerning operations have been decided by township ordinance, the authority will have the responsibility of managing the operations, said township solicitor William Hook. Its duties will include setting procedures for bill collection, overseeing the service of lines and making payments on bills for the system's operations.

The authority will have five unpaid members, who will serve five-year terms. The members had already been selected from interested residents, and are Richard Krause, Arlene Zetti, Gertrude Bust, Carl Bolz and Ronald Hanco. It was noted that Bolz, Krause and Hanco have served on the project's advisory board for the past five years.

Hook also said it had been decided that the user fee be based on a flat rate instead of on water consumption. He added that, in discussion, it had been mentioned that the fee might be about $10 a month. The resident also will pay the cost of installing a line from the house to the street line, he added.

Hook explained the procedures residents will have to follow to connect to the system. He said residents first will be sent a notice, which will inform them that they have 60 days to connect to the system. They then will have to get an application, which will list line and connection specifications.

The sewer line can be used to carry only water from the house and cannot be used for roof drainage or drainage from other surface water. Before the line is covered, it must be inspected, said Hook.

One resident asked the supervisors how authority members had been selected. It was explained that three have served on the advisory board and all had expressed an interest in serving on the authority.

The supervisors will vote on the ordinance at their Sept. 19 meeting.

In other business, the supervisors voted to accept a proposal from Milinovich and Company for audits of the second year of the three-year Crucible project and on a grant for blight removal in the same community. The audits will be done at a cost not to exceed $2,000.

The supervisors also explained a letter they sent to Carmichaels Borough, requesting that the township be given three permanent representatives on the Carmichaels-Cumberland Township Joint Sewage Authority. As the authority is now structured, the township has three members on the authority and the borough two for five years; for the next five years, the borough will have three and the township two.

Supervisor William Schifko explained that 92 percent of the people served by the authority are township residents.

"The township should have a majority vote," he said. "If it (the authority) is going to spend your money, you ought to have a say."

When asked why the township had decided to request the change in the authority at this time, Schifko said this is the year the representation will change.

Carmichaels Borough voted to deny the township's request for a change in representation on the authority.

Lightning Injures Area Man

CARMICHAELS — A Cumberland Township man escaped serious injury when lightning struck two trees on his father's farm, killing five head of cattle.

Stanley J. Wahula, 32, Carmichaels R.D.1, was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital for observation and treatment after suffering electrical shock.

He was standing near an apple tree and a pear tree on the Walter Wahula farm when the trees were struck by lightning. The cows were standing under the trees. The incident happened about 1 p.m. during a storm which swept through the county Monday, Sept. 9.

"The doctor told him that his life may have been saved by the fact he was wearing tennis shoes," a member of Wahula's family said.

Friends Of Library Plan Quilt Show

CARMICHAELS — The Friends of the Library will hold a quilt show Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 21-22, in conjunction with the Covered Bridge Festival in Carmichaels.

Many Medals From Vietnam Never Received

WAYNESBURG — Many Vietnam veterans from Greene County have never received medals they earned, according to Bob Bishop, director of the Governor's Veterans Outreach & Assistance Center.

"Many veterans did not receive their medals because they rotated home so quickly. A guy I know was in a firefight one day and on his dad's back porch two days later. He still had foreign soil under his fingernails," Bob Boyle, regional coordinator for the state agency, said this week.

Boyle handles veterans' affairs in Greene, Washington and Fayette counties.

"We are assisting an increasing number of veterans who now are concerned about the accuracy of their military records and have found a significant number of them who never even knew certain medals were awarded," Bishop said.

Veterans interested in obtaining medals they have not received, or in obtaining copies of their military records, must provide a copy of their separation document to verify their veteran status.

County Salary Request Poses Tough Decision

The Greene County commissioners face a tough decision in responding to a request from their fellow elected officials for establishment of a salary schedule which would provide their offices with annual pay increases in the years ahead.

The request is based on a fairly recent state law which took the responsibility for setting the salaries of county offices out of the hands of the state legislature and gave it to the boards of commissioners in each of the 67 counties. It empowers the commissioners to provide annual percentage pay raises on an across-the-board basis.

Where the commissioners take no action, salaries will remain at levels last set by the legislature in 1982.

Many counties took advantage of the new act to set up a schedule of raises in 1983. Washington County, for example, adopted one calling for annual increases of 7½ percent. The Greene County commissioners chose to take no action since the county at that time was moving from a seventh class to a sixth-class county, which carried with it an automatic $1,500 annual increase in pay for county officials.

The kicker in the new system is that the commissioners must take action prior to the start of a new term if an office holder is to benefit. If the schedule is adopted after an office holder has been elected, his salary is frozen for his entire four-year term.

Sheriff Remo Bertugli is spearheading the campaign to persuade the commissioners to act at this time since he, Coroner Frank Behm, and Jury Commissioners Bernice Kuharcik and Rosalind Laur are up for re-election in November. If the commissioners don't act at this time, they would be cut out of any increases the commissioners might authorize prior to the election of other officials in 1987.

The commissioners' decision is particularly difficult since it must be made at a time when the county faces severe fiscal problems.

Operating deficits for several years led to decisions to accept the assessment of interest and possible penalties for late payment of withholding taxes collected from employees so that the money could be used to meet county year-end obligations. County employees, following acceptance of a wage freeze this year, will be pressing for increases in negotiating contracts for 1986.

At the same time, most of the officials are making $17,000 a year and that is little enough for a responsible administrative position, especially if salaries were continued at that level through 1991. And that is what will happen if the present commissioners do not act.

The commissioners have scheduled a public meeting for Friday, Sept. 28, to respond to the office holders' request. It would seem that a modest annual increment would not be out of line, especially if the effective date of the new schedule was deferred until January 1, 1988.

In that way those elected this year would get their raises at

"Sam McCool's new Pittsburghese: How to Speak Like a Pittsburgher." $1.95, paperback.

Of course we all know that we don't "talk funny" around here. We speak slowly, distinctly, correctly at all times. We use good diction and correct English.

But for some reason, other, less enlightened linguistic buffs have other opinions about that. It's because of their own accents and speech peculiarities that they think ours are strange.

An article in "Sports Illustrated" of June 17 gave the opinion that, "In Pittsburgh, even now, they don't know how to correctly pronounce any of the vowels and several of the consonants. Even more than the a's, they mess up the o's. A cawledge, for example, is what Pitt is; a dawler is legal tender." (The article was about Pittsburgh boxer Billy Conn, or Cawn, as author Frank Deford insists. If you haven't seen it, you should - you'll think it's the best thing you've ever read.)

Anyway, the little book on "Pittsburghese" lists a number of so-called mispronunciations, but for only 39 pages, and it's fun to play with. Guess what a keller is, for instance. Sam McCool claims that's a Pittsburgh expression, to all of us ought to recognize it.

The book has the obligatory "yhunz," but not its many variations, such as "yunselves," or "yunz-all." I assume, of course, that everybody here knows what yunz means, without having somebody tell you that it means "all of you."

Oh, well, you may not recognize "aht." This is a word which can be used in describing a destination, as in, "I'll see you later, I'm going aht."

You might decide to go "aht" to Ahia, "the state west of Pennsylvania." Or, you might just want to go to Bloomfield, as in, "Whatever happened to the Bloomfield Bridge."

On the other hand, you might go on "dahntahn" on the new subway to shop, instead of sitting around on the "cahch" all the time: "Dad's asleep on the cahch again."

You could also put some "fillum" in your camera and go over to the "Sahside" to take pictures of the natives. On the other hand, you would more likely go there for some "sam-mitches," or, even more likely, an "Imp 'n Arn." (Arn, as in Arn City.) This adventure could lead to your admission to "I'n near," a well-known hospital, especially if you "caw" for help and nobody answers, and if some of the natives decide to "beat the living daylight out of you."

"Anymore" is a more nebulous phrase, having to do with despair or disgust at the current state of affairs. It "signifies a prevailing condition or situation," and oldtimers use it to decry everything which has happened since World War II. The book's example is, "Anymore there's so many new buildings, you can't tell which is which."

Well, anymore, even the Stillers aren't the same, let alone the "stillmills," no matter how much we wave our terrible "tahls." Some people "worsh" their "tahls" and then rench them in cold water from the "spicket." I guess somebody thinks the word "spicket" is funny, since it's in the book, defined as a "tap of spigot," but we'll go on saying spicket, the way it's supposed to be.

By the way, "kellers" are red, yellow, blue, etc. "Ahts" what I'm trying to tell you - Pittsburgh talks funny, says the book. But you have to reach pretty far to find this many jokes in it.

FACES FROM THE PAST — DO YOU RECOGNIZE THEM?

Yellow Jacket Team Proves Long On Defense

By John Barker, O-R Sports Staff

WAYNESBURG — Call this one an old-fashioned defensive battle. It was filled with jarring tackles, stunting linebackers and a dominating nose guard.

Through almost four quarters, it was also a struggle between two lumbering offenses which tried to survive the simmering 95-degree heat that made College Field in Waynesburg feel like an oven Saturday, Sept. 7.

Fittingly, the most interesting play of the game was performed by a someone on defense. Waynesburg College nose guard Pete Long intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter to set up his team's only touchdown as the Yellow Jackets defeated West Liberty State College, 10-6, in the opener for both teams.

Long, a returning NAIA All-American, made his interception with about six minutes remaining in the game and with Waynesburg trailing, 6-3.

After a short runback by Long, the Jackets drove 48 yards and scored on a five-yard run by fullback Bill Watson to win the game.

Long, who usually gets double-teamed, said he read pass on his interception play, backed up and snared the pass from West Liberty backup quarterback Rich Cernansky.

"I saw the tight end coming across the middle a couple times. I rushed on the first one and the ball went over my head. So I said, 'Hold up. I'll sit back and wait for one,'" Long said. "On the sideline, a couple plays before it with Craig Harris, I was talking about an interception and a lateral. And I was waiting for it. "That interception was planned. I read the quarterback's eyes and he was looking for the tight end all the way across."

Long's heroics saved Waynesburg from suffering an instant repeat of much of last season, when it had trouble scoring. The offense sputtered against the Hilltoppers most of the game, other than on the winning drive. The Yellow Jackets' offense managed just 66 net yards rushing and 98 passing while committing numerous penalties.

"Our offensive unit can't be content to put 10 points on the board and expect to be in every ballgame," Waynesburg head coach Bill Tornabene said. "They showed poise when they had to but I think there was a little pre-game jitters and pre-season jitters with an untested defense that wasn't very productive last year."

The bright spot for the Jackets was their defense. It held West Liberty to 162 total yards and held the Hilltoppers' wide-open offense to 97 yards. Quarterback Earl Hoffman, who came to the Hilltoppers as a junior college All-American, was roughed up in the first half and left the game suffering heat exhaustion.

"They threw the ball about 80 percent and we had to keep pressure on them," Long said.

West Liberty head coach Larry Shank said the pressure may have resulted in his team making too many mistakes.

"We tried to use the short passing game to set up runs and intermediate passes but we missed some reads and missed some catches," Shank said. "Waynesburg's defense is very quick and very good. Pete Long is a player. If you take Long away from the defense, you take away four players."

While the Waynesburg defense played extremely well, the team's offense played much as it did a season ago. Freshman quarterback Tim Null started for the Yellow Jackets and completed 10 of 18 passes for 79 yards but had two interceptions, including the first play from scrimmage.

On the winning drive, Null finally calmed down. He completed three passes for 23 yards and ran for a yard on a scramble while Sherley Hairston and Morris Hundley made short runs before Watson bulled in for the score with 4:35 left in the game.

"They gave us the ball on mistakes but we could never take advantage of it," Shank said. "If we score a TD in the third quarter maybe we would have put the game out of reach. But we didn't put them away and when you keep giving a team chance after chance, they come back and beat you."

FLAK JACKETS — John Theoflides, who started at quarterback for Waynesburg last year, played briefly and completed just three of 10 passes. . . Hairston led the Jackets with 37 yards rushing while Jerry Castro caught five passes for 32 yards. . . Cernansky completed five of 15 passes while Hoffman hit 10 of 21 for West Liberty. Ed Edwards had 79 yards rushing. Mark Marchese made two field goals, 27 and 43 yards, for West Liberty. Scott Shick made a 27-yarder for the Jackets.

Poling Scores Five Touchdowns In Frazier Win Over Carmichaels

By Bob Grove, O-R Sports Staff

CARMICHAELS — If you have not yet heard of Ken Poling, do not worry. Anonymity rarely survives a night like this.

The 5-10, 180-pound senior rushed for 362 yards on 23 carries and scored all five Frazier touchdowns here Friday, Sept. 6, as the Commodores rallied from a 20-13 halftime deficit to defeat Carmichaels, 32-20, in the WPIAL Section 4-A opener for both teams.

"Have you ever," Frazier coach Tom Salisbury asked no one in particular, "seen anything like him? I haven't, either. He's great. We didn't think they could stop him. Right from the first time he carried the ball, we didn't think they could stop him. He's got it all."

His first rushing attempt of the night, on the game's third play from scrimmage, went for a mere six yards. But Poling swept around right end for 48 yards and a touchdown on the very next play, and he was off and . . . well, running free.

"He went outside on us, he went inside on us. . . there was no defense. What can I tell you? The kid's a hell of a running back," Carmichaels coach Tom McCombs said, "but we just didn't put up any resistance. We were bad with a capital B. We were terrible."

Poling's incredible performance overshadowed the play of Carmichaels sophomore Hank Workman, who lived up to his name by rushing 31 times for 174 yards. Workman carried 22 times for 129 yards in the first half, scoring once on an 11-yard run and gaining 28 yards in a late second-quarter drive which culminated with senior quarterback Roger Waters' two-yard touchdown run. That gave the Mikes (0-2) a 20-13 lead.

Unfortunately for Carmichaels, however, there was plenty of Poling left for the second half. After gaining 197 yards on 14 carries in the first half, Poling ran 80 yards for a touchdown on his first carry of the second, tying the game, 20-20.

"The guys kind of got wild at halftime," Poling said. "Something got into them, and they just wanted the game." And he was about to give it to them.

On the Commodores' next possession, Poling carried three times for 40 yards, scoring on a 10-yard run that put Frazier on top to stay, 26-20.

"Our line. . . I can't believe those guys," he said. "Everywhere I ran, there were holes. Without them, I wouldn't have had a yard."

With each of Poling's carries, McCombs' frustration grew.

"You'll probably be seeing some new faces (on defense) next week," he said. "Before the game even started, we knew what they were going to do. He (Salisbury) just doesn't throw. We'd put everybody up there. . . it didn't matter. We did everything we could possibly do. We slanted to their motion, away from their motion. . . we did everything we could to get to the plays, but we just didn't get there. I've never experienced anything like it. It was unbelievable. It just got into a scoring game and we couldn't stop them."

Defense, as you may have guessed, was largely a foreign word Friday. The teams combined for 471 yards total offense in the first half alone and punted twice between them.

Frazier sealed the victory soon after Poling's fourth touchdown. Mikes' senior Joe Sokol fumbled the ensuing kickoff, and Commodore sophomore Brent Filak recovered at the Carmichaels' 29-yard line. Four plays later, Poling ran 23 yards for a touchdown on a fourth-and-three play. McCombs said could have ignited a Mikes' comeback.

Earlier in the night, it appeared Frazier would be the team needing a second-half comeback. After Poling's first touchdown, the Mikes marched 55 yards in eight plays to tie the game, 6-6, the score coming on a 13-yard pass from Waters to senior Bill Kirk. Workman's 11-yard run and a 14-yard pass from Waters to senior Steve Durco were the key plays in the drive.

After Poling slanted three yards off left tackle to make it 13-6, Carmichaels went 71 yards in 10 plays to tie the game, Workman scoring on the 10-yard run. He also had runs of nine, 11 and 15 yards on the drive.

"We weren't attacking them on defense," Salisbury said. "We were sitting back and they were just running right at us. We weren't attacking, and you can't do that. But at halftime, we just decided we weren't going to lose, and we put forth the effort."

McGuffey Crushes Raiders

WAYNESBURG — Right away, you could tell about this one. McGuffey High School's football team had this game won from the moment they left the bus.

The first two times Highlander players touched the football, they scored on way to a 55-8 victory over Waynesburg in a Section 1-AA game.

McGuffey's Kirk Stillmak raced 15 yards for a touchdown on his team's first possession, immediately after the Highlanders recovered a fumble. Approximately six minutes later, Eric Belleville hauled in a Waynesburg punt and ran 60 yards to give McGuffey a 13-0 lead.

Stillmak finished the game with 119 yards on 11 carries while Tom Bedillion added 87 yards on nine rushes and Jim Zito 72 on 10. McGuffey had 461 total rushing yards and 16 first downs while Waynesburg had six first downs, all in the second half.

The Red Raiders did pass for 42 yards but lost 47 net yards rushing.

McGuffey, now 2-0 overall and 1-0 in the section, had other touchdowns — Bedillion on a 15-yard run, a one-yard and a 10-yard runs by Belleville, Jim Zito's five-yard run and Boyd Wass' six-yard romp.

Maples 6, Trojans 6

MAPLETOWN — Kyle Azorsky ran two yards for a touchdown with 32 seconds to play Friday night, Sept. 6, lifting California High School to a 6-6 tie with Mapletown in a WPIAL Section 4-A game.

The Trojans attempted to kick for the victory, but the kick was blocked.

The Maples (0-1-1), who held the Trojans (0-1-1) to just seven net yards rushing and four first downs, had taken a 6-0 lead in the second quarter on a one-yard by Tom Pekar. The subsequent kick failed.

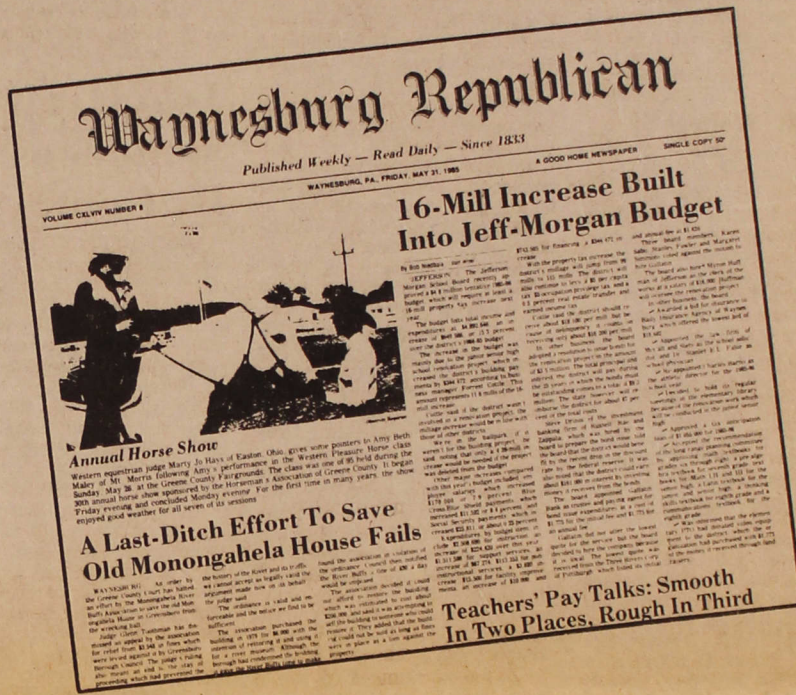

Rockets 9, Gators 6

JEFFERSON — Senior Jeff Jento recovered a blocked third-quarter punt in the end zone Friday night to help Jefferson-Morgan High School defeat Geibel, 9-7, in a WPIAL Section 4-A game.

The unbeaten Rockets (2-0) also benefitted from a safety in the same quarter when a Geibel punt snap sailed out of the end zone.

The Gators' only touchdown came in the final quarter on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Jim Pearl to Jeff Erdely.

Two Dealt Sentences By Court

WAYNESBURG — Defendants in two criminal cases were sentenced recently in Greene County Court.

Gary E. Smitley, 37, Waynesburg, who was convicted in June on charges of drug violation and conspiracy, was sentenced to 2-to-5 years in the Western Penitentiary.

Smitley and two other persons were charged with using a stolen prescription blank to forge a prescription for percodan which was purchased on March 9, 1985.

While Smitley was found guilty of the charges at a jury trial in June, sentencing had been postponed pending the disposition of a new trial appeal filed by his attorney. He was sentenced when he requested that the appeal be withdrawn.

Raymond H. Riggs, 19, New Freeport R.D.2, pleaded guilty to theft of a car belonging to John W. Grimm of Springhill Township on May 22, 1985.

He was sentenced under the youthful sentencing act to an indeterminate term at Camp Hill, not to exceed six years.

A guilty plea was also entered by Jeffrey Robert Martin, 28, of Ellsworth, who was charged with receiving stolen property in connection with the theft of $940 worth of various articles from J. R. Powell of Marianna R.D.1.

Sentencing was postponed pending preparation of a pre-sentence report by the county probation office.

Enlow Valley Walking Tour Set Sept. 14

WAYNESBURG — The Association for Rural Conservation (ARC) will sponsor a walking tour of Enlow Valley, which spreads across the boundaries of western Greene and Washington counties, on Saturday, Sept. 14.

Tour participants will meet at the Wind Ridge Fire Hall at 9 a.m. before proceeding to the valley.

The tour is an outgrowth of the association's Spring Fling. This outing is intended to give nature enthusiasts a closer look at the valley's flora and fauna. The walk will cover from 1½ to 3 miles according to each participant's desire.

Those taking part will see one of the county's best natural areas. The valley supports a diverse system of wildlife and plant life. Its gently flowing stream naturally supports small mouth bass and many other species as well as beavers.

The base of the valley is a quiet, unmarred haven of lush undergrowth and a habitat for many types of wildlife.

The ARC hopes to have several plant and animal specialists including Ralph K. Bell, a member of the Audubon Society and the Brooks Bird Club; Robert Buckbee, a naturalist and amateur botanist and Arabelle Wheatley, nature illustrator and amateur botanist.

All interested persons are encouraged to attend and join in sharing part of this county's natural wealth, according to Marcia E. Sonneborn, president of ARC.

Those taking the tour are urged to bring a sack lunch and wear comfortable clothing and hiking shoes.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Marcia Sonneborn at 428-4344.
